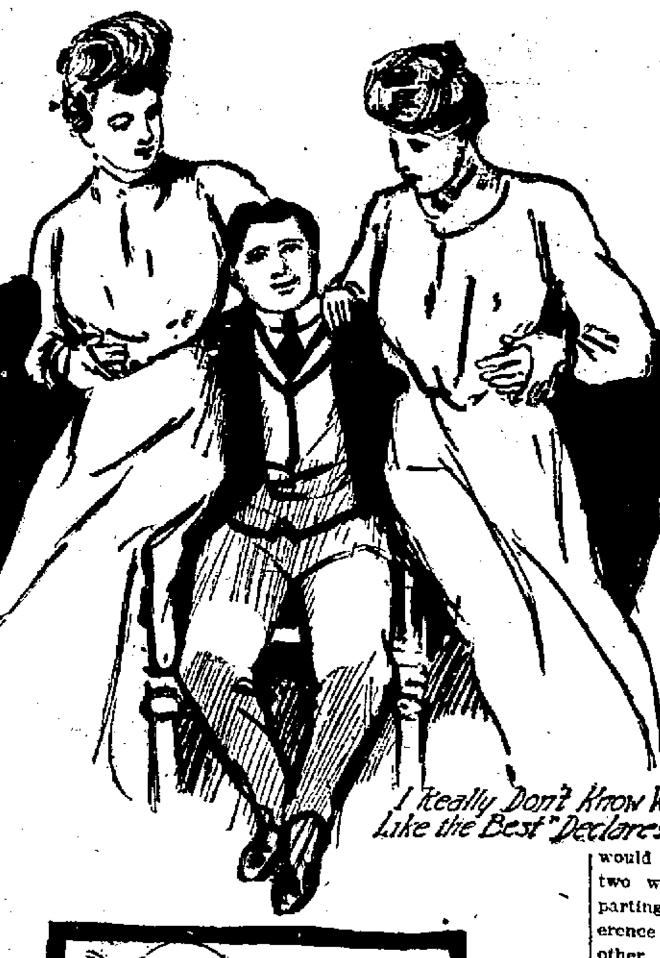
Charles R. Sager and Mrs Sager No 1.



"I Really Don't Know Which I Like the Best" Declares Sager.

Mrs. Sager No. 2.

If all reports are true, says the Philadelphia North American, Charles R. Sager of Madison, Wis., is a remarkable man. For no one else but a remarkable man could shelter two wives in the same household, as he is accused of doing, and enjoy, all the while, an atmosphere of peace and contentment.

Sager is not the first man charged with the possession of two wives, and no acquaintance with the divorce court, but he is the first, so far as known, who has successfully harnessed such spouses tandem, so to speak, under the same roof.

By the unique arrangement which he put into effect the first, and, as asserted, the legal, wife, the mother of his two little children, acted as general servant, while the other woman posed as the feminine head of the household.

So harmonious was the arrangement and so little did the two wives jar that Sager lived in happiness with both. When he was arrested both wives asserted their unalterable fidelity to him; together they visited him in jail, wife No. 2 pushing the carriage in which the baby of wife No. 1 reposed, and each declared her willingness to give Sager up to the other in order to avoid making trouble for him.

This arrangement, it appears, might have gone on indefinitely but for a little police difficulty into which the man tumbled. Even this prosaic happening, however, cannot remove him from the list of truly remarkable men.

In his choice of wives Sager gave evidence of versatile taste and ideals that ran a wide range.

Both women are young and handsome, the first, however, being a tall, blue-eyed blonde and the other a chic, spirited little brunette.

Trouble assailed Sager in a heap when he was arrested, one night recently, charged with stabbing a man in a personal controversy. This incident was not of momentous importance, and would not have revealed to the world the queer domestic life of the insurance solicitor—for that is Sager's business—had he not voluntarily made astonishing acknowledgments on the witness stand at his preliminary hearing.

In extenuation, he is said to have declared that he and his first wife did not get along well together, and that he had intended to secure a divorce, but had overlooked that legal formality.

Last May, he stated, he married wife No. 2. During the following summer he lived with her, but the two women frequently visited each other.

Some time ago Sager took a house in a good section of the city, just around the corner from the residence of the Governor of the State, and set up his strange household.

The first and legal wife, it is asserted, took a part of the house and went there to live with her two children. She also offered to act as servant for her husband and the woman who had supplanted her in his affections.

Sager is well known in Madison, and has lived there for the last eight years. He is a German, aged 28, the son of a well-to-do farmer, living near Lake Koshkonong. The home in which he lived with his two wives was but two doors from Bethel Lutheran church, in which he was married five years ago by the pastor, Rev. Thore Eggen.

The first Mrs. Sager was Miss Bessie Knudson, a Norwegian girl, from Black River Falls. She is a striking looking woman, well educated and refined, but she does not seem to consider her position in the household anything out of the ordinary.

When she learned of the arrest of her husband she was lulling her pretty 2-year-old baby to sleep, with wife No. 2 looking sympathetically on.

Both women declared they would do everything in their power to help their joint husband out of his scrape. They seemed to be on the best of terms.

The second Mrs. Sager was Miss Margaret Mulholland, aged 24, daughter of J. R. Mulholland, a wealthy German farmer with a Scotch wife, living near Valton, in Sauk county, forty miles north of Madison.

THE NEW LOVE.

About two years ago she went to Madison to earn her own livelihood, as daughters of many well-to-do farmers have done for years. During the early days of her residence in the city she met Sager, and, it seems, infatuated him.

Being a kindly woman, the man's wife, when she learned of the state of affairs, simply remonstrated with him. When, as reported, he declared that he could not give up his new love, the two agreed to separate.

How much Miss Mulholland was to blame for breaking up the Sager household is hard to say. She now asserts, it is said, that she was deceived and did not know that Sager was married. At other times she has made the statement that she expected Sager would get his divorce and that then all would be well.

At any rate, when reporters called on them on the night after Sager's confession neither wife spoke of deception or misunderstanding, and vehemently declared that so long as the three persons most interested were satisfied with the arrangement they considered it impertinent of the courts and outsiders to "butt in" and make trouble.

"Charlie is a good, kind man," said the second wife, "and we shall surely stick to him through thick and thin." Then, turning to Mrs. Sager No. 1, she asked, "Shan't we, Bessie?" To which Mrs. Sager replied, "We surely shall."

And truly they did. For several days they frequently visited Sager in jail, going together, No. 2 wheeling the carriage containing the baby of No. 1, and the two seemingly on the best of terms.

FRIENDLY RELATIONS TO BOTH WIVES.

At the jail Sager would kiss both women and kiss the children. He would divide his attention between the two women and kiss them both on parting. There was no sign of preference or partiality for one or for the other.

Mrs Sager No. 2 Cared for Mrs Sager No. 1's Baby While She Did the Washing

Asked on one such occasion: "If you were free and unmarried and had to choose between your two wives, which would you take?" he paused a moment, confusedly, and said:

"Really, I don't know. I can't say. Both come to see me; both are doing all they can to help me, and it wouldn't be fair for me to show any partiality."

Defining his novel household arrangement, Sager remarked: "My first wife was taking in washing, and had a hard time to get along. Feeling that she might suffer during the winter, I determined to do what I could to make her comfortable."

How did the two women regard this plan? They seemed to be well satisfied, and dwelt together in harmony. Wife No. 1 revealed her mental processes in the following words:

"I did not wish to wound the feelings of either by referring to the previous marital relations existing between Mr. Sager and myself, so I never did so in their presence.

"We expected to get a divorce in time, and, of course, considered ourselves as good as divorced. I found out he was going with another woman, from letters in his pockets, and tried to make him give her up, but he couldn't. I knew the girl could not escape him, and that he would follow her to the end of the world, and so I finally let him have his own way and marry her.

"We still met and remained friends, and as I was a friend of his second wife I saw no harm in going to live with them when they invited me.

"It is true that I have been doing much work for this second wife, but it was necessary for me to do something. I did not know where the dreadful thing would end, but I loved Charlie and hated to give him up, and yet at the same time did not dare to speak, and waited, hoping things would turn out all right some way. I am sure I cannot help it."

Mrs. Sager No. 2 in her first interviews did not disclaim knowledge of Sager having been married, and was disposed to resent investigation and to stand by Mrs. Sager No. 1.

"She is such a kind, good woman, and you couldn't quarrel with her. I am sorry for her," she said, "and will do what I can to help her."

Now the situation has changed, however. As her standing as a wife has been questioned, she has gone back to her quiet rural home amid the picturesque hills of Sauk county to await developments.

Before going home she said: "I first met Sager two years ago. He was always known to me under the name of Charles William Stewart. We went together all the time, he asserting to be a single man, and finally I married him under the name of Stewart. I never knew he was married before.

"I often visited his first wife. I knew her only as a friend of his, and I was so lonesome, for we were doing no housekeeping, that I often called on her. After she came to live with us I suspected something, but did not know that they had really been married.

"If I could make Sager go back to his first wife I should like to see him do so, but she says he is so taken with me that I would have to go a long way off and hide myself or he would follow me."

Miss Mulholland's father states that Sager visited his daughter under the name of Stewart, and that he had been driven from the place twice at the point of a shotgun.

At last, finding that the young people were determined to be married, he withdrew his objection, but told them to have the ceremony performed while he was absent from home.

Wife No. 1 has left Madison also, going to the home of her stepfather at Black River Falls. Sager's unique family is broken up, and he is not facing the future with any degree of enthusiasm.

Mysterious Young Woman Who Embodies Four Persons in One.

Miss Christine Meauchamp, who has one body and four personalities, who is a female Jekyll, Hyde, Jones and Smith all in one who combines four distinct personages within herself, who has a quadruplicity of mind and a singleness of body, is reported as "better."

This girl, who for eight years has been the most astonishing instance of polyconsciousness the world has ever known, is a patient of Dr. Marton Prince, of Tufts Medical school, and the Boston city hospital, says the Detroit News-Tribune. For eight eral times, almost her murderer. He separate her four personalities and "cure" Miss Beauchamp; to rid her of Sally, of Christine, of Becky—and especially of Sally, who has been her tormentor, her persecutor, and, several times, almost her murderer. He has been striving to save the body of Miss Beauchamp from the fiend within her that has been striving to kill her.

Miss Beauchamp exists in four different forms, while the material form—that of a handsome and pretty young woman—remains the same. Sometimes, for many days, she is Sally. Sometimes for days she is Christine, and sometimes she is Becky, while, at rare intervals, she is Miss Beauchamp who does not know Sally, and Becky, and Christine.

She has four minds, four moral beings, four spirits: all in one body, but never at the same time, and the strange part of it is that Miss Beauchamp does not know Sally, and Christine, and Becky, although they all know each other. Perhaps they might reside in the one body peaceably and without strife, but for the fact that Sally is a mischief maker who hates and is jealous of Christine, and, when she is in possession of the body, tries to do it harm. There is a feud of at least eight years' standing, as evidenced by Dr. Prince, between Sally and Christine, during which Sally many times, in her hatred of Christine, has come near killing the body that is called Miss Beauchamp by her friends and family.

Sally has a habit of occupying the body, maltreating it, eating poisonous stuff, cutting it with knives, and scratching it with pins, and then deserting it, leaving Christine, who follows her in the occupancy of the body, to suffer agonies. Dr. Prince, who for eight years has been striving to save Miss Beauchamp from her other personalities, has always saved the body from the destructive, malicious tenant, and now hopes that Sally has relented and will not again attack Christine.

The two predominant selfs in Miss Beauchamp's body are Sally and Becky. Really the body belongs to Christine, for that was what it was christened, but when she was yet a small girl Sally insisted upon sharing the body with her, or, rather, taking possession of it.

Christine is a modest, quiet, and reserved young woman, while Sally is a boisterous, cigarette-smoking giddy girl, give nto sitting with her feet on the table and going in for lively times. Christine reads and speaks French, and is skillful at shorthand, while Sally knows nothing of these things and is vulgar and common, so it was natural that Sally should hate Christine and sometimes Christine came out of a trance and found herself talking with noisy, commen men and sitting at a table smoking cigarettes and drinking beer with men she had never seen before.

The girl's case has attracted the attention of thousands of physicians, some of whom have come across the ocean to see her.

Dr. Prince says that she is now better than she has been for a long time.

NOVEL PINCUSHIONS FOR CHRISTMAS.

A pincushion is a very necessary adjunct to the average woman's dressing table, and she is apt to be specially appreciative if the one bestowed upon her at Christmas is made in some novel form.

Brooches that are worn often are generally kept somewhere within easy reach, and they are preserved in better condition if their ordinary resting place is a wash leather cushion instead of a china or metal pin tray.

To make this brooch pincushion, use a round cushion covered with wash leather for your center and sew to this four flaps of velvet, heavy silk or any other material that you choose, lining each flap with the wash leather. Stick your brooches into the center cushion and fold the flaps over. The two that fold on top are tied together with ribbon.

Failure of an Eden of the South Seas.

The "simple life" proved too complex for the group of German authors, painters, and philosophers who tried to follow it on the island of Kabakon in the Bismark archipelago.

They were eager to start life afresh under physical conditions approximating those of primitive man. They formed a colony under the name of the "Sun Brothers," in allusion to their wish to enjoy permanent sun baths in the costume of Adam. Their food was to be limited to nuts and fruit. Their labor was to consist of tilling the land and tending their herds.

The enterprise proved as brief as it was simple. Herr Lutzow, the author, and Herr Englehardt, the philosopher, have died from the combined result of exposure from not wearing clothes and exhaustion from inadequate diet. The natives killed Herr Bettman, the philosopher. The others have returned in despair to civilization.

The Sun Brothers founded their colony in 1903. The leaders were August Englehardt, a vegetarian, physician and philosopher of Munich, and Max Lutzow, musical director of one of the Berlin theaters.

Englehardt's philosophy was the "simple life." He believed in life in the tropics, where man could go naked, eat nuts and fruit, drink only water, and work only when he felt inclined. Such a life, he believed, would mean absolute freedom from sickness and would enable those who live it to carry out great ideals in literature, arts and the sciences.

A number of authors, painters and writers, converted to Englehardt's philosophy, agreed to put it to a practical test.

The spot chosen for the new Eden was the island of Kabakon in German New Gunea, and belongs to the New Lauenburg group, which is situated in the Bismark archipelago, between New Pommern and New Mecklenburg. It is one mile from Herbertshoehe, the seat of the government and half a mile from Mioko.

The island is an ideal Eden. It is, in fact, one big cocoanut, banana and papaya plantation of 7000 trees; 165 acres in size, with extraordinary fertility, bearing incidentally all the other famous tropical fruits, mangoes, breadstuffs, pineapples, oranges, lemons, and having, too, a good annual crop of sweet potatoes, yams, taron, sugar cane, tallia nuts, gallip and other tropical oddities.

Englehardt and his companions established themselves on the island and lived up to their theory. They went naked. They ate cocoanuts and fruits. They bathed in the sea. They lived in the sunshine.

Events proved that man needs more than cocoanuts and sun baths to sustain life.

Making Gold Thimbles for Women

The gold from which thimbles are made is bought at a United States sub-treasury in the form of snug little ingots, brick shaped and two and a half inches long and an inch and a quarter wide and an inch thick, says the Chicago Chronicle. Each one contains, of pure gold 24 carats fine, metal of the value of $600.

Gold of this fineness would be much too soft for thimbles, and it is alloyed down to 14 carats, in which condition it is rolled into sheets of suitable thickness. In the first process of manufacture a sheet of this gold is run into a machine which cuts out of it a disk in size sufficient to form a thimble, the same machine stamping this disk also into the form of a straight-sided capsule with irregular edges.

Then the thimble blank goes into another machine, in which the die stamps it into its conical shape. Out of this machine it goes into an annealing furnace for tempering and from that into an acid bath for cleaning and the removal of the fire coating.

Then the thimble is put into a lathe to be turned down to its final shape and dimensions.

With repeated applications of the tool the operator brings the crown of the thimble into its perfect form and cuts down along the thimble's sides to bring the walls of the thimble to the requisite thickness, defines and finishes the smooth band that runs around the lower part of the thimble and brings into relief the rounded rim that encircles the thimble at its opening, at once to give it a finishing ornamental grace there and to stiffen it. The glistening little gold shavings that he cuts off in these various operations all fall into a canvas trough.

It lacks yet the familiar indentations in its surface that serve to support the needle and to hold it in place. These the thimblemaker now proceeds to make. It is done with a tool called a knurle. There are an end knurle and a side knurle. An end knurle is simply a handle having set in it a tiny, thin, revolving wheel of steel upon whose periphery is a continuous encircling row of little bosses or knobs corresponding in size to the indentations to be made. The side knurle has in place of such a wheel a little steel cylinder of a length sufficient to cover that section of the thimble that is to be indented on its sudes, this cylinder having knobs all over its surface, as the end knurle wheel has around its edges, and turning, like the wheel, on its axis.

The thimble in the lathe is turning at 2500 revolutions a minute, and it seems as if the application to its surface of any sort of tool with protuberances on it must leave there only a jangled and mixed-up lot of irregular marks. But now, withh the end knurle, the thimblemaker makes an indentation in the center of the top of the thimble and then proceeds rapidly and with perfect certainty with the end knurle to describe around that center concentric rings of indentations, with the indentations all perfectly spaced from the center on the circumference of the top.

You may see him do this, but you can't tell how he is able to do it. And then with the side knurle he makes the indentations in the sides of the thimble, making them as well, as he deftly presses the tool against it, indentations that run absolutely uniform and true and that end at their lower edge in a perfectly true encircling line.

The TERRIBLE REVENGE Charged against a JEALOUS HUSBAND

MRS. J. H. CRUTCHFIELD

PAUL CRUTCHFIELD

MR. J. H. CRUTCHFIELD

"Revenge!"

This is said to have been J. H. Crutchfield's one word when he fired the two shots, according to the New York World.

His wife fell, and he dropped the revolver to the porch. Both shots had hit, but if he intended, as they charge, to cripple both legs "to match that man," he was but partly successful. The right leg has been amputated above the knee.

"That man" knew his wife, and "that man" had lost his legs in a railway accident. Further than that it was nothing. No one dare say a word against Mrs. Crutchfield. She has always been a favorite in Atlanta society—handsome, clever, vivacious.

The Crutchfields have long been among the best known people in Atlanta, Ga. It had to be so, because Mrs. Crutchfield was considered the handsomest young matron in Atlanta, and Southern gallantry still exists. She came from Columbia, S. C., and there she married young Crutchfield fourteen years ago.

He was a rising young cotton oil broker then; today he is accounted well-to-do. Mrs. Crutchfield did not come of a wealthy family—in fact, her face was all the fortune she brought her husband; but that was enough. There has never been a better dressed young matron in all the South than young Mrs. Crutchfield. She had a figure and complexion to set off her beauty, too, and the beautiful clothes bought by her devoted husband. It was dinner and dance and drive all the time.

"There goes the handsome Mrs. Crutchfield!" could be heard in Atlanta any day.

The chivalrous Southerners liked to hear her called that, because she really was. But Crutchfield resented this compliment to his beautiful wife. He didn't like the drives and the dinners and the dances. He had an idea that his wife should stay at home more and look out for Loudette and Paul, their two little boys. Mrs. Crutchfield could not see things in his light.

They quarreled; they separated.

Then Atlanta society learned for the first time that everything in the Crutchfield home was not as it should have been. There were divorce proceedings. The momnt the news was printed, Mrs. Crutchfield called at all the newspaper offices in Atlanta and said:

"You have published an account of my divorce proceedings. It was all right—and all wrong. We have made up. There is nothing in these charges—nothing."

PITCHED HER INTO THE YARD.

Under the law there is what is known as a peace warrant. Crutchfield was brought to court upon one. He was charged with striking his handsome wife.

"I did it because of a letter," he swore. "I took it from her bosom myself. It was from a man in this town. I did strike her. I struck her several times. I dragged her out on the veranda, and I pitched her out into the yard. I thought I had killed her. And that is the only time I ever struck her."

The case was dismissed.

Mr. and Mrs. Crutchfield left the courtroom arm-in-arm, apparently the happiest of couples. For months they lived together in seeming mutual regard. They were seen out together often, as devoted as two young lovers might well be. Then like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky came a second suit for divorce. This is still pending.

Mrs. Crutchfield took her two little sons and went to live at No. 300 South Pryor street, Atlanta. It was then that "the man" entered their lives. He was a splendid specimen of manhood—tall, good-looking, athletic, debonnair. He was clever and entertaining and the handsome young Mrs. Crutchfield was plainly interested—more than that not at all.

Then came the accident.

This friend of the family was a railroad man. He fell between the cars and both his legs had to be amputated to save his life. Mrs. Crutchfield was deeply moved by his misfortune and she tried to help him as he lay in the hospital, doomed to be a cripple for life.

And that aroused the husband to his fury.

Mrs. Crutchfield had been to see "Zaza" at the matinee. Her husband had come to her new home to wait for her. He had to wait two hours. Then Mrs. Crutchfield said a merry "Good-night" to some of her friends who had been to the theater with her and ran up the stoop.

"Is that you, Sallie?" asked Crutchfield.

"Yes," answered his wife, without a thought of what was to come.

There was a shot; then another. The handsome young wife fell prone and unconscious. Two bullets from her husband's rifle had hit her in the right leg.

"I want to hit you once in each leg," yelled Crutchfield. "Then you would have been like that man."

He was right. So she would have been.

Had the husband's aim been as true on the second shot as it was on the first Mrs. Crutchfield would have lost both limbs. But by a merciful misshot both bullets hit the same limb.

The eleven-year-old boy, Loudette, heard the shots. He started down to the door to let his mother in. He had just opened it when the first shot was fired. He jumped on the back of his father as the second bullet was sent on its errand of vengeance and fought with him to keep him from firing again.

Crutchfield started to get away. The boy clung to him.

The boy couldn't save his mother's limb, but he did safe her life by spoiling his father's aim. Crutchfield ran down the steps.

"If you follow me I'll fix you, too!" he yelled, in his rage.

"I was afraid," said the boy, as he tells it now, "and I ran back to my mother. I saw him hit her once before, and I tried to stop him this time."

Detective Lockhart says he declared:

"It was an accident. I had the gun in my hand and she grabbed at it. In the scuffle it went off and shot her in the leg. It is a repeating Winchester, and the explosion of one cartridge loaded it again and this caused the second shot.

"I went to my home to look for the man who had ruined it. I did not mean to shoot Sallie, and I hope she will get well."

Over at the hospital Mrs. Crutchfield said: "It was not an accident, and if they don't lock him up he will finish the job if he ever meets me again."

And here is the strange part of the whole proceeding: Crutchfield was not treated like the ordinary criminal. In fact, he had the liberty of the city. He was not locked in a cell, but was permitted to engage a special policeman at his own expense to accompany him about town, "buying" for his friends in the clubs and cafes, and attending to his own business as a cotton oil broker.

Meanwhile the wife that had been maimed was fighting for her life at the Grady Hospital. Gangrene had set in. Her life hung in the balance. The surgeons shook their heads. It was a toss-up whether the wounded woman would live or die.

Public sentiment was with the wife. So Crutchfield's privileges were curtailed and he was sent to jail—the "Tower." But even here he was not locked in a cell, and there is likelihood of a police investigation as to why he was not.

Instead, Crutchfield was assigned to a sunny room. He has fitted it up as a combination library and sitting-room—this man who had his awful vengeance. There his stenographers report to him every day. He dictates his letters and cleans up his day's business, and after that he reads and smokes at ease. He has been allowed a big graphophone, and he has one hundred odd records of the latest songs and marches.

Likes Suggestive Songs.

"I Had Rather Be on the Outside Looking In Than on the Inside Looking Out" is the favorite tune with Crutchfield, and the other prisoners along his corridor enjoy it as much as he does.

"Rather suggestive, eh?" is the salutation given to callers when they enter while this song is being played, and he usually switches to another tune, "A-Lookin' Out."

The latest of his collection has just arrived. It is from "The Spring Chicken" and is entitled "They Sold Me a Lemon in the Garden of Love, Where They Told Me the Peaches Grew."

The climax came the other day, when the surgeons said that Mrs. Critchfield would get well, and that her husband could apply for bail. He at once decided to celebrate.

"Call up the best caterer in town," he ordered of his jailers. "Have a 'possum supper, and plenty of ale and cider."

They had it in the jail all right. The news of the feast to come was published in the afternoon papers, and two women admirers of the man who had his "vengeance" sent big frosted cakes as an addition to the repast.

When supper time came a large table was brought into Crutchfield's room and the prisoner-guests and several outsiders filed in for the fun and feasting. The man who had his vengeance did the honor.

Dr. O. H. Shyder, charged with selling liquor on Sunday, was the first guest to arrive.

He was followed by Earnest Naylor, charged with being a participant in the riot on that eventful Saturday night in Atlanta when sixteen negroes were killed. J. F. Clemmons, held on the same charge, followed.

Night Jailer Walter Johnson came next, to give an official tone to the party. John Dorsey, "the best trusty in Georgia," in charge of the jail laundry, next in importance, took his place. Three Ohio business men, two from Dayton and one from Springfield, who had made business appointments with Crutchfield before he was arrested, arrived in Atlanta that day, and hearing of his plight, called at his jail room, attended to the business under consideration and remained to enjoy the supper with their host.

A "TURNED DOWN" PLATE.

Crutchfield made the ninth member of the party, and insisted on "turning down" an empty plate.

Whether this was a tribute to his wife or some visitor who did not arrive is not known.

While the revelry was at its height Mrs. Crutchfield was moaning on her couch in the hospital. She will soon be out now, crippled for life. Crutchfield was asked if he had not intended to cripple her in exactly the way he did.

"No," said he. "I didn't. I never said that, but I do know a friend who has lost both his legs. You just call up the hospital where they took him and see if she didn't go there and nurse him when he was hurt."

And that is where this case of latter-day revenge stands now. There will be two trials—a criminal one for felonious assault and another for divorce. Much that will startle will be brought out then.

But, no matter who wins or loses, all Atlanta is saying, "What a vengeance!"

SNOWFALL IN THE SAHARA DESERT

Last winter was very severe in Sahara. The courier service was interrupted for many days after Feb. 5 on account of bad weather. Snow fell on February 10 to the south and southwest of Wargla and on February 5th it snowed at El Golea from 6 a. m. to 3 p. m., and on the sixth all day with few interruptions. The depth of the snowfall was four or five centimeters (nearly two inches). The northern limit of this snowstorm was El Khou, and it extended through the region occupied by Fort [illegible] to the Guarara group of oases, the southern limit being near [illegible]. On the morning of February 6th the region around Timmimun was covered with three to four centimeters of snow. The oldest inhabitants of El Golea say they never knew snow to fall there before.—Bulletin American Geographical Society.

NEW YORK'S OLDEST BENEVOLENT SOCIETY

Albany, N. Y., has a prosperous St. Andrew's Society of 120 Scotchmen and sons or grandsons of Scotchmen. It has recently acquired a collection of over 1500 rare and choice books on Scottish subjects, and it may be worth adding that this is the oldest benevolent society in the capital city of New York State.

Small Willie—"Oh, that's a telescope."

Little Margie—"What's it good for?"

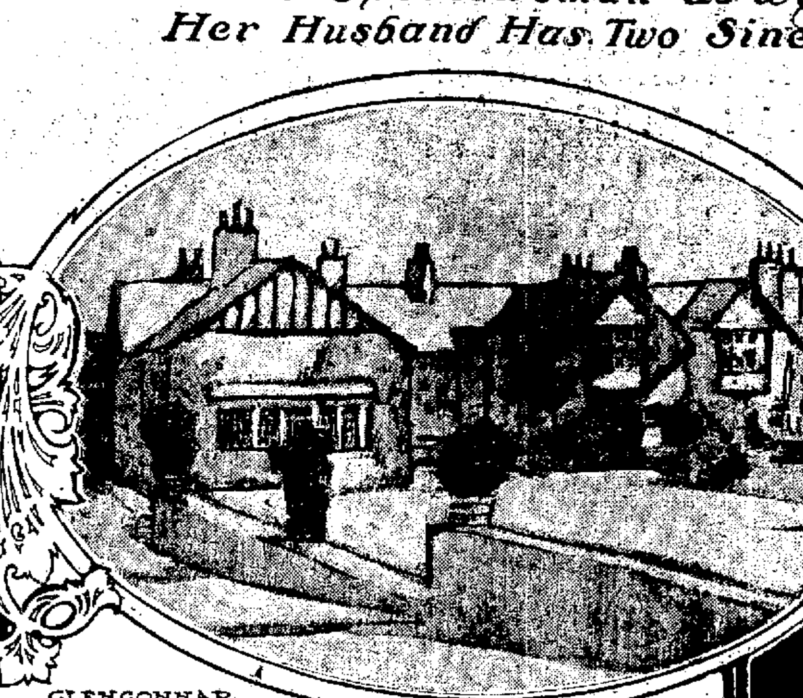
A Titled Woman Carpenter.

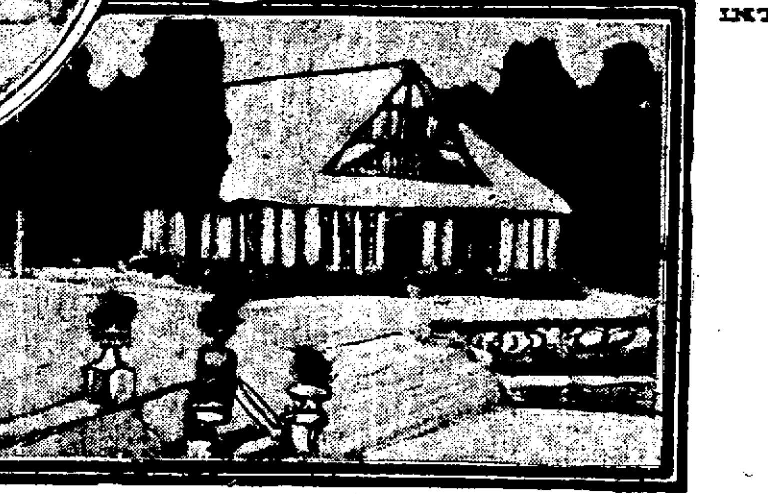
Lady Colebrooke Has Her Own Workshop—Artist and Sportswoman As Well as Artisan—Her Husband Has Two Sinecures.

LADY COLEBROOKE



GLENGONNAR HOUSE

INTERIOR OF THE SHOP



LADY COLEBROOKE'S CARPENTER SHOP

Lady Colebrooke, who entertained King Edward recently at Glengonnar castle, on the banks of the Clyde, is a very versatile person, says a contributor to the Boston Herald. She is a carpenter who makes screens and tables with her own hands, she drives a four-in-hand, she has driven a Russian droshky with three horses abreast, she is a sculptor, she paints portraits and has a studio in Paris, and she is one of the leading political hostesses of Great Britain.

For a number of years her own carpentry shop has been one of the sights of Glengonnar. Here she works for hours every day, but always finding leisure to encourage in others the industry she herself possesses. She maintains a school for carpentry at Abington, near her husband's Scotch seat, where she instructs the children of their tenants in useful arts.

It is said that she hopes to revive the glories of the political salon. Certainly, during the past session of Parliament she entertained brilliantly and valiantly in the Liberal cause. Stratford House, Lord and Lady Colebrooke's London home, is celebrated for its Wedgewood hall, its rooms of panelled mahogany, and its fine collection of Battersea enamel snuffboxes.

Not since Disraeli's time has a woman taken such an active part in inner political circles as did Lady Colebrooke while Lord Roseberry was in power. Even now she goes about championing the ex-premier's cause. Society credits this talented and fascinating woman with several defections which have occurred from Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman's section of the Liberal party.

Lady Colebrooke is gifted with rare intelligence and an excellent voice; she can be seen at all the principal race meetings and social gatherings, and the extent of her political friendships can be judged from the fact that on one occasion after a large reception to the Liberal league she stayed at the Duke of Devonshire's for the Derby races.

Few Englishmen in public life are more widely known in America in a social sense than Lord Colebrooke, who for many years was in the habit of spending his winters in New York and at Aiken, usually as the guest of the late William C. Whitney, of whom he was a close friend. His wife is one of the many daughters of the late Lord Alfred Paget, and a sister, therefore, of General Arthur Paget, married to the daughter of the late Mrs. Paan Stevens, and a sister, too, of Almeric Paget married to Pauline Whitney, and of Sydney Paget, well known on the American turf as manager of William C. Whitney's and James B. Haggin's great racing establishment.

He holds the office of "His Majesty's Lord High Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland." During that fortnight the lord er. For a fortnight each May the general assembly of the church of Scotland is in session at Edinburgh, in one of the great halls of Holyrood Palace, under the presidency of a peer of the realm, holding a patent from the King as his lord high commission-high commissioner enjoys altogether viceregal honors. He is received on his arrival in the Scottish capital by its municipal dignitaries, headed by the lord provost and by the lord lieutenant of the county, and then, escorted by cavalry, drives in state carriages, with postillions, through streets lined with troops, to Holyrood Palace, where he is quartered during his two weeks' stay.

Like the viceroy of Ireland and the princes of the reigning house, he is addressed as "Sir," and he is also accorded the predicate of "Your Grace!" Not merely men, but women as well, are expected to rise from their seats when he enters a room, and to remain standing until he bids them be seated. He has a large staff of lords and gentlemen-in-waiting, while his wife has her maids of honor.

On the first day he holds a levee at the palace, which is attended by all the principal dignitaries, and also by the great nobles of Scotland. He then proceeds, with much military state and ceremonial pomp, to the ancient Cathedral of St. Giles, where a short service is held. Thence he goes to the general assembly of the church of Scotland, where he presents his commission, while the guns of the Castle of Edinburgh fire a royal salute.

To the assembly come representatives, clergymen and laymen from every presbytery in Scotland, and their deliberations take place not only during the day, but also, after an interval, in the evening. The members of the assembly are accompanied to Edinburgh by their wives and daughters, and for 14 days the Athens of the north is given up to entertainments in all forms, sacred and secular.

Prayer meetings and at homes, breakfast and dinner parties, long-drawn-out luncheons and afternoon teas succeed one another without interruption, while flirtations and engagements are frequent.

With all this round of gayety, much solid business is done in the assembly. Really good speeches are made; genuine schemes for the welfare of the people at home and abroad are reviewed, revised or started, and discipline and order are enforced on pastors and people.

Every day the lord high commissioner presides over the assembly until the luncheon hour. Then, after he has performed a round of official duties, such as visiting public institutions, inspecting troops and receiving deputations, while his wife gives garden parties, he entertains every evening fully a hundred guests at dinner in the great picture gallery, the dinner being followed by levees and drawing rooms.

The dinner is always rather an imposing function, and is marked by a good deal of ceremony. While it lasts military bands play in the quadrangle of the palace. Before the company rises from the long table, 15 stalwart pipers march around it, playing lustily, and stepping as only Highland pipers can.

At the end of the second round, Lady Colebrooke rises, and, followed by all the other women present, leaves the hall, preceded by the pipers. The men remain for some time at the table, over the wine.

The apartment in which these banquets take place occupies the whole length of the first floor over the piazza, on the north side of the court, with which it communicates by a great staircase. The gallery is lighted by 12 windows, three of which are at the east and nine at the south side. Its walls are adorned with no less than 111 pictures of the kings of Scotland, from the mythical times of Fergus I. down to the time of the revolution. Few of them are genuine, although some may have been copied from the originals. But the collection, such as it is, was made 200 or 300 years ago.

For his services during this fortnight the lord high commissioner receives pay to the tune of $10,000, but, as a general rule, his expenses amount to about five times as much. Lord Levin, who figured as lord high commissioner for so many years in succession, was wont to declare that it cost him $50,000 on each occassion over and above what he received from the crown.

Some comment was excited by the King's choice of Lord Colebrooke for the post, owing to the fact that he is not a Scotch peer, but a peer of the United Kingdom, and likewise because his family hailed originally from the county of Kent instead of from the "Land o' Cakes." But the Colebrookes have been settled for several generations in Scotland, and Lord Colebrooke's country seat, as well as all his estates, are situated at Abington, in Lanarkshire.

Lord Colebrooke is also one of the King's lords in waiting, and as such is part of the royal household. There are eight of these lords in waiting, and with the exception of Lord Suffield, who has been a member of the suite of Edward VII. ever since the latter's marriage, 43 years ago, they all change with the administration. There is always one, and sometimes there are two, in attendance upon the King, in London, at Windsor, at Balmoral and whenever he travels abroad otherwise than incognito, their duties being shared by a gentleman in waiting, who is almost invariably an equerry. But the King dispenses with the services of a lord in waiting when he is at Sandringham and when he lays aside his royal rank while on the continent.

The duties are not arduous. They consist in driving out with him, and in acompanying him to dinners and entertainments, in attendance upon him at all official and state functions and in representing him at funerals, both at home and abroad. Moreover, when a foreign sovereign or scion of any reigning family comes to visit the Court of St. James, one of the King's lords in waiting is delegated to act as the escort of the distinguished guest, usually receiving from the latter, in recognition of his services, an order of knighthood, a jewelled snuffbox, a gem-studded cigar case or some other costly souvenir, which is in many cases converted into cash after a decent interval by the recipient.

The lords in waiting usually take turns of duty of a month each, and in addition to the prestige of the office enjoy emoluments to the extent of about $3000 each as well as all sorts of privileges, such as, for instance, immunity from jury duty and fom seving as sheriff of a county.

Derelict Old Women in London City

"To me the sadest of all London sights is its derelict old women," said a traveler recently. "They include the street hawkers, dustbin rakers and the pathetic bundles of unsavory rags that cower on the steps of churches and silently appeal for alms.

"It is estimated that in the main or old section of the city there are 800 or more old women of from 60 to 80 years, who are absolutely friendless and entirely dependent on their own efforts for support.

"These poor old creatures have, so far as wage-earning is concerned, reached the lowest possible grade in the ranks of the workers. When they get past working they begin to beg, and that, with all its risks, is often a more remunerative employment. Their different 'trades' include washing, house cleaning, shop scrubbing and rag picking from the dustbins of the city.

"In the seasons, some go pea shelling or walnut picking at Covent Garden, and perhaps are able to make 20 or 25 cents a day. To earn this pittance the old women turn out of bed at 3 o'clock in the morning and drag their feeble bodies across London to Covent Garden, there to sit and shell until half past eleven or twelve.

"A clean and thorough washer can get 50 cents a day—this is, for doing what is known as a 'day's wash.' She must be at her employer's house by 7 o'clock in the morning, and immediately on her arrival she is faced by the accumulated dirty linen of a family, which has been saved up for a month.

"To pay 50 cents for washing more than once a month would be wicked waste, and as the linen when it goes into the copper 'is the color of your coat, sir,' as one old woman remarked, the amount of strenuous labor entailed may be imagined.

"The day's washing finishes at 6 in the evening, but the washer is expected to return next morning for a couple of hours to finish off the 'coloreds' left over from the previous day.

"Of course, this makes it impossible for her to get any further employment that day, so that the 50 cents a day really becomes only 25 cents when the matter is looked at from the washer's point of view.

"Fifty cents is the top rate; but when the 'casual washer' is taken in to do the washing she is frequently engaged at from 12 to 25 cents a day. Of course, the washing is by no means so well done by a casual as by a regular woman.

"About 9 o'clock in the morning other old women hobble down the various streets of Whitechapel, and residents may be seen at their doors calling to them as they pass: "You come clean my house?" 'You clean my window?' I want my shop done,' and in reply to the question of 'How much?' the careful one will offer 10 or 12 cents, acording to the size of the place to be scrubbed, whether four, six, or eight rooms. Here, again, the stronger woman gets a bigger price than the decrepit old soul.

"Picking over the dustbins which are placed outside city warehouses is the lowest form of occupation. An industrious woman can thus earn 12 to 15 cents a day; but an old woman who is reduced to this employment can rarely carry enough of the refuse (rags, cards, bits of string, etc.) to bring in more than 8 cents a day.

"There is one other trade, the costermongering business. A cheerful old dame of 70 years said that she was at the market at 5 o'clock, and picked up a few greens and lettuces cheap. These she sold to the poorer folks on the south side of the river at a profit. She said that she always had enough by her to pay for her bed and a cup of tea. She had rarely made more than 25 cents a day, and frequently nothing!

"Many of these old folks exist on their 8 or 10 cents a day—4 cents for bed, 2 cents for tea and bread and butter, 2 cents for soup at night and 1 cent for luxuries. The street hawker seldom buys anything away from the lodging-house.

"There are in various parts of London common lodging-houses for women solely, but only in one or two instances have charitable organizations laid themselves out to specialize for these poor old creatures."

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT THE MYSTIC PHENOMENA OF OCEAN WAVES

There is a distinct fascination about the subject of sea waves. And this fascination is naturally confined to the question of their height, since in the measure of its altitude only does a billow appeal to the fancy.

That distinguished French savant, M. Bertin, has lately been discussing ocean waves. What he has to say is the outcome of a lifetime of close observation. Therefore, he is able to tell us certain facts, at any rate, which had heretofore been matters either of conjecture or doubt.

Probably on no subject does there exist a greater degree of misconception than the height to which the sea mounts during a tempest. Two conditions are largely responsible for this. The first is the deceptive appearance of waves when viewed from the deck of a laboring vessel. The second is the exaggeration of writers about the sea.

The biggest seas are not encountered in the hearts of the ocean. In proportion as soundings are deep, the period of a wave is long. That is to say, it gains in length and loses in height. The longest billow of which M. Bertin has record had a period of 23 seconds in its roll, and its length was more than a mile.

On the other hand, the height of this billow, from hollow to peak, did not greatly, if at all, exceed forty feet. M. Bertin admits, however, that to a spectator on the deck of a ship it would have looked immeasurably taller, which effect he attributes to the circumstances of viewing it from an inclined plane, beyond the depressed end of which the advancing wall of water would seem to tower like a vast liquid acclivity.

Sailors do not measure a wave by its height but by its weight, hence the familiar expression, "a heavy sea." It is not the towering crest that does the damage, but the momentum of great volume. At the same time, it is true to say that the one is virtually inseparable from the other.

The heaviest seas in the world run off the Cape of Good Hope, where the billows have an unbroken circle, and chase the globe around. But when he comes to record the highest stormwave in his experience, as distinct from volcanic or tidal disturbances, we find that M. Bertin approaches very much nearer to home than we should have suspected.

A great Atlantic roller, disporting itself on top of between 2000 and 3000 fathoms of water, will completely change its character on coming into shallower soundings. The drift is curtailed and the crest becomes peaked up.

Near the Eddystone lighthouse, where the depth steeps within the range of but a few miles from 200 fathoms to 30 fathoms, M. Bertin says that the sea has been known to heap up into a solid wall of green water to a height of 33 meters—in other words, more than 100 feet. Such a procession of billows bearing down upon the famous lighthouse would leave nothing but its lantern visible above their frothing ridges.

The expression "green water," or "green sea," by the way, is used to denote the actual wave body, as distinguished from the spray which it may throw up on breaking. Thus the celebrated St. Helena rollers measure no more than about 15 feet of green water, but on bursting they will fling their crystalline showers to a height of substantially over 100 feet.

Although no hard and fast rule can be laid down upon the subject, it may be taken that the billows raised by an average "heavy gale," such as might be encountered in crossing the Atlantic during the winter, would have a normal height from hollow to crest of about 40 feet, and a period of about 18 seconds, giving a length of drift of some 1500 feet.

If a big ship were driven at all hard against such a sea it would smother her, causing her to labor so heavily that her decks would be untenable, and much of her top hamper swept away. On the other hand, if she were humored and allowed to take up her own position, she would probably fall off into the trough and override the surges as buoyantly as a sea gull.

SIMPLE HOME-MADE CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

A mop hearth brush is something that will always find a welcome in households that boast of open fires. Take a round piece of wood of the desired length (often a bought brush which is worn out has a handle that is still in good condition and you could ask nothing better) and to one end attach a mop made of loops of soft woolen materials. At the top another loop of ribbon or braid, tied in a bow, will serve for hanging the mop in a convenient place.

Playing cards get soiled if left loose and the pasteboard cases in which they come soon become torn and useless. A little case fashioned after the pasteboard one and built of canvas or linen with an edge of silk cording, makes a very convenient receptacle for them. A little handle at the top is an addition, and the word "Cards" embroidered on one side in a contrasting color gives a pretty finish.

A pocket companion made of canvas or linen in the shape of an ordinary letter case would be appreciated by some people. The end flap folds over and fastens with a button or ribbons. There is a pocket for a tiny mirror and straps to hold a knife, a corkscrew, a pair of scissors and the other small matters which are so often needed and which are apt to be lost if left separate.

A convenient medicine case for the woman who is always from home with children is made in the following way: Take two pieces of linen and cut them into somewhat the shape of a blunt-end four-pointed star whose oblong center is about 6 by 9 inches. Now cut a piece of cardboard into the same shape as the linen, but just a trifle smaller. Cover the cardboard with oiled silk and then with the linen, binding the edges with narrow red braid to make all secure and give a finish.

This makes the outside of the case. Next take a piece of linen fifteen inches in length, bind it with the same braid, and sew each end to the oblong center, about an inch from either side. Stitch this piece of linen across at intervals to make five pockets to hold the bottles of simple remedies that are most apt to be required. Small flap pockets to hold court plaster, bandages, etc., may be sewed on the inner side of the top and bottom star point flaps, which fold under when the case is closed, of course.

Woman Who Prefers Blacksmithing to Teaching

Swinging heavy sledges, battling with red-hot iron and shoeing fractious horses, this is the way Mrs. Philo P. Wilcox of College View, Neb., spends the working day. And she likes it, too. She is, so far as known, the only woman engaged in the blacksmith's trade in this country.

Mrs. Wilcox is a little woman. She is scarcely five feet tall, and weighs less than a hundred pounds. Her voice is soft and gentle, and her conversation shows the signs of culture. She chooses her words with care, and her face is often lighted up with a sweet smile.

Mrs. Wilcox was engaged in removing rusty burrs from some old bolts when seen at her shop. She wore a calico dress open at the throat and a leather apron.

Mrs. Wilcox picked up a ten-pound hammer and began straightening an iron rod. The ease with which she handled the heavy hammer was amazing in a person of her size and weight. Apparently she swung it without any effort at all.

A farmer came in with a fractious young horse to be shod. Mrs. Wilcox got out her box of farrier's tools.

"This is a branch of the business of which I am not so fond," she said. "But it has to be done, and I do it. I'd be a fine blacksmith if I couldn't shoe a horse."

With this cheerful philispophy the little woman went to work and the job was soon done to everybody's satisfaction.

In addition to these accomplishments Mrs. Wilcox is an expert sign painter. She does the lettering for the entire town whenever anything of the sort is to be done. She has four sturdy children and she is the idol of her husband, who never wearies telling of her many accomplishments. fusi-upuntha.' gh .

HOME FOR CLUBWOMEN.

The Woman's Club of San Bernardino is busily arranging for an elaborate programme for the opening of the new clubhouse, which has just been finished. Opening day is set for next Wednesday.

The clubhouse occupies an excellent site on Sixth street, just east of F, and faces the Sixth street park. The building is large and roomy, and has been carefully arranged to meet every possible demand that might be reasonably expected of an up-to-date clubhouse.

Under direction of Mrs. McGehee, former president of the club, the building movement was taken up and before she was out of office she and her able assistant had raised a substantial building fund. Her successor continued the good work and a building costing in the neighborhood of $12,000 is the result.

BOSTON HEIRESS TO WED COUNT.

It is understood that the engagement will soon be publicly announced of Miss Cornelia Thayer, eldest daughter of Nathaniel Thayer, and Count von Moltke, a Danish nobleman, a distant connection of the late Von Moltke, the great German soldier.

Miss Thayer is a tall blonde, belongs to the Vincent club and devotes much time to the patients at the children's hospital, of which her grandfather, Nathaniel Thayer, was one of the founders.

Count von Moltke and Miss Thayer met in Europe about a year ago and he has been very devoted in his attentions. A short time ago he passed a number of weeks at the Thayer estate in Lancaster.

The count, who is tall and handsome, is a diplomat. No date has been set for the wedding.—Boston Post.

LATEST PHOTOGRAPH OF MRS ROBERT E. PEARY WHO ACCOMPANIED HER HUSBAND ON HIS FARTHEST NORTH EXPEDITION

"Mrs. Christopher Columbus discovered America in 1492."

It would look very odd in a text book. Yet at woman's present rate of progress in the field of exploration the children of the next generation may have a chance to study of new countries whose discoverers have been members of the gentler sex.

Not one, but half a dozen, women have lately figured in sensational and dangerous trips to little known or completely unknown parts of the world. They have been scaling mountains, pushing into the frozen North of the arctics and delving in deepest Asia and darkest Africa.

Mrs. Robert E. Peary, whose husband recently reported having gone closer to the North Pole than any other person, was with her husband on a previous journey when he touched his farthest point north up to that time. She has a child that was born in the arctics. Mrs. Peary is now anxiously awaiting the return of the lieutenant. She is determined to go with him on his next dash to the pole.

"I shall go with my husband on his next voyage to the pole just so far as I can stand the exposure and fatigue of the journey, and that means a long way," said Mrs. Peary.

She expressed more elation than disappointment over her husband's expedition, saying:

"I consider that he has virtually discovered the pole, and with the additional experience he has gained on this trip he will be able to reach the goal next time. I certainly shall encourage him to start again immediately, but I don't think that he needs any encouragement or prop to his courage; in fact, I know that now he has come so near the pole nothing on this earth can prevent his reaching it.

"When they realize what my husband has done and what credit he has reflected on his native land I am sure that his countrymen, if called upon, would incur the expense of another voyage and not make it necessary to call on his friends or any one organization. I am going to have him find that pole if I have to go the whole way with him myself."

HONEYMOON IN LABRADOR.

A woman, Mrs. Stephen P. M. Tasker, recently arrived at Fort Kimo, the first woman who had ever crossed the frozen wastes of northern Labrador. And she made the trip as a honeymoon adventure.

Another woman, Mrs. Hubbard, had gone into, but not across the same country. Mrs. Hubbard made the trip in search of her husband's ill-fated expedition.

Accompanied only by natives, Mary Kingsley pushed for long distances into the interior of the Niger country.

As for mountain climbing, the fair sex is actually beginning to distance mere man in daring.

The fame made by Miss Annie Peck as a mountain climber is world-wide. From the Materhorn to the Peruvian peaks there is scarcely a mountain she has not scaled.

Much was made of the recent exploit of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, when he went to the top of Mt. McKinley, some ten thousand feet high, but Miss Peck went to twice that altitude when she conquered Mt. Sorata, in Bolivia.

Another mountain climber, Miss F. Duncan, whose researches into Thibet took her across the Chang-la pass, which is nearly 18,000 feet above the sea, 1400 feet higher than any pass crossed by the British in the Lhasa expedition, was the first European woman to conquer this pass.

Mrs. Fannie Bullock Workman is another woman whose iron nerves are never so thoroughly under control as when she is making some perilous ascent. She has to her credit a number of marvelous ascents in the Himilayas.

Mrs. Laura Fitzgerald, an American woman, picked out as a task worthy her mettle a tour of exploration into the great Atlas Mountains, which have many peaks towering from 10,000 to 14,000 feet high.

Mrs. Marshall Field, widow of Chicago's millionaire merchant, and Mrs. Potter Palmer recently startled Geneva by attempting to scale Mt. St. Moriz in an automobile, and they just missed succeeding, being three-quarters of the way up when the machine broke down under the strain. No motorist had ever reached the top of this mountain, and only a few men had ever been daring enough to attempt it on foot.

These few random instances show the kind of daring the modern woman has and prove her qualifications for the difficult role of explorer.

IS IT HER CURIOSITY?

Perhaps it is woman's natural curiosity that gives her the desire to go to countries that civilized mankind does not known, or perhaps it is just a love of adventure, but the fact remains that every year more and more women are devoting their energies to this field once monopolized by man, and only brave man at that.

The case of Mrs. Stephen M. Tasker is an excellent instance. She is a Philadelphia society woman, and she and her husband are both sufficiently comfortable in this world's goods to have spent their honeymoon where they willed, but Mrs. Tasker insisted that the only trip she wanted was one that would take her as near the north pole as possible.

On July 11 last Tasker, with his wife and a couple of Indian guides, started for the blankest spaces of the map. From northern Ontario the whole party traveled in a canoe nineteen feet long by three feet beam, starting from Missanable on the Canadian Pacific Railway. They paddled down the Missanable and Moose rivers to Moose Factory, where they spent ten days, and then took the Hudson Bay steamer to Charlton Island, which is the port for the Hudson Bay steamers on their annual trips.

Thence they continued in the small steamer to Rupert House, just north of James Bay, where there is an excellent harbor, and followed the shore up to the great Whale River, a Hudson Bay post. There Tasker's party again took to the canoe and paddled three days northward to Richmond Gulf, on the east coast of the bay. Thence they struck northeast along the Ouashinitan river, and, following this river and a chain of lakes, reached the Upper Clear Water river to Clear Water Lake, which Tasker said was so big they could not see across it and could get no clear idea of its real area.

A further paddle brought the party to Seal Lake, which is about forty miles long, and here they found themselves at the height of land, sloping away to the northeast corner of the continent. After a lot of hard portaging and traversing small lakes the party reached another lake in country which is marked on the map with a significant blank, finding this lake was the headwater of a stream running into Coksok river. After following this they reached Ft. Chimo, one of the outlying posts of the Hudson Bay. This point they finally reached, after twenty-five days' journey through the unbroken wilderness of Labrador. This was found to be a much better route than that taken by Elmer Hubbard when that intrepid explorer lost his life by starvation. Tasker's head guide, an Indian called George Elson, accompanied Hubbard on his first journey, and also Mrs. Hubbard when she made the trip after her husband's death. Tasker's party had no difficulty getting food, living chiefly on ptarmigan, spruce partridge and brook and lake trout. They encountered numbers of caribou, but killed few, as they could not carry them along.

On reaching the ocean at Ft. Chimo they took the Labrador coasting steamer to the mouth of Hamilton Inlet, where, by good luck, they fell in with a trading steamer from Newfoundland, and soon reached St. John, N. F. After going from Newfoundland to Port Au Basque they crossed the straits and took the Inter-colonial for Montreal, after making a 4000-mile circuit of one of the least known sections of the continent.

When this wonderful journey was ended, Mrs. Tasker, as though to show that she was none the worse for it, accompanied her husband on a moose hunting trip. Mrs. Tasker is now but 23 years old.

CLIMBS THE HIMALAYAS.

Those tourists who think they do something wonderful in climbing the well-known summits of the Alps in the care of experienced and competent guides, can be made to feel very modest by reading some of the exploits of Mrs. Bullock Workman of Worcester, Mass., who, with her husband, Dr. Workman, pushed her way into the region of the Himalayas, and there went to the very roof of the world.

The pair climbed peaks that had never known a human foot before. On these trips there were no villages and hospices nearby, no corps of guides. The mountaineers had to venture, self-provided, into the savage and trackless wastes.

Mrs. Workman is a daughter of ex-Governor Bullock of Massachusetts. She has a handsome home in Worcester, but so great is her enthusiasm for mountain climbing that the intervals when she is at home are rare.

In 1903 the Workmans captured the world's record for mountain scaling by going to the top of one peak 22,285 feet high. This is more than four miles in the air, and what it means to be at this awful height can only be understood by those who have had some experience in this most dangerous form of sport.

At 21,000 feet animals die, the air is so rare that none but the trained mountain climber can breathe, alcohol lamps refuse to burn, and the thermometer gets so far below the zero mark that it stops registering.

It has been to the investigation of such heights as these that the exploration mania has carried Mrs. Workman.

She and her husband were the first to explore the Chonggo Loongma glacier, in India, which feat attracted so much attention among geographers that it won the Workmans the honor of a complimentary breakfast in France.

Mrs. Workman made the first three record ascents for women in India in the Karakoruam, and her work had serious results of such value that she was invited to lecture before geographical and scientific societies in France, England, Germany, Italy and the United States.

In the last stages of the famous ascent of the Koser Gunge, Mrs. Workman had the experience of sleeping 20,000 feet in the air. She relates that it was impossible to slumber for more than a few minutes at a time, as the intense difficulty of breathing awakened her continually.

During part of the final stages of this ascent the Workmans had to go along without a guide, for the overpowering mountain sickness had claimed victims of the most of the coolies, none of whom can get along much above 15,000 feet. Frequently the daring woman sank up to her waist in snow, and once went over her head and nearly smothered.

Yet the next day after the most difficult of ascents she was in shape again to continue.

Commercially, woman has been making inroads on almost every masculine calling, now it looks as though she had completed her onslaughts by coping with him in the most dangerous of his pursuits.

WOMEN EXPLORERS.

Commercial conquest has not been enough for the modern American woman, says the Indianapolis Star. She has now become an explorer, and outdoes man in daring. Mrs. Stephen P. M. Tasker, a Philadelphia society woman, recently finished the first journey across Labrador ever taken by a woman. Mrs. Peary was companion of her husband in dash for the North Pole and is determined to try again. Mary Kinsley helped the world's geography with her researches in the Niger country. Miss Duncan, Miss Peck and Mrs. Workman are marvelous mountain climbers.

BETTY MARTIN INTERVIEWS ROBERT EDESON "STRONGHEART"

"I think an interview should go bang! bang! every word count for something," declared Mr. Maynard Waite, the advance man of "Strongheart," bringing his two fists together with a decisive thump.

"I think so, too" But thinking is one thing, and getting a bang, bang talk quite another proposition, occasionally one encounters a case of can sing and won't. My thoughts seemed to communicate themselves to my companion. Mr. Waite is a gentle-mannered man, with blue eyes, a tiny mustache and an English accent He hastened to reassure me.

EDESON NOT OFFISH.

"Oh, you won't find Mr. Edeson hard to talk to I remember a funny incident that happened once in New Orleans, when Dorothy Dix went to see him. He asked her question after question, and when the article appeared it had this heading—Dorothy Dix Interviewed by Robert Edeson!' It was funny.

HERO AS A FOOTBALL MAN.

A sort of press the button, thought I, but was prevented from replying by the sudden opening of the door beyond, disclosing a room flooded with light.

It revealed Robert Edeson in full football togs, a half-smoked cigarette between his lips

"You don't mind coming in here?" he questioned, daubing a bit of white on his right cheek as he gave a sweeping glance over the array of paints, pots, brushes, mirrors and motley wearing apparel

"Not in the least." I seated myself in the chair he indicated, and looking critically at the make-believe educated Indian before me, almost unable to realize that he was but an imitation, so admirable was the disguise close at hand.

ENTHUSIASTIC OVER 'FRISCO.

"You'll find Mr. Edeson an enthusiast over San Francisco," remarked Mr. Waite, preparatory to departure.

"Are you?" I turned to the star attraction.

"I should say I am. I never saw anything like the spirit over there!" The half-back raised himself to full height as he said this. "It's wonderful, wonderful—no crying or lamenting—only going ahead. I don't see what those northern cities—Portland, Seattle—and Seattle's a splendid place, you know—full of push and go—" Mr. Edeson's eyes shone with earnestness as he warmed to the subject—"mean by crying down San Francisco."

WHAT HE THINKS OF OAKLAND.

"But Oakland, what do you think of it? We who live over here are quite as enthusiastic as the San Franciscans."

"It's great, too. San Francisco's going to be a greater and more magnificent city than ever before. That means mutual betterment Let me see—you've increased something over 80,000 in the last four years, haven't you?" Mr. Edeson, remember, was here something like four years ago in Richard Harding Davis' play of "Soldiers of Fortune"

"Yes," I replied, hesitatingly, being rather shy on statistics and innocent of the fact that an increase of over 100,000 was nearer the mark.

JUST LIKE BROOKLYN.

"Oakland will be like Brooklyn—the home town—the place to live in Do you know I love the Western spirit."

He looked as he spoke as though he might well belong to our land of figs, vine and sunshine, so I inquired regarding his native heath.

BORN IN SUNNY SOUTH.

"Louisiana—New Orleans is my birthplace. Ah, the Southerners are the true Americans. I'm a rank American!"

"You certainly are," I admitted, meaning nothing other than assent. But Robert Edeson is quick.

He glared at the soiled football rig, then at his bronzed arms, and finally into the mirror opposite, which disclosed the strong features in their Indian disguise, and laughed before replying, "I certainly am!" Then he continued:

The people out here are more like Southerners than any other In fact, they are a sort of combination of the South and West—they're great!" This last with emphasis. "I love it—this spirit of fight!"

"Second act!" announced the call boy, and once more Mr. Waite came to the rescue with a chair which he placed just out of the sight of the audience near the front of the stage.

From this vantage point could be seen the actors at close range, disclosing them all to be young, with small need of disguising their features. Billy, the center, has waving locks on top of his crown, and I noticed later on that one of the fair ladies addressed him as "father." Not that he stood in that close relationship, but rather that his portly figure and benignant aspect called forth the appellation.

Another change of costume ensued between the second and third acts, and this time Strongheart became the man of society, engaging in social functions with his white brothers. It's in the third act, isn't it, that he gets a call down when he is reminded that he's all right as a college companion and an athlete, but that when it comes to marrying one of the boy's sisters, that's another question? At any rate, he wears his immaculate evening dress with quite as much grace as the exceptional man, and really looked handsome in them, face to face.

GOT INSPIRATION FROM INDIAN.

"From Antoine Apache, an Indian. But I'd played the part a week before he saw it and confirmed my idea that I was right."

"Antoine Apache; I've heard of him."

"He's a Carlisle Indian, full-blooded. A nephew of the famous Chief Geronimo. He's down in Los Angeles now, in charge of that allied arts and crafts exhibition.

"And your method of speaking?"

'I studied that all out. It's just the same as any other foreign tongue. Take a Russian, or a Frenchman, or any one learning to speak English; they pronounce every word slowly and with the utmost precision. It's just the same with an Indian."

Mr. Edeson did not say so, but he has not only acquired the method of pronounciation, but the tone of speech common to the red men.

PLAYED TO INDIANS.

"I had a most wonderful experience a year ago. I played Strongheart before the Carlisle Indians. It was the greatest evening in my life. I was so nervous!"

"Yes."

"And they gave me their approval. I never had such a night. It was wonderful."

Once more came the stage call, and again I waited until Strongheart had donned a plain dark sack suit, and lighted a cigar. This time when I entered he had a manuscript in his hand.

EDESON GETS NEW PLAY.

"I've just got a new play," he he remarked, turning over the pages, "I'm anxious to read it."

"Any good?" inquired I. always interested in the literary output.

"I don't know yet. I haven't had time to look it over. I hope so. It's one of your Western writers—Mary Austin."

"She's superb."

"And used to the Western life," interposed I. "Wasn't she collaberating with—"

"Elmer Harris," came the prompt reply. "I hope it's what I want." This with decision.

"But I thought that playe—what kind of a play are you looking for, Mr. Edeson?"

Both brown hands went out with despairing gesture. "Anything thoroughly American. I'm an American. and I want an American play. This Western atmosphere hasn't been touched. Why, the field is unbounded. I was talking to Stewart Edward White not long ago and he——"

"I reviewed one of his books the other day."

"You did? Which one?" demanded Edeson, with a promptness which knocked my memory gallywest.

"Indeed?"

A NEW FIELD FOR DRAMA

"Take civil engineering, for example: look at the vast achievements, the wonderful bridging and tunneling and other feats that have been accomplished—it hasn't been touched." Mr. Edeson walked about with decisive steps as he talked. and I acquiesced.

"Bah! playwrights sit up in the tenth story of a New York hotel and think they can absorb Western atmosphere!" ejaculated he, disdainfully, "when it's all about here waiting for somebody to take advantage of."

There was no gainsaying the statement, so I veered off on another tack.

"Your make-up is splendid. I'm rather familiar with Indians, and, really, at close quarters, I could hardly tell you from one." And I meant this. Not the smallest detail does Mr. Edeson omit.

ORIGINALITY ON MAKE-UP.

"I do my own make-up," replied he. "It's a great art, full of possibilities. You see, I have to simulate youth—I must avoid every appearance of age in this character."

"And how do you do it?"

"I shadow here, and put carmine alone here"—his supple fingers touched just below the eyes and then the cheek as he explained the mysteries of his complexion, while I looked at him wonderingly.

"Of course I paint—pictures, landscapes, portraits and things of that sort, and it's a great aid in making up. Ah, such an art!" continued he, with enthusiasm; "a line here, a stroke there, makes age; another line here, and you are young again!"

Then he went on to explain a number of other things incidental to the Indian make-up, in regard to the high cheek-bones and other racial characteristics.

"Now this wig," said he—

"Wig? I thought that was your own hair," exclaimed I, "and here I've been sitting opposite you looking straight at it."

"Why, no!" The actor smiled as he spoke—"my hair is light as your own—" my own, reader, is a muddy brown—" I glue it down right here"—his forefinger passed gently over the locks on each side of the part, "and here, just above the ear, is my own. "I color that to match the wig."

"But—not to be personal, Mr. Edeson, what is your natural complexion?"

HE ADMITS HAVING A COMPLEXION.

"Blonde?" ventured I.

For answer he rolled his shirtsleeve above the brown stain, disclosing a blue-veined arm.

"A demi-brunette?" I hazarded, remembering that his eyes were brown. He settled back in his chair with a laugh and a peculiar expression as he bent forward and gently shook his cigar ashes into a nearby tray before replying, 'Yes, I'm demi."

This closed the make-up incident, and I remarked that it was awfully cold behind the scenes.

"Terribly," said he. "I don't see how these poor girls stand it. I was in San Francisco today, looking over the new Columbia theater that's being built, and giving a few suggestions."

"What sort of a theater is it going to be?"

"Very good indeed." Here Mr. Edeson's gaze wandered about the little room in which he sat. "We actors and actresses don't ask much. A clean room, with an outside window for fresh air, plenty of hot and cold water, but above all, clenaliness," declared he, vigorously. "Some of the rooms are horrible that we get into Actually papered with this awful red paper that casts shadows all over one's face. I carry sheets about usually for my own convenience, and hang the walls with them.

"Does the play—any play—in your opinion, influence the people in the cast?"

"Of course it does. I have fifteen of the finest boys with me, and five of the sweetest girls you ever saw, and every member of the company is an athlete."

"Fourth act!" came the last call, and with a good-bye and, a parting handshake I vamosed from the world of make-believe.

OLGA NETHERSOLE, WHO WILL MAKE HER FIRST VISIT TO CALIFORNIA THIS SEASON APPEARING IN OAKLAND NEXT JANUARY AT THE MACDONOUGH

MISS GEORGIE COOPER AT YE LIBERTY

It is just seven years since the death of Augustin Daly. Mr. Daly was not only the greatest factor of his time in real dramatic art in America, but he left as well a permanent imprint on American theatricals everywhere. Players who were drilled in his famous stock company are now shining lights of "stardom." His methods, his manuscripts, his ideas, his innovations—all have become permanent stock factors in almost every American city, and the spiritual grasp of his long-dead hand is still strong in our amusement life.

No man is better qualified to give an intimate personal account of Mr. Daly's methods and work.

BY HOBART BOSWORTH.

Time has given a true perspective to those of us who were beneath his immediate eye, and we realize the qualities of the greatest stage manager, properly so-called, that this country has produced, a man whose influence upon our stage was paramount, and exists today as powerfully as during his life.

Throughout that time we who were subjected to his strict discipline saw him from the microscopic viewpoint only; we thought ourselves crushed beneath what seemed the tyranny of his decisions; were irritated by the subjection of our personalities to his automatic rulings, his strange, cold, yet marvellously magnetic nature; for it must be confessed the best of us have a rarely slighted estimate of our importance, and we could not appreciate his standards, nor would his nature permit him to explain them. If they were not seen, so much the worse for us. Now he looms large upon our retreating horizon, now I esteem him as the greatest man I ever knew. I joined him at his zenith when the "Taming of the Shrew," his greatest work—had just been produced, and, en passant, an incident of that time is very significant of the man. In engaging me he would listen to nothing of my previous theatrical experience, but wished to learn only of my family and religion, preferring, as I have thought, to work upon raw material, if only we were sound. He said, too, in that interview, that "genius was the power of work, and of little things." Surely he was a master in both.

During the ten full seasons that I was with him, he was my great enigma. In those days I should have said, "he is either the biggest little or the littlest big man I ever knew," for he was full of strange contradictions, beautiful acts of silent generosity offset by petty injustices. I left him playing practically the same parts with which I began, and all because I could not learn his one great inflexible rule that the individual must be subordinated to the whole. At the time I had a bitter sense of deep personal injury at his refusal to advance me, but that has changed to an actual admiration because I see now how he did not dare to entrust me with an important part, fearing that he could not suppress the ebullitions of my brute force, any my faculty of "getting out of the picture" by an exuberance of physical vitality that I took for acting, and that he begged me, in vain, to suppress; and I introduce this personal note because it exemplifies all that his art stood for. His great ideal was a perfectly proportionate whole, the keying of all individual efforts to one complete chord in which the relative parts were closely harmonized. He had the painter's gifts of taste, sense of color, and composition. They gave him his great success in Daly's theater when his beautiful, subdued, and artistic performances of the little, perfectly balanced German farces were like jewels flawlessly cut and facetted.

But fate works in strange ways, and his earnest efforts to develop a perfect company resulted in the blossoming of a talent so extraordinary, a personality so strong and so exquisite, that all his preconceived ideas gave way before it, and his later years were devoted to exploiting the most perfect comedienne that has graced the stage. Again, the trend of public taste toward the lighter forms of amusement defeated his high purposes, for the theater is the most expensive art in application, and to succeed it must be patronized; therefore the end found him devoting much of his energy to the production of pieces like the "Geisha," "Circus Girl" and "Runaway Girl," and it was to the success of these that he owed much of the estate he left, a bitter commentary upon his life work. But even here his ability showed itself in a charm and daintiness and suppression of the raucous low comedy element, overlaying all with the distinction that always resulted from the magic of his touch.

Distinction and proportion, those, it seems to me, are the true keynotes of his work. You felt them even in his lobby, his programmes and announcements, all of which were written by him, the music, as well as in the performances, and he, a deep reader of men, seemed to find the right ones to carry out his ideas. Who, for instance has ever written such perfect incidental music, in sweetness, and in character, as did Henry Widmer, who held the overture chair for many years, and until his untimely death. His music for the "Shrew" is incomparable.

At rehearsals, Mr. Daly was often capable, when the inspiration gripped him, of giving to his actors, remarkable illustrations of what he wished, his tall, round-shouldered figure, clumsy in itself expressing somehow, the exact thought in a manner that was illuminating. Yet again, at times he seemed to lose this faculty altogether, and could not explain what he wanted, bewildering the poor actors by shouts of "No, no! Not that way. Not that! etc." "Try again"—until we were helpless. He dominated us all absolutely. We might fight his autocracy, but there was no escape from it in his presence. Once, I remember, at a rehearsal of the "Inconstant," he lined us all up before the footlights, from the front where he sat, and after a long pause in which we felt his eyes upon us, he said quietly, but with withering scorn: "Ladies and gentlemen, this has been a damned bad rehearsal." That was all, but the lash of it stings my memory yet. It was the only time I ever heard him swear.

He was very cool, very distant, hedging himself about with formalities; he had a very large company of some hundred people, and order had to be maintained. His nature was aloof, and he would not rule by love: the alternative was fear, and espionage, and there were only too many sycophants to favor and tattle. These he used, but despised, and I fear his contempt for ordinary human nature was great. There has been much comment upon the rules he formulated for the governance of his company. Some were undoubtedly peculiar, but in the main they had but one purpose—to make his actors behave like gentlemen (even he sometimes failed), and to preserve the mystery which he felt should always surround the stage and its people. He would not permit us to seek newspaper notoriety, nor would he allow us to loaf on the "Rialto." There were some whom these restrictions galled, but if a man tried to be a gentleman, he could not cavil, nor complain that Mr. Daly's rules were harsh.

He was the first, so far as I know, to establish an "auxiliary corps" of young men and women who were treated with respect as embryotic artists, and who gave verisimilitude to the scenes in which "supers" ordinarily are used; and to these, as well as to the principals, were given three-year contracts, with the result that we were fused by time and training into an homogeneous mass, dovetailing perfectly because we understood each other's methods. Who that ever saw them will forget the delicious ensemble acting of the "big four," Rehan, Drew, Lewis and Mrs. Gilbert. Mr. Daly's innovations were many and transforming; his solid doors, staircases, beautiful settings with costly pictures and bric-a-brac—"boxed in sets," real windows, etc., giving an atmosphere to his stage rooms of being lived in, and a reality that astonished those who first saw them.

His authority was absolute, in every department. This many-sided man attended as directly to all the business details of the "front of the house" as to the performances. He seemed omnipresent, if a line slipped, a "gag" was sprung, he was sure to be there and hear it. His energy was enormous, his vitality bore any strain imposed upon it, his spirit rose superior to physical ills. In ten years he did not miss one day, and his day began by seven a. m., and finished only at midnight. Once in a hasty production of a "Midsummer Night's Dream," he did not leave the theater for five days, catching naps of an hour on the sofa in his beautiful office, and, through his indomitable energy, getting the production on smoothly in that time; rehearsals all day, and carpenters and "props" all night. Unsparing as he was in the demands he made on himself, he seemed not to realize the fatigues of less favored mortals, and has, on occasion, kept us at a dress rehearsal, without food, from 10 a. m. to within an hour of the first performance of an important play, and this not once or twice, but frequently.

Not long after I joined him, he sprained his ankle very badly, and the doctor insisted on rest. Mrs. Daly pulled on his Wellington boot, picked up a pillow, and went out upon the stage to rehearse instead, resting his foot upon the pillow as a concession. I have seen him in a moment of stage managerial inspiration, when that same boot had been worked half off to ease his foot, jump out of his great leather armchair with its gilt monogram, A. D.—to illustrate some movement, with the foot in the leg of the flopping boot, utterly oblivious of it for the moment. He was somewhat eccentric in dress, wearing always a "pepper and salt" suit and the famous Daly hat, but if he had no time for the niceties of the wardrobe, he respected its importance, and once he said to me, "always dress well, I don't judge you by your clothes, but the world will."

At another time he said with rather a bitter ring in his voice, "every man's hand is against me," but the situation I fancy gave him little concern, for he was tremendously independent, and realized the potentiality of his position. He was a fighter, diplomatic and of the velvet-clad, steel-clawed type by preference, but if it came to the arbitrament of blows he fought magnificently, in the open. No man seemed necessary to him. One by one the original company was depleted by death or resignation, but he seemed not to care. (what he actually did feel, no man knew, his reserve was impenetrable), for he remained the vital spark, and essence that gave life to the Daly company.

LAST NIGHT OF "STRONGHEART."

Tonight will be the last performance of Robert Edeson, the great American actor, in one of the greatest dramatic successes, "Strongheart." This piece has had a several years' run to crowded houses, and has been acknowledged by the most fastidious as one of the very best plays produced on the American stage. All those who desire a good play well played, and with a company whose actors are well picked and playing their part exceptionally well, don't want to overlook this last chance. There is no use dwelling on the piece, as much has been said and published about it. Go and see it, and then say it was fine.

"THE HEIR TO THE HOORAH."

Poster collectors are playing havoc with the advertising paper of "The Heir to the Hoorah." The dainty portraits of the infant playing with the blocks, and the breezy Chamberlain drawing of the stork carrying the baby in its beak, have caught the fancy of poster fiends to such a degree that it is difficult to keep them in the windows, where, according to the advertiser's idea, they are supposed to do the most good. "The Heir to the Hoorah" will be seen at the Macdonough theater, four nights and two matinees, commencing Thursday, December 13.

OLGA NETHERSOLE COMING.

Olga Nethersole's itinerary will include the south and west this season, in the course of which she will, of course, visit Oakland for one or possibly two weeks.

"MONTE CRISTO" WITH JAMES O'NEILL.

James O'Neill, America's foremost romantic actor, has announced that the forthcoming engagement at the Macdonough, Christmas week, will be his last in the famous old Dumas play, "Monte Cristo," in which he has appeared almost five thousand times. The production is new and the most spectacular ever given the playgoers, and the company is one of the largest and strongest, and includes among others the star's son, James O'Neill Jr.

"KOLB AND DILL" COMING.

"Kolb and Dill" will play at the Macdonough theater for one week, commencing December 17, which news will no doubt be an agreeable surprise to all lovers of fun shows and light opera.

MAXINE ELLIOTT.

Maxine Elliott will be seen in her latest success for three nights at the Macdonough theater, commencing December 10.

"THE AMERICAN GIRL."

The attraction at the Macdonough theater for the week of December 3, with matinees Saturday and Sunday, is one that will please lovers of comedy drama at popular prices. W. J. Elleford offers the Elleford Big Company in the pleasing American comedy-drama, "The American Girl," a play that has made good over the eastern circuit for the last two seasons. It has never been presented on the coast, and has never been seen at these prices. The same people that made the summer engagement of this attraction such a winner will be seen in the production: Meta Chamberlain, Mattie Lloyd Luce, Anna Dodge, Alpha Gertrude Clark, True Boardman, Lloyd Edwards, George Hernandez, William Marion, Clarence Ferguson, William Daull and Joseph Roberts. The Osborn children, the greatest child duo that has ever appeared in Oakland, will present a new and novel specialty, and appear as "Prince Boy" and "The Little Lady" in the production.

Linen Produced From a Brazilian Weed

Discovery and development of a new linen plant in Brazil promises to revolutionize the linen industry of the world. The plant is known as Brazilian linen.

This plant is virtually a weed, which grows from twelve to eighteen feet high in four or five months, and resembles hemp in general appearances.

Special advantages are claimed for it over European linen and other similar fibre plants. It is absolutely hardy, resisting alike the dry or the rainy season, bearing equally well in dry or wet soil, and not being a prey to insects or mildew. It requires no care or special attention after planting, and matures so rapidly that a crop can be gathered three months after sowing, which means that three crops a year can be had.

It can be grown upon what are now vast tracts of practically waste land with comparatively little outlay of capital. The fibre has all the necessary qualities required for high-class use—strength, fineness, flexibility and adaptability for bleaching or dyeing—and every portion of the plant can be used for some industrial purpose.

The wild plant furnishes fibre which is excellent, but the cultivated plant shows a finer one, with strands of greater length, being much longer than European linen or hemp. In fact, it is so long that it must be cut before being used for weaving purposes. Experiments to test its strength show that linen broke when the weight attached reached 15.4 pounds. European hemp broke under a strain of 22 pounds, and Brazilian fibre "A" broke under 19.8 pounds, "B" under 22 pounds and "C" under 26.4 pounds.

The demand for the waste material of the plant for paper making will, it is believed, be steady. Machinery for the treatment of the plant for the extraction of the fibre has been imported from Europe. Present plans contemplate only the production of the raw fibre for export, although the ultimate result may be the establishment in Brazil of a great manufacturing enterprise, when labor and commercial conditions justify the venture.

The production of fibre from the Brazilian plant has just been patented in the United States. Whether the plant can be grown to advantage in the southern portion and Pacific coast region of America free from frost is not yet known. An investigation is to be made, however, and if conditions seem favorable a new agricultural industry will probably be established in the United States.

VARIETY IN BED SPREADS.

Many women are possessed of the notion that nothing is suitable for a bed but all white. For them there is the ever-present Marseilles counterpane, clean, strong and serviceable—a bit suggestive of a hospital perhaps, but always in good taste.

There are other women, especially those who live in boarding houses or apartments, and must sit in their bedrooms a good deal, who have wearied of the all white and pine for something more in keeping with a living room, and for them these suggestions are made.

A spread made of pretty white swiss, finished all around with a ruffle and lined with silesia that is in harmony with the color scheme of the room, is very pretty, and has the further merit of laundering well. The same effect could be carried out in the pillow slips, and the whole set would make a nice Christmas present.

One woman, who has spent a good part of her life in wandering about the world picking up odd things here and there, owns a couple of lace bed sets on this order, which she found in an out-of-the-way Irish village. "The effect is a bit elaborate for a bedroom," she remarked as she displayed her treasures, "but it's different and I like it."

Some people like spreads of cretonne, matching that used for chairs and couch covers or harmonizing with the pattern of the wall paper. Others have a fancy for a cover of plain-tinted lawn ruffled all around. One industrious woman with an artistic eye bought a piece of large-flowered cretonne, cut out the flowers and applied them on the ruffle of her spread. The lawn was pink and the flowers cream colored, and the result was well worth the trouble.

"In this stanza," says the teacher of the juvenile class, "what is meant by the line, 'The shades of night were falling fast'?"

"It means that the people were pulling down the blinds," answered the boy at the pedal extremity.

Little Ethel—"This paper says the guests sat down to a sumptuous repast. What's a 'sumptuous repast'?"

SURE CURE FOR "CROWS' FEET"

Making faces is the latest wrinkle in beauty culture. If you are beautiful "make faces," and you will not only promote and further enhance that beauty but you will make it proof against the ravages of time and cankering care. Or if you have just missed being beautiful and only a "near beauty," "make faces" and the features of Phryne are yours. Or if peradventure you happen to be just prosaically plain, "make faces" and lo! you are plain no longer.

In short, if there is any rudimentary element of grace about your countenance, if it contains any subcutaneous germ of comeliness, all you need do is to "make faces," the ugliest faces you possibly can make, and yours will be the joy of seeing that latent germ grow active and assert itself in the reflection of your mirror.

"There is really nothing strange or mysterious about the 'gargoyle' treatment for preserving the mobility and beauty of the countenance," declared a New York physician to the Herald of that city. "However new the idea may be in theory, it is old in practice. The face, like any other part of the body, loses its full strength and beauty of line and expression just as soon as it fails to be properly and regularly exercised. Facial muscles that are allowed to go long without such exercise soon become either flaccid and flabby or stiff and hard.

"The ideal condition is mobility, a condition which allows the face to assume a pure serenity when in repose, a sparkling vivacity under intellectual or physical stimulus. Such faces are seen in our best actresses, and in fact any and all actresses have a mobility of countenance which is not to be found to such a degree in any other class of women.

EXERCISING THE FACE.

"The reason for this is not hard to find. The actress gives her face a great deal of natural exercise. The nature of her calling makes it absolutely necessary that she shall bring into play certain muscles of the face which in other women are only exercised on state occasoins, such as overwhelming sorrow, exultant joy, bitter despair, and it is this quality in the actress' face that constitutes its greatest charm, and it is the principle underlying the quality which accounts for the very notable fact that the average actress' face never looks old in the same harsh uncompromising way that other women's faces do with advancing years.

"To attain this desired mobility has been the object of innumerable 'systems' and processes of beauty culture, all more or less silly and useless, and some positively harmful and to be avoided. Among the latter class I may designate the much abused massage treatment.

"The original principle of massage is an excellent one, but it was never intended to be applied to the muscles of the face. The virtue of massage begins and ends within very definite and exceedingly narrow limitations. It is a treatment which properly should be applied only to the invalid or convalescent patient, and then only as a stimulus toward the restoration of the normal muscular action of the body. To the face it should never be applied. If massage has any effect whatever upon the facial muscles it is only to make them coarse and heavy, or, in extreme cases, of sensual appearance. The fashionable superstition that a masseuse is able to 'work' out wrinkles by certain esoteric manipulations has no basis of fact to sustain it, either in science or in experience. The surest and best method to keep away wrinkles and all other signs of approaching age is the possession of a keen interest in life, combined with a natural sorow.

"The next best way is to "make fair proportion of natural joy and faces,' just ugly faces—such as are known in school room parlance as 'snoots.'

MAKING FACES.

"In this way better than any other a woman may give her face the spontaneous muscular exercise which in supreme moments might be and is produced by intense emotion. The chief defect with the average feminine face is that it does not laugh and cry enough; nor does it reflect any depth of emotion within. In 'gargoyling' the face, provided the 'gargoyling' is done with variety, there is positively no muscle or combination of muscles that does not get vigorous exercise.

"The 'gargoyling' should be done if possible in the open air or before an open window, and it is well to begin with the mouth. Every conceivable ugly contortion of the lips, tongue and teeth should be practised until that part of the face becomes weary. Then from the mouth go to the nose and wriggle and distort that organ in every conceivable way. Then the eyes, the cheeks and the forehead, and last the entire face in unison.

"At first thought this 'making faces' sounds very easy. In imagination we picture ourselves as capable of making the greatest variety of ugly and grotesque faces, and remembering the facial feats of our childhood days we are justified in our delusion. But alas! when we attempt to do as men and women the facial contortions we did in childhood we discover for the first time into what a hard and fast mould our countenances have formed themselves during the intervening years. It is upon countenances thus tensely set that old age fattens, and the virtue of 'gargoyling' the face in the way described consists solely in the fact that it releases the tension of these muscles, rendering them mobile and responsive to emotion.

"As to the amount of time to be devoted to such exercise, that is a matter which depends upon the individual and her environment. I usually prescribe fifteen minutes every morning—fifteen minutes, that is, after the subject has put herself into training. Until such time as she has practised sufficiently to make a considerable variety—say fifteen or twenty different sorts of ugly faces, it would be well for her to go through the facial contortions as many as half a dozen times a day, devoting to each session anywhere from ten minutes to half an hour. I have one patient who 'gargoyles' her face for fifteen minutes every morning just after waking and while still lying in bed. Then in the evening she spends another fifteen minutes after she has gone to bed, and she reports that it makes a splendid 'night cap.'

"The principal thing, though, is not so much the length of time one spends in the process as are the thoroughness and regularity with which it is done. Fifteen minutes every day is better than half an hour every other day, and in general I would not advise more than half an hour under any circumstances.

"'Gargoyling' has advantages for the youthful as well as for the middle-aged face, and nothing better subserves the attainment of perfect repose, so rare in the countenance of the young girl of today, particularly the young American girl. In order to have repose it is necessary to have its antithesis, vivacity, and vivacity is a quality that is almost nil in the modern young girl's face. Nervousness and excitation we have a-plenty, but these are only the unpleasant and exaggerated caricatures of the other more subtle and spiritual and always charming quality. When the face is capable of being genuinely vivacious under stimulus, it is equally capable of lapsing into an exquisitely perfect repose the moment that stimulus is removed and nothing will bring the young girl's face into the requisite mobility as a patient and systematic course in 'gargoyling.'"

ALL THE WORLD IS INVITED TO IRELAND

Now Ireland proposes to hold an international fair, a fair of large dimensions, and invites all the world, and America in particular, says the Boston Herald, to join with her in making the enterprise not only notable in the history of Ireland, but also in the history of fairs. The site for the great show is the home of the famous Donnybrooks fairs. But the fair, which begins in May, 1907, will be more than an Irish fair. It will include these sections: Irish industries, history and education; fine arts, including photography and engraving; arts and crafts; liberal; manufactures, textiles and various allied industries; engineering and shipbuilding; civil engineering and transportation; electricity, motors, gas lighting, heating and cooking; agricultural implements and chemical industries; horticulture and arboriculture; sport and fishing; mining and metallurgy; hygiene; women's section; cottage industries.

The objects of the enterprise are: First, to promote the industries, arts and sciences of Ireland by a display of the typical products of the country, agricultural and industrial; second, to stimulate commercial development and promote industrial education by inviting all nations to exhibit their products, both in the raw and finished state.

The arts, industries and manufactures of Ireland will have special provision for adequate display. There will be exhibitions of the manufactures, industries, resources, machinery, sciences, arts and archaeology in general.

The men who are bearing the burden of the undertaking are planning to set no limits on its scope, for they wish to have an exhibition comparable to other fairs of the world in inclusiveness. It is believed that great advantages will result to Ireland from the vast number of visitors to the country, and from the large display, not only of Irish products, industrial and agricultural, artistic and otherwise, but also of foreign products and from the introduction of foreign ideas. In their prospectus the executive committee states that the object of the undertaking is an adequate display of Ireland's assets, and a large attempt to give and to receive, in other words, to give a fair in which there will be mutual benefits of great value.

The Irish international exhibition has grown out of the exhibition which was held in Cork in 1901 and 1902. On the 15th of April, 1903, the Irish Industrial Conference, composed of the most influential citiens of the country, was held in the hall of the Royal University in Dublin, at which the Marquis of Ormonde, who recently entertained the King and Queen at his ancient castle, was chosen president of the exhibition.

The difficulty of holdiing the fair in the present year was largely the difficulty of finding a suitable site for a fair of large dimensions. Dublin was selected for the city, very naturally, and of all sites in Dublin the most suitable was apparently Phoenix Park, an area of 1750 acres of great natural beauty, a neighbor of the grounds of the Royal Dublin Society, the vice-regal residence, the residence of the under-secretary, the site of the Wellington Memorial, of statues of Carlisle and Lord Gough, of a People's Garden, a Zoological Garden, of the constabulary barracks and of a military hospital. From these grounds stretches a panorama of much picturesque scenery, including the Dublin Hills and Liffey. It was a superb natural site, but owing to the absence of adequate transit facilities near Phoenix Park the committee was compelled to go elsewhere.

Finally a suitable site in Pembroke, within a mile and a half of the center of the city, was found. This land had been recently presented to the Pembroke urban district by the Earl of Pembroke, one of the vice-presidents of the exhibition, in commemoration of his son, Lord Herbert. It is known as Herbert Park.

The exposition buildings will be large and ornate, and strictly consonant with the natural beauty of the park and the beauties of Dublin and of Ireland in general. The main entrance to the exhibition will be at Ballsbridge, on the electric car line from the city to Dalkey, opening into a Celtic court. In the latter will be placed many of the Irish industrial exhibits. On the south side of the park there will be numerous other entrances, and here also Donnybrook.

Directly opposite the main entrance will be the principal building, with a central octagonal court, 215 feet in diameter, surrounded by a corridor opening into four radial wings, each 164 feet long and 80 feet wide. An octagonal dome will tower over the center of this building to the height of 150 feet. Pavilions for the British, foreign and colonial exhibits will group around this building, and then logically and artistically will come the buildings for the motor cars, electric lighting, gas lighting, Irish industries, machinery and power houses and dining and tea rooms.

And of course the Irish international exhibition would not be an exhibition if it did not have among its educational features avenues of amusement and a midway. But the committee in charge of the enterprise is determined that among the amusement offerings to the patrons there shall be many worthy features of which the committee itself shall have complete control. This step is taken in order to prevent the abuse of concessions by private parties.

In the furtherance of this idea the committee plans to build a large concert hall wherein concerts of high grade and other musical events can take place properly. This hall will be modelled to some extent after the famous Albert Hall in London, and attention to the acoustic properties will be shared by attention to the decorative effects of the exterior. Of course one feature of the programme within this hall is already made up. Concerts devoted entirely to Irish music will be given at frequent intervals.

In addition to the attractions within the exhibition grounds the fair is intended to include the city of Dublin. Dublin is very ancient as cities in the north of Europe go. It is mentioned as far back as 190 A. D., by Ptolemy. In 438 A. D., a Danish settlement is known to have existed there, and to have ruled a surrounding district for nearly 600 years, or until 1014, when King Brian Borheime met the Danes in the battle of Clantarf, and drove them into the sea.

Today in Dublin there are numerous historicl associations, of interest not only to natives of the city and of the country, but to students of history and sightseers of any clime. The cathedrals alone are splendid concomitants to the educational aspects of the international exhibition, while the Botanic Gardens, the National Museum and Library and Trinity College are catalogued with the chief glories of Ireland. Dublin, the Irishman holds, is fairly included among the features of the exhibition.

This undertaking is, of course, arousing much interest among men of Irish birth and descent in this country. When Sir Ernest Cecil Cochrane, one of the vice-presidents, was in Boston last fall he spoke with enthusiasm about the project and reported that during his travels with the Corinthian soccer team his mention of the project had received widespread response, spoken and material. Sir Ernest cordially invited American manufacturers and artisans to join with the rest of the world, and particularly with the English-speaking world, in helping to make the undertaking a success and an inspiration for all the participants.

"In this way," he said, "it will be quite as interesting a fair as some of the larger ones which have been held during the past 15 years, notably your fairs at Chicago and St. Louis. It is an Irish international exhibition, Irish in much of its spirit, but truly international in its scope. At home everybody is working conscientiously to fulfil the ideal with which we have perhaps handicapped ourselves at the outset. But we shall try to demonstrate that there are many sides of Irish life which are well worth exploiting, and that out of this exhibition will also develop many beneficial results for the contributors. And I am sure that all visitors from America will feel well rewarded for their journey across the ocean."

BOSS RUEF SENDS HIS BAIL BY A BOY

Arrests Do Not Scare Him or Police Chief Dinan.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by the Hearst News Service over longest leased wire in the world)

SAN FRANCISCO Dec 1—Boss Ruef and Chief of Police Dinan were both placed under arrest yesterday for conspiracy on the indictments found against them in connection with the dive at 712 Pacific street Dinan was served with two warrants the second one charging him with perjury The arrest of both was accomplished by a deputy sheriff who dispensed the pink of politeness The boss was not even asked to inconvenience himself to the extent of visiting the office of the county clerk to file his bond He sent the bond by a messenger and remained serene and undisturbed in his office

Chief Dinan was treated with hardly less consideration He visited the office of County Clerk Mulcrevy listened to the reading of the perjury warrant furnished a bond and was released Later he met a deputy sheriff by appointment was again technically placed under arrest but not taken into custody His brother later in the day appeared in the county clerk s office with $250 cash bail and the incident was considered closed

WILL PROBE BROTHEL SCANDAL

When the Grand Jury meets on Tuesday next it will at once begin probing into the mysterious ownership of the resort at 620 Jackson street Before an adjournment is taken it is expected that Abe Ruef s partnership in the den will be proved beyond question The evidence is expected to show also that orders from the inner office were sent out commanding that the inmates of the resort be not in any way interfered with by the patrolman on the beat and that these orders were obeyed Captain Martin of the central district which embraces the resorts known as the Barbary Coast will be called and made to state who it was that gave him orders to protect 620 Jackson street and why he obeyed It is said that Captain Martin has expressed his willingness to Heney and Burns to appear before the Grand Jury and tell all he knows and it is believed that his testimony will result in the indictment of both Dinan and Ruef on new counts

But the testimony of police officers will not be depended upon entirely to prove Ruef s connection with 620 Jackson street Secret Service Agent Burns has had his detectives looking into the ownership of this den for several months It is claimed that these men have found the evidences of Ruef s ownership of a substantial interest in the resort—evidence so conclusive that there can be no doubt of its validity

PATROLMEN'S REPORTS IGNORED

The policemen who will be called before the Grand Jury on Tuesday will testify that reports were made to Captain Martin at various times concerning 620 Jackson street but that the anticipated orders to raid the place and arrest the inmates were not forthcoming They will swear that evidence sufficient to close the resort at any time has been in the possession of the police department for many months, but that it has never been put to use

All other work will be sidetracked until the evidence concerning the operation of 620 Jackson street is all set before the Grand Jury It is believed that a vote on further indictments can be obtained before the day s session is over but the examination of the witnesses in the case may run over into the next day

The investigation of the Belvedere Music hall is not yet finished It is probable that Edmund M Graney managing director of the old O Farrell street resort, will be recalled to again go over his testimony It is believed that when Graney s testimony is finally disposed of another charge of extortion will be brought against Ruef

The Grand Jury will also have Frank Maestretti on the stand early in the week to tell what he knows about graft in the administration and also tell about Ruef s connection with ballot box stuffing for which crime Wyman and Steffens were sentenced to terms in San Quentin Wyman and Steffens who have just been pardoned by the Governor are expected to corroborate Maestretti s testimony and Ruef may be indicted in that connection

LABORERS HURLED INTO AIR

Women Occupants Miraculously Escape.

Two Greek laborers were badly injured last night when an automobile driven by its owner Mr Cogswell, crashed into a Hayward car near the Allen road house Both men will survive but their injuries are serious

The automobile was hit by a Hayward car on the San Leandro road near the Allen road house last evening about seven o clock and its three occupants were hurled about sixty feet and thrown to the track s rough gravel The touring car is a wreck, but the passengers with the exception of two laborers escaped with a few scratches Two Greek laborers were severely injured one having his leg broken and the other was badly injured about both legs

WAS CROSSING TRACK.

Frank Ayer a chauffeur in the employ of Allen and Cogswell who operated an automobile garage at 1007 Broadway was driving A H Cogswell s car with two women passengers They were coming along the boulevard and made a swing across the track to go to Allen s road house when the machine was hit by the car

ROLGH CROSSING

The crossing along this part of the railroads are few and far apart The west track is not complete and the ties and rails are above the rock road which has not received the top pavement of gravel

Two red lights marked the crossing and it was between these that Ayers was heading the car He went slow to jump the rails which are several inches above the pavement

DID NOT HEAR CAR.

He did not hear the approaching car which it seems did not see the auto on the track Just as quick as Ayers noticed the car he threw on the high speed and tried to make the jump over the opposite rails, but was too late

STRIKES TONNEAU.

The front of the car hit the tonneau, where the women were sitting and the force of the blow knocked the auto fully sixty feet away from the place where it was hit It tore up the crushed rock and sent parts of the machine flying in different directions

THROWS OCCUPANTS

The two passengers and chauffeur were thrown violently to the ground as the machine turned

It was several yards beyond the spot where the machine laid that the people picked themselves up and were surprised to find that none was injured All were scratched a little and their clothes torn, but otherwise no injuries were sustained

DEMOLISHES AUTO

The tonneau of the machine was knocked to pieces and the rear wheels were torn away

WAS NEW MACHINE.

TAKEN TO HOSPITALS

WILL REVISIT PHILLIPPINES

Secretary Taft Planning to Cross the Pacific Again Next Spring.

WASHINGTON, Dec 1—It is the intention of Secretary Taft as soon as the approaching short session of Congress shall have been concluded to again visit the Philippine Islands Of all the great work Secretary Taft has had to do since he became Secretary of War that relating to the Philippines is nearest to his heart He believes thoroughly in the islands in their people and in their future His idea is that in a comparatively few years they will be a source of great pride to the people of the United States His faith in them caused him to put aside tthe opportunity to don the silk and ermine of a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States thus sacrificing, for the time at least the ambition of his life

His trip to the Philippines next spring will be made to enable him to be present at the opening of the Philippine executive assembly Then he will see the accomplishment of some of his desires in regard to the islands and their people He will carry to the Philippines the hearty good wishes of the American President

Meantime, however, Secretary Taft has a great work mapped out here

It will be Taft's great effort this winter to secure the enactment by Congress of the Philippine tariff measure which he so strongly urged at the last session He believes he will be successful and is confident that the passage of the bill will rebound to the benefit of both the Philippines and the United States.

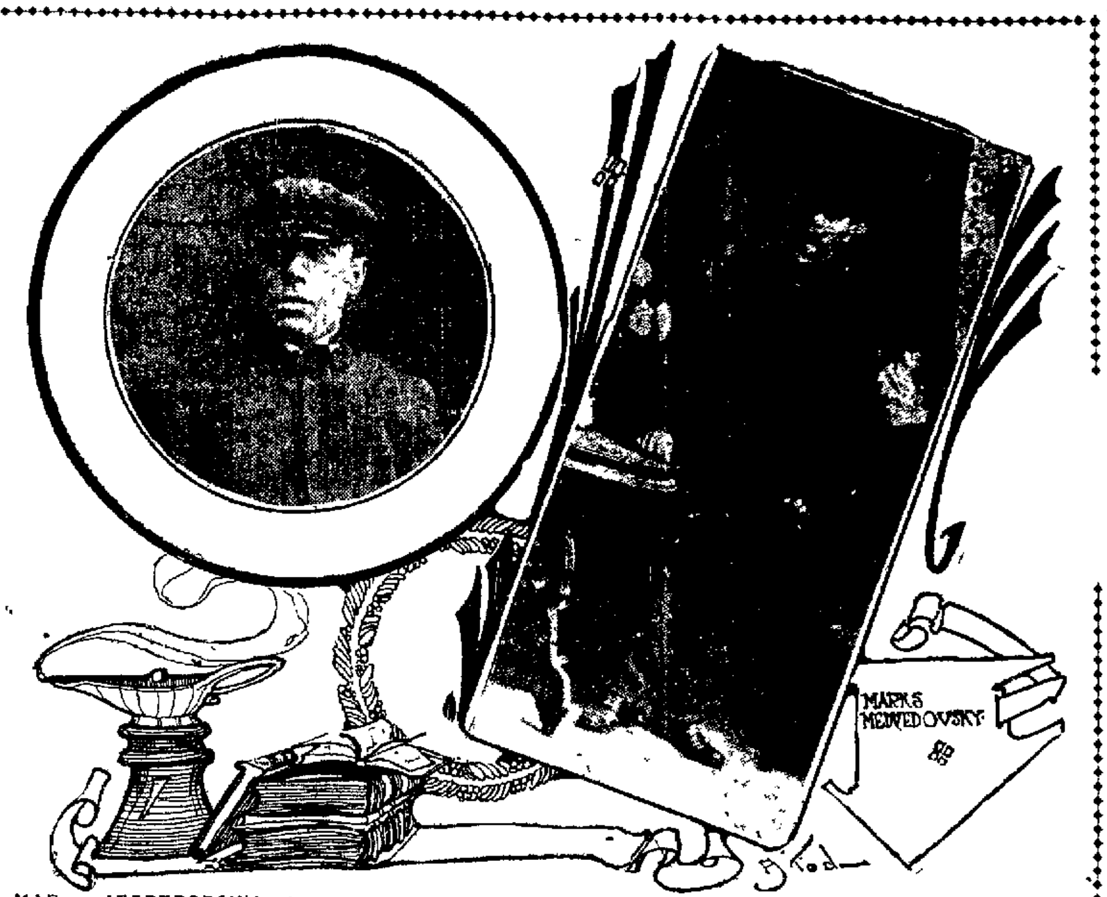
SPEAKS SIXTEEN DIFFERENT LANGUAGES AND CLERKS IN A CLOTHING STORE



MARKS MEDREDORSKY, who speaks sixteen different languages but who cannot find anything to do except to work in a second hand store.

Max Medvedovsky, Former Interpreter in the Czar's Imperial Army and Superb Linguist, Walks the Streets of City of San Francisco Hungry.

From an interpreter in the Czar's imperial army to a clerk in an Oakland second-hand store, is not apt to be the lot to fall to another man with the knowledge to speak sixteen different languages and dialects But Max Meduedovsky, a Russian Jew of twenty-one years of age has gone through it all It seems a shame that a man who can fluently use so many different tongues should be selling second-hand wares in a Broadway store

Max Medueovsky is a Jew and was born and raised in Russia For the past six years he was an interpreter in the Russian army at Odessa, where he has an older brother who masters twenty different tongues

When he became twenty-one years old he did not care to have to enlist in the army and serve four years, so he came to America Six months ago he landed in Canada, and it was there that he contributed a few dollars toward the suffering Jews at San Francisco, who were put in destitute circumstances by the fire

Supposing that here on the Pacific coast he could make use of his knowledge as an interpreter, Mr Medueovsky journeyed to San Francisco He traveled around over the city and finally found the Jewish Protective society

Funds had run low by this time and he had nothing to eat for twenty-four hours The president of the society heard his story and after learning that he understood Italian, he was sent around the corner to an Italian boss, who would give him a job cleaning brick The society which is supposed to protect all Jews in distress, did not care to assist this man in his wanderings The only aid he received at their hands was a piece of watermelon, which the doorkeeper gave him This was the first food he received in twenty-four hours

When he was referred to an employment office, he did not have the necessary $1 to secure a job, so still he had to starve Finally he met a lady who spoke French This lady, of 512 Devisadero street, took him to 1349 O Farrell street where he was given board and lodging The kind lady there started him with a few dollars and he came to Oakland

J Leon of 823 Broadway gave him employment in the second-hand store, where for the past four months he has been receiving $10 per week and board

The second-hand store was a great relief to the wandering man, but still he would like to make use of his many languages, which, are English, French, German, Italian, Arabic, Greek Spanish, Portuguese, Turkish, Hungarian, Roumanian Russian-Polish, Slavonian, and several dialects If he does not make use of these talks within the next two years he probably will have forgotten many of them At present he is working for Mr Leon, who gave him a good letter, should anyone require references

He cannot expect aid from the Russian consul because he is of Jewish descent, and no Russian can assist a Hebrew In Russia they are killed and slaughtered, and no subject of the Czar can interfere.

SEES JAP WAR IN 25 YEARS

Hayes of California Says Trouble Will Be Over Pacific Control.

WASHINGTON, Dec 1—"No I don't think we will have war with Japan over this school question at this time but we will have war with that country in the next twenty years The Japanese have got it into their heads that they will control the Pacific ocean and we have got it into our heads that we will control it A clash will eventually come

This statement was made to a number of newspaper men at the White House today by Representative Hayes of California Mr Hayes and Senator Flint of the same State, called on the President but they did not discuss the Japanese question with him They thought it wise to postpone their conference with him on this subject to another time

I do not believe that Japan is ready for a struggle with this country over the question of her people mixing in the public schools with ours,' continued Mr Hayes "But I can say without the least desire to inflame the controversy that the people of the Pacific coast especially of California, are united on this question It is not a party question at all Republicans Democrats, Labor people—all have not learned to hold the Japanese in as high esteem as might be possible The Chinaman stands better in the popular mind than the Japanese

The trouble is really deeper than the school question The Japanese are pouring into the Pacific Coast in large numbers They are arriving at the rate of 14 000 more a month than they leave They are coming into conflict with both skilled and unskilled labor and they outdo the Chinese in working for small wages and living off nothing They do not trade with American business men but bring over their own merchants and purchase all their goods from them Besides this they are unreliable in business matters and tricky all of which gives Americans a bad opinion of them

'By reason of the feeling which seems to have grown up over this school question I do not think I shall press my bill introduced at the last session to exclude the Japanese as rigidly from the country as the Chinese. I do not desire to be the means of fomenting trouble with Japanese at this time and will probably await until next year to press my bill which I shall do with vigor"

Representative Hull of Iowa chairman of the house committee on Military affairs, could see little in the school controversy to bring about war

I cannot see ' he said 'where the Federal Government comes in on this question It has no right to interfere with the local affairs of California or San Francisco I do not believe it will do so either I do not think any foreign country would have any business dictating to Des Moines what its school authorities should do in the matter of entrance to public schools '

Representative J W Kiefer, of Ohio did not believe there was any possibility of trouble with Japan in the near future, but if there should be he would not object to getting into it He was a general in the Civil and Spanish wars and would unquestionably volunteer for service in another if misfortune should bring it

Representative Barthold, of Missouri a leading disciple of international arbitration for all troubles between all nations laughed at the thought of trouble between this country and Japan and considered it unwise to even question such a proposition

CHILD-WIFE DISAPPEARS

Under an Assumed Name Wife of Bank Robber Seeks Seclusion.

SAN FRANCISCO Dec 1—Hulda von Hofen Siemsen has disappeared from the curious gaze of her acquaintances and the public The notoriety following her unfortunate marriage to John Siemsen, the gaspipe criminal became so unbearable to the unhappy girl-bride and her family that her parents decided to send her away from scenes that threatened to undermine her health

To keep secret the place chosen for her exile it was necessary that the fifteen-year-old bride assume another name This she has done The name of Siemsen was indignantly renounced by her as soon as she learned the real character of her husband who according to her story and that of her elder sister, Elsie, she consented to marry when Siemsen, securing a license in Oakland after swearing falsely to her age produced a pistol to accelerate her hesitant Yes"

KEEPS PLACE SECRET

"Hulda was so sick and nervous over the whole affair that we have sent her to the country said Mrs von Hofen We cannot tell any one where she is as we have promised the people she is staying with not to drag their names into the papers They are people who were quite prominent here about two years ago We intend to keep the girl out of San Francisco for a year if she is contented to stay I would rather she stayed until this awful thing is forgotten

Hulda begged us when she went not to let anybody know where she is She is trying to get it out of her mind and that was impossible so long as she remained here where we have been known for thirty years as quiet respectable people A few days ago Hulda saw her picture in a morning paper She was just beginning to feel more cheerful and the sight of herself in print again made her so sick that she took to her bed and had to be waited on Of course if she should be wanted to testify, she will come back But she knows nothing at all of Siemsen's career or his crimes so I hardly think she will be sent for.

DUPED BY APPEARANCES

'Perhaps we did wrong in letting Siemsen keep company with Hulda but how could we tell there was anything wrong with him? He was such a gentleman in his manners that we thought he would be a fine match for her He couldn't bear to have her go out to work and offered to pay us what she earned if we would keep her at home One day when he came to the house Hulda had an apron on and had been helping me wash dishes He thought it was dreadful for her to do any housework—he was afraid her hands would get hard and calloused We naturally thought he would be a good husband and make a lady of Hulda

It was very wrong of Hulda and Elsie not to tell us about the marriage I blame Elsie more for this, because she is two years older When the detectives asked us if Hulda was Siemsen's wife her father and I denied it because we would not believe that our girls would do anything like that and not tell us They realize their mistake now

"It is very hard to bear all this trouble ' added Mrs von Hofen, her eyes filling and her lips quivering "And one of the hardest things is that Hulda did not obey her father when he said she must wait until she was older before getting married But Hulda was dazzled by Siemsen's display of wealth and now must make the best of her bad bargain "

THEY FAVOR AMERICANS

Result of Negotiations Favor American Meat Products at Italian Ports.

WASHINGTON, Dec 1—As a result of negotiations between the Italian and Washington Governments, announcement has been made of important concessions in favor of American meat products at Italian ports Some months ago the microscopic examination of pork intended for Italian markets was discontinued by the Department of Agriculture because examination seemed useless The Italian authorities insisted on making their own microscopic examination for trichinae and charged the expense to the American firms, they would not recognize the certificate of such examination by the United States authorities Accordingly, as it was of no use, the Government discontinued making the examination for Italy, whereupon the Italian Government refused to admit American pork.

There was a correspondence between the two governments and explanations were exchanged, and the announcement that adjustment had been reached The Italian Government has agreed that meats shall be admitted under the white certificate, without microscopic test in America but subject to that test in Italian ports All Italian officials have been notified of the ruling This is thought especially important as a step toward ultimate modification of regulations against American meats adopted first in Germany and now enforced in several European countries

General Notes of Interest Along the Water Front—News of the Shipping.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—The dock officers in the employ of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company have been given an advance in wages. During the recent trouble with the sailors the officers were compelled to do most of the work on the vessels, and in order to keep them the company paid them for overtime. After the strike was terminated it was stated that this overtime would be done away with and the men signified their intention to leave the company's service. To offset this the officials concluded to raise their wages ten dollars per month and pay for overtime.

OLD WHALER SAILS.

The old whaling bark Alice Knowles sailed this afternoon for a cruise of the South seas, after which she will sail around Cape Horn to her home port at New Bedford, Mass. The Alice Knowles has made her farewell appearance in this port, as the owners have decided to withdraw the vessel and also the bark Andrew Hicks from the Pacific. They state that the reason for leaving the Pacific whaling grounds is that at present there is very little market here for sperm oil and further that the fishing has been so close that the whales have disappeared to unknown parts. If the industry picks up the owners of the vessels state that the vessels will be brought back to the port.

The bark Andrew Hicks is now at Mission street wharf fitting out for her cruise, and it is expected that she will get away some time next week.

ARRIVES FROM MEXICO.

The Pacific Coast Steamship Company's steamer Curaco, Captain Paulson commanding, arrived here this morning from Mexican ports after an uneventful voyage of seven days from Guaymas via ports. The steamer brought in the cabin Jose Soto, Joseph Bloom, G. Rodriquez and Susanne Valdez, and in the steerage there were eleven passengers. The usual amount of silver ore and bullion was brought here on the steamer.

APPOINTED TO MANCHURIA.

Thomas Sawdon, who was the chief engineer of the Pacific Mail Company's steamship Peru, has been appointed to the head of the engineer's department on the company's big steamer Manchuria. He fills the place which was vacated by E. Putzar, who is now superintending engineer of the Oceanic Steamship Company. It is stated that Charles Parsons, who was on the steamer Barracouta, will be chief engineer on the steamer Peru.

Work has been started by the Union Iron Work's mechanics on the Manchuria's engines. The vessel will be shifted to an anchorage off the Union Iron Works in a few days.

WATER FRONT NOTES.

The Pacific Mail Company's steamship China will arrive here some time tomorrow from the Orient via Honolulu with many passengers and a large amount of freight. The liner will dock at Pier 42, which is at the foot of Second street. The steamer Siberia was shifted to the old Mail dock this morning and the steamer Mongolia was moved from Pier 42 to Pier 44.

The steamer Peru will sail for Panama with passengers and freight next Saturday instead of the steamer Indiana, which is under charter to the Mail Company. The Indiana will leave this port on December 5 for Central America in ballast.

The little schooner Academy was docked at Steuart street wharf this morning, where her collection of curios are being landed.

The navy tug Unadilla rammed the army steamer General McDowell yesterday and damaged that vessel to such an extent that she was compelled to lay up for repairs. The prow of the Unadilla cut through the guard of the army steamer and penetrated several plates.

DIVINE SARAH TO LIVE IN A CHEAP UPPER FLAT

Noted Actress Will Store Her Treasures and Retire to Quiet Neighborhood in the City of Paris.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—Sarah Bernhardt has startled Paris by announcing that she is giving up her house in the Boulevard Berthier and is going to live in a fifth floor flat.

Where the celebrated actress is going to store the innumerable treasures of art, literature and curios which her house contains, nobody knows. Sarah Bernhardt's house has been considered one of the monuments of Paris, and though it stands on an inter boulevard overlooking fortifications, and the general public seldom got a glimpse of its interior, and few tourists viewed its facade, everybody knew it was there and no more expected the divine Sarah to move away than they would expect one of the statues in the Place de la Concorde to step down off her pedestal and walk away.

Financial difficulties, notwithstanding the enormous amount of money made by the tragedienne during her last tour in the United States, are hinted at as the reason of this move on her part.

LEAD THEM LIKE SHEEP

Albert Young Tells the Story of How the Money Passed and Who Got It.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—How a roll of fifteen $100 bills, paid to Cornelius P. Shea and others by the Garment Workers' Union, purchased the teamsters' strike of 1905, in which fourteen men were slain, ninety-eight injured, 400 others hurt, 5000 drivers thrown out of employment, Chicago placed in a state of terror, 1000 extra policemen sworn in, the State militia almost called out and millions of dollars lost to business throughout the country, was told at Shea's conspiracy trial today by Albert Young, former companion of Shea.

Young was for two successive terms president of the coal teamsters' union and had held various positions with the international brotherhood of teamsters under Shea. He was consequently a party to all its secret meetings, conferences and councils.

Young told of a meeting of nearly all the officials of the Chicago Federation of Labor at Bricklayers' Hall, March 24, 1905. "That was the beginning of the teamsters' strike," said he.

He told of how Shea promised to "furnish men to win the strike if the Federation would furnish the money." He told of a meeting shortly afterward at the Stock Exchange Saloon at which Albert Noren, of the Garment Workers' Union, brought $1500 in fifteen $100 bills to pay for the strike. The money was divided, he said, among C. P. Shea, Hugh McGee, Jerry McCarthy, James Barry and himself, each getting $300. Every one of the five men gave Noren $20, making $100, to "pay for his trouble." This was at Shea's suggestion.

He told of a meeting, twenty minutes later, at Shea's room in the Briggs House at which Shea said: "Well, boys, we've got to make good."

He told how next morning the teamsters were called out and the strike was on.

CARS SCARCE IN CALIFORNIA

Dearth is Great Handicap to the Oil Industry in the State.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 1.—Probably the greatest handicap to the oil industry in California at this time is the shortage of tank oil cars, which has grown until it is said that there are not more than half enough of these in commission to handle the product. Six hundred additional cars are said to be badly needed at the present time. In their absence it has been necessary to provide expensive storage accommodations, to keep vast quantities locked in the ground by means of tightly plugged wells.

Oil operators and railway officials agree that it is a deplorable condition. The latter claim that it is something that cannot be remedied immediately. The Southern Pacific, Santa Fe and Salt Lake railroads have each ordered additional equipment.

LAST RACES AT BENNINGS

Maximum Stakes Was Gift to Holscher by Six Lengths.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—There was a big crowd on hand to see the last day's racing for some time to come in inclined to predict that it would be the last day's racing that would be the capital city. Racegoers were even seen in the vicinity of Washington for years to come.

The feature race, the Maximum Stakes, for three-year-olds and up, at three miles, was considered a gift for Holscher, so the race was hardly a feature. Holscher simply breezed home six lengths ahead of Palette, which was two lengths ahead of Pete Dailey. Horner handled the favorite well, keeping Holscher well in the rear until the last mile, when he was let down and just galloped over his field.

There was a slight shock of surprise right at the start when Cederstrome, at 7 to 1, came home a length in front of a big field in the first race. Cederstrome, well ridden by Creamer, got the lead at the three-quarters and at the end had drawn away to beat New York three lengths.

Red Knight, the 3 to 1 favorite, was fourth. Chippewa, with Miller up and at 4 to 1, was not in the hunt.

ment. He was still alive, but able to speak only in whispers. A train has left for Redwater to bring the injured man here.

An examination of the car shows that it had been rifled of all valuables in sight, but it cannot be learned what the loss was.

Express company officials are reticent about giving out any details of the loss. The robbery took place at almost the identical spot where a bold attack was made five years ago, when the messenger was bound and gagged and the safe dynamited and all of its contents secured.

cause he wants with her to mount the rounds in the ladder of fame with her, to be a great man himself and to see her a great musician and artist.

For several years she bent to his ideas and he repeatedly told her he was the greatest man in the world and that she was his "human experiment." He said he wanted to see how far her intellect would carry her.

"Before I married him he was a most ardent suitor," said the young wife, "and he told me he could not live without me. Consequently it was something of a shock to me when I began to see what his ideas were."

Mrs. Hunter explained to the court in an embarrassed way her efforts to make him see life as others saw it, but his mind was fixed on one goal only, and heeded not.

"I told him," she said, "how much happier we would be if we had a child, but to him that seemed ridiculous. He pooh poohed the idea and said I was not meant for any such thing. 'Motherhood,' he added, 'would be a burden.'"

MERCHANTS ARE ARRESTED

Kansas City Men Charged With Illegal Sales of Plum age.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 1.—Benjamin Jaudon, deputy game warden, swore to a complaint today against the Emery, Bird, Thayer Dry Goods company, the George P. Peck Dry Goods company and B. Adler & Company, charging those firms with violating the State game law by selling, or offering for sale, plumage of certain birds. The complaints were drawn in the prosecutor's office and sent to Justice Richardson's court, where warrants were issued.

W. B. Thayer, of the Emery, Bird, Thayer Company; Gustave W. Bachman, manager of the George W. Peck Dry Goods company, and Bernard Adler, of the Adler Millinery company, were arraigned in Justice Richardson's court at 2 o'clock and pleaded not guilty. They were released on their own recognizance and their hearing set for next Wednesday morning.

SWALLOWING THE EVIDENCE

Thomas Walsh, Arrested for Pasing Spurious Bill, Endeavors to Eat It.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—Thomas Walsh was arrested yesterday by Policemen McMurray and Winzler on the charge of attempting to pass a worthless "Bank of Georgia" bill on James Thomas, a cigar dealer at Fourth and Mission streets.

Walsh tried to swallow the bill when the policemen caught him and they had to choke him before he would cast the bill from his mouth. Captain of Detectives Duke says that Walsh is a member of a gang of thieves who have been flooding the city with spurious "Bank of Georgia" bills. Numerous complaints have been lodged with the police and several arrests have been made. The prisoners escaped conviction by claiming that they did not know the bills to be worthless. In Walsh's case, however, Duke says the police will be able to prove that Walsh was told that the bills were worthless by several shopkeepers whom he tried to victimize.

'SHANGHAIED,' SAYS DAVID

Sailor Complains to U. S. Attorney—Will Prosecute the Guilty Ones.

SEATTLE, Wash, Dec. 1.—David E. Thompson, a sailor, complained to the United States attorney today that October 9 he was shanghaied from San Francisco aboard the British four-masted bark Alice A. Lee, and brought to this port.

He arrived at Astoria from Australia on a ship homeward bound and proceeded to San Francisco. He had been there only a day when he was shanghaied.

Thompson left for San Francisco this afternoon on the steamship Watson.

He will prosecute those engaged in putting him aboard the Alice A. Lee.

NELSON CALLS ON GOVERNOR

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 1.—Governor John A. Johnson and Battling Nelson are the best of friends. And this is how it happened: The Battler, Abe Pollock, who looks after the Dane's interests on the road, and a party of friends went to the capitol this afternoon and paid the champion of Minnesota's political arena a lengthy visit.

The two champions discussed both fighting and politics and the Governor proved so interested in the little Dane that an hour slipped away while they chatted. Nelson said, upon bidding the Governor good-bye:

"It has been one of the greatest pleasures of my life to meet you, and now I can think of only one thing that would please me more."

"What is that?" asked the Governor.

"I want a chance to fight for you. They tell me that you are going to run for President. Well, if you do, I promise to knock out more enemies for you than I have ever met in the prize ring. I will fight harder for you than I did for the championship, and I believe you will win."

This so pleased the Governor that he again shook the hand of Nelson.

DUKE WILL MARRY AMERICAN GIRL.

de Chaulnes," said a leader of American society today. "The Duke's family history is against him. His mother was that Princess alletzene whose affair with the County de Dion was a scandal twenty-five years ago. Her austere mother-in-law, the Duchess de Chevreuse, turned her into the streets and the Duchess de Chaulnes, nee Princess Galitzene, died in a garret, attended only by a little country servant, who sold the duchess' jewels to pay for her funeral."

In fact, no one here believes that Miss Theodosa Shonts will ally herself to this noble French family, allied though it be to the nobles in Europe.

TOPEKA, Kan., Dec. 1.—The resignation of Charles H. Sessions, private secretary to Governor Hoch, became effective today and he was succeeded by S. C. Crummer chairman of the Republican State Central committee. Mr. Sessions will re-enter newspaper work, having been appointed Washington correspondent of the Kansas City Journal. He was for ten years Kansas correspondent of the Journal, serving continuously until his appointment as private secretary. While known as one of the best political writers in the West, Mr. Sessions declares that he resigned because personal participation in the political game was distasteful to him.

BERLIN, Okla., Dec. 1.—How to rid the country of wolves, which have become a serious menace to the people of Roger Mills county, is one of the principal subjects of discussion at the Farmers' institute meeting here today.

WHEN a man leaves home in the evening it is because he seeks amusement. The best way to keep him home is to give him the amusement there. Make home a competitor of downtown, the club, the café, the theatre and the concert hall. No one thing will furnish so much amusement for so many people, so many times, and in so many ways as the Edison Phonograph.

Talk about versatility! If you had a brass band on tap and several leading concert hall singers on salary, and two or three funny men to crack jokes, and a beautiful soprano to sing ballads, you could not give the same amount of varied entertainment that the Edison Phonograph gives by simply changing records.

QUARREL OVER PATERNITY

Beveridge and Lodge About to Quarrel for Privilege of Posing in Limelight.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Senators Beveridge of Indiana and Lodge of Massachusetts are in a fair way to embarrass the President sadly with their quarrel over the paternity of the child labor bill. Senator Beveridge claims that he saw it first, and that anyhow it looks like him; anybody can see that it is the living image of his meat inspection measure of last session, and nobody questions that he was the parent of that lusty child. He urged that this child labor measure is formed on the same lines; it seeks to exclude from interstate commerce products where conditions of manufacture are not such as to commend them to the inspectors of the Federal government.

Senator Lodge, on the other hand, comes from Massachusetts, the home of this kind of legislation in America. He has been a student of the subject for a long time. His bill is a good deal like the Beveridge measure, it is true, but he thinks it is decidedly superior, representing the experience Massachusetts has had in this sort of legislation.

STONE FROM THE HEAVENS

Great Meteoric Body Descends From Above—Ship Narrowly Escapes Annihilation.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 1.—A great meteoric stone, descending from heavens with phenomenal swiftness, fell in the wake of the American-Hawaiian steamship American Friday night as the vessel was passing Dungeness, bound from San Francisco to Seattle. It struck less than 100 feet astern of the big liner, and Captain McWilliams, the pilot and other officers were splashed with water all over the vessel. Had it landed on the deck, Captain McWilliams believes it would have driven a great hole clear through the ship, killing some of the crew and doubtless wrecking the ship. He says no one aboard observed the phenomenon until just before it had fallen into the water.

Pretty eighteen-year-old Irene Van Vorrhies of Sacramento, one of Taft & Pennoyer's clerks, grew despondent over life's troubles at an early hour this morning and took poison. Her landlady became alarmed at the girl's actions and sent a messenger post haste to the police station for an officer. The policeman brought the young lady to the station where she was placed in a detention cell.

A bottle of poison was taken from her, and it was not long before she decided not to take her life.

The girl claims to have relations in Sacramento where, she says she was married.

MARRIED AND DIVORCED AT SAME TIME; TO WED

After Ten Years as Neighbors, Pair Change Places in Chicago Homes

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The wedding of the divorced wife of Joseph Wassell and the divorced husband of Mrs. Emily Chadbourne will take place in this city. Thos. L. Chadbourne, the bridegroom-to-be, is practicing law in New York and Mrs. Wassell is here.

The divorces that broke up two families were granted at almost the same time last June. Both pairs were married at the same time, ten years before, and both moved in the same social circles in the Windy City. They were friends and neighbors, but when Mrs. Wassell applied for divorce no one thought she would remarry, because she stated that it was her devotion to music that caused her to flee to Nevada to become separated from Dr. Wassell.

Mrs. Chadbourne was awarded a decree because of desertion, although her husband in his answer stated that she refused to live in New York, where he had located in order to better his professional opportunities.

Mrs. Wassell gave as her reason for seeking a divorce:

"When two people cannot live in perfect harmony they should separate. There should be no discord in life. That is impossible when husband and wife are playing in different keys."

Last winter Mrs. Wassell's "Shakespearian Cycle of Music" created a sensation in musical circles, when it was sung by Bispham and other opera singers at the Metropolitan Opera House, and also in the Auditorium in Chicago.

The lost chord that combines the harmonies of two lives must have been discovered by Mrs. Wassell. She will put her theory into practice and will become attuned again to the music of matrimony.

Mr. Chadbourne was the former husband of Miss Emily Crane, daughter of R. T. Crane, the millionaire manufacturer of Chicago.

IDORA PARK

This evening we will again have the extreme pleasure of listening to one of Gilbert and Sullivan s ever welcome works at Idora Park This time it is to be the Pirates of Penzance

Every line of libretto and every strain of music in the works of these two geniuses is of intrinsic value melody springs from every bar of Sir Arthur s notes and Gilbert s humor is ever fresh and bright No matter how often one has seen The Mikado Pinafore Iolanthe 'Patience' or The Pirates one always finds enjoyment in again listening to them

In the Gilbertian characterizations Ferris Hartman has no equal on the stage in America His delightful performance of The Lord Chancellor in Iolanthe' Sir Joseph in Pinafore" and Ko-Ko in 'Mikado will never be forgotten and in The Pirates as Major-Stanley he will again have one of those fine opportunities Walter De Leon will be the Sargeant of Police who informs us in jolly song that a policeman s life is not a happy one Arthur Cunningham, Jos Fogarty Eugene Wiener, Sybil Page Hazel Graham Lillian Raymond and Flora Norris will be congenially cast and Bernice Holmes the popular contralto will make her reappearance in this opera

'The Pirates will be given for one week only as the management is under contract to produce on Monday December 10 an entirely new work by Theodore Vogt It is a jolly Chinese comic opera and is called "The Lily of Chee-Foo

It will be mounted on a magnificent scale of Oriental splendor and the magnificent orchestra will be largely augmented for this special work

This will be its initial production on any stage and the composer s many friends and fellow Bohemian and Athenian club members will turn out en masse to help christen the new work

Those who love the excitement of a first night production of a local composer who is as popular as 'Teddy Vogt should secure their seats bright and early in the week

The Idora Grill will be the scene of a number of dinner parties the opening night of the Chinese opera This restaurant is one of the very best in California and is growing in popularity every day The new chef Mons Gaudard, was one of the proprietors as well as head "chef" of the good old Poodle Dog,' and bon vivants know what that means

Every Sunday a most elaborate menu is offered at the price of one dollar for a splendid table d hote and on Saturdays at noon a "ladies matinee lunch' is served for 50 cents Special dinners may be ordered at any time

No more delightful way of entertaining this winter can be devised than a supper or luncheon at Idora Grill followed by a good operatic performance and for 85 cents one can do all this at a matinee or for $1 50 for an evening This includes a splendid meal, best reserved seats in the theater and admission to the lovely park.

No city in the country can boast of a finer amusement resort than Idora Park

A New York firebug said he was commissioned by the Lord to cleanse and chastise with fire. The authorities refused to believe that the Lord is subletting His contract.

ASK PHYSICIANS ABOUT IT

THE WINEDALE CO.

1006-1008 WASHINGTON STREET, OAKLAND, CAL.

Fouling Their Own Nest.

Henry Watterson of the Louisville Courier-Journal makes his complaint against the yellow correspondent. He finds that the reputation of Kentucky has been injured by such writers, whose scruples have not prevented them from "inventing sensations by making every sordid brawl between drunken louts a mountain vendetta, and every contemptible murderer an avenger of the wrongs of his clan." Blood enough has been shed in the Kentucky mountains, he adds, "to make that region notorious, but buckets of it have been poured out by space fighting news writers as libations to the gods of yellow journalism, where actual drops have stained the soil, and assassins have been made heroes for the sake of space and romance."

The yellow correspondents have done California much harm by wild exaggerations of the effects of the earthquake last April and the ruin wrought in San Francisco by the tremendous conflagration which followed, but it is doubtful if they did half as much harm to the material interests of the State as the newspapers across the bay have done by their sensational publications in regard to official grafting. The evil reputation San Francisco has been given by her home newspapers will live long in the memory of people abroad who have learned to look upon the city as a sinkhole of moral and political corruption.

Of course it is necessary that crime should be punished and grafters driven from the public service and that public sentiment should be roused to its duty in this connection. It is also the duty of the press to give the facts as they are disclosed to the public, for that is the legitimate mission of the newspaper. But unfortunately the San Francisco papers have not confined themselves to the facts or presented the situation so as to be fairly understood by the outside world. All sense of proportion has been sacrificed in the effort to draw as lurid a picture of conditions as possible. Fact and fiction have been so inextricably interwoven and small matters so greatly magnified that the perspective presented through their medium is a hopeless blur of filth and degradation. Nothing is seen in outline or its proper place in the scheme of things. Flyspecks have taken on the semblance of great cesspools of iniquity. The seamy side of life in a large, luxurious seaport city has been framed up in a dark picture as a true presentation of San Francisco. The social evil is daily paraded at length in the news columns as the chief feature of San Francisco life and an endless procession of dive keepers, pugs, thieves and the small vermin of politics and the tenderloin promenades across the stage at the bidding of the editors to make the distant onlooker believe there is nothing else in the metropolis of the Pacific Coast.

It is nothing but graft, graft, graft day after day. The news of the world and the material concerns of a vast hive of honest busy people are obscured to chronicle the deeds and sayings of brothel keepers, prize fight promoters and the seedy habitues of Shady Lane. Everything is being smeared black. The community in this gross caricature in red and black, appears as a devil's broth of iniquity—seething with bribe taking officials, blackmailers, panders and harlots.

It is a libel on San Francisco and California. It is a hideous distortion of the truth in every particular. It represents a great commercial and industrial community highly civilized and cultured as rotting and stinking in its own filth—a veritable Sodom reeking with moral and political degeneracy.

There is political graft in San Francisco, to be sure—unhappily a good deal of it—but dishonesty in officials there is not the rule, happily. San Francisco is no worse than other great cities in this respect and is better than some. She stands in need of a house cleaning, it is true, but the scoundrels can be hunted from the public service and salutary reforms instituted without stirring up every moral stench created by social conditions common to all large cities and advertising the city abroad as a prey to thieves, disorder and the vices of decadent civilization. In the main the body politic of San Francisco is still safe, sound and clean notwithstanding the turmoil spread abroad. The local newspapers are doing it a cruel injustice by constantly holding up the slums to the view of the world as a truthful representation of the city and its inhabitants.

The director of the mint says Nevada is producing more than a million a month in gold and silver and that production promises to greatly increase in the near future, but that is no sign that it is safe to buy stock in every gold mine because it is offered for sale.

IMMIGRANTS FOR THE SOUTH.

In their zeal for attracting foreign immigrants to the South the immigration agencies of both North Carolina and South Carolina are coming into conflict with the Federal immigration law, whose fine points the Department of Labor never allows to become blunted. Some Englishmen who were recently brought to Charlotte, N. C., must be deported because the Carolina agent, working for mill owners and other private citizens, paid their traveling expenses and otherwise induced them to come to America. A still more notable case is that of 500 Belgians who recently landed at Charleston, S. C., and received a cordial welcome, many orators avowing that their advent meant the dawn of a new era for South Carolina. It turns out that they came over under inducements offered by the South Carolina immigration agent, who loaned the most of them their passage money. The South's eagerness for desirable white immigrants is likely to make it antagonistic to the careful restrictions which the Federal laws have established. If the 500 Belgians are now deported South Carolina's wrath could hardly be measured.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

SENTIMENT OF AN OAKLAND VOTER

The politician is my shepherd. I shall not want for anything in this campaign.
He leadeth me into the saloon for my vote's sake.
He filleth my pocket with good cigars.
My cup of beer runneth over.
He inquireth into my family, even unto the fourth generation.
Yea, though I walk through the mud and rain to vote for him, and shouteth myself hoarse when he is elected, straightway he forgetteth me.
Although I meet him at his own house he knoweth me not.
Surely the wool has been pulled over my eyes all the days of my life, and I shall dwell in the house of a chump forever.

X.

Failure of the Referendum.

Each new trial is a fresh demonstration of the fact that the referendum is a failure as a means of obtaining an expression of popular sentiment. Only a short time ago a proposition to issue bonds in the sum of $900,000 for certain stated public improvements was submitted to the citizens of Los Angeles county, and less than ten per cent of the registered voters went to the polls. The issue was decided by a small fraction of those directly interested although the press of Los Angeles had discussed the proposition with considerable vigor.

A still more striking example was presented by the late State election in Louisiana. The returns show that only a paltry total of 34,855 votes was cast—about half the number polled at the Democratic primary which designated the candidates to be voted for. The lightness of the vote is to be ascribed to the failure of the Republicans to make a contest, but the workings of the referendum are illustrated by the failure of the vast majority of the voters to express themselves in regard to the adoption of a number of important amendments to the State Constitution. Of twelve amendments submitted, eleven carried. The highest vote recorded in favor of any one of the proposed changes in the organic law was 20,005—a mere fraction of the qualified electors. Although there were few contests for local offices, a greater number of electors expressed their preferences for individual candidates than voted on the constitutional amendments. But for the fact that State and county officers were to be elected the proposed amendments to the constitution would have been practically ignored.

The election in California illustrated the same popular indifference to vital matters. In every county the vote for candidates doubled and in some cases trebled the vote on the constitutional amendments. A vast number of citizens did not take the trouble to inform themselves as to the purport and effect of the proposed amendments. In consequence one of the most equitable and necessary of the proposed changes in the organic law—the one regulating and equalizating judicial salaries—failed of adoption.

What is the use of referring measures to the electors when the electors not only refuse to investigate them but abstain from voting on them? The referendum is open to many objections on the score of expediency and philosophical unsoundness, but the most sweeping objection yet presented is the absolute refusal of the electorate to either use it or treat it seriously.

Really we are of the opinion that there are a few honest men left in San Francisco. In fact, we don't believe the editors are half as bad as they represent each other to be.

PICTURE POSTALS IN OAKLAND

EDITOR TRIBUNE: The illustrated post card situation, as viewed in Oakland, is a very delicate question to deal with when you go into details in regard to their origin, objects of illustrations and the lessons taught by their circulation among the people.

The first post-cards which were published were illustrations of landscapes, Yosemite Falls, the valley in general, and other prominent places and points of interest which were welcomed by the public as fine pieces of art sketched from nature. We now have picture postals of everything possible—fine pieces of art, poetry and song.

These postals which a few of the public are strong in their condemning to the fire pit as unfit for the public gaze, are works of art and suggest nothing evil only to those who think of them as such. Any picture postal is a work of art no more to be despised than the fine art sculpture which we see on the streets and in our public parks.

And persons of artistic tastes are not so critical as some of those of other temperaments who look upon these works of art as very much undressed and vulgar. While in any studio of art one may view hundreds of these nude postals, busts and full stature of the sculptures, both feminine and masculine of the human family, aped of the animals and think nothing of them. These studios are open to the public the same as art stores and there is no more reason for criticisms against these postals than the art studios and nude busts and full stature of the sculptures.

The public in general do not criticize to any great extent the peek-a-boo waists, low cut evening gowns which are seen both in public and private.

It would be far better for the ladies who favor the peek-a-boo and the low cut gowns and the gents who approve of them and support their existence to refrain from criticising the exhibition of the art postals until reform has taken place upon the object from which these art postal cards are copied.

The rest of the world, to the knowledge of the writer, do not bode evil and dire calamity upon the artist who produces, the merchant who sells, nor the public who purchase these picture postals which are under the ban of a few of our Oakland folks.

When the dens of gambling and vice are entirely closed, which are vastly more dangerous to morals and virtues than a few art cards, when dress is again restored to its original design then will be the signal for reform among the critics, and not until that time shall be ushered in can universal picture postals be viewed other than works of art and fit for public gaze.

I am an art post-card
From Nature's best design,
By a great and noble artist,
To educate mankind.
And lo! I see it coming,
A protest from the few.
I'll live the same as ever,
And not my life undo.

I WONDER.

I wonder why such homely girls
Are often blessed with lovely curls.

I wonder why a kiss unsought
Tastes not so fetching as it ought.

I wonder why we ever know
As much as we did years ago.

I wonder why the cook we love
From us is always on the move.

BURIAL OF MICE MAY BE POPULAR

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 1.—A woman living on Bramhill avenue went to a near neighbor in great distress about two weeks ago and asked her if she knew any way in which she could save the life of a valuable house plant. The plant was drooping and rapidly dying despite the lady's best endeavors to save it.

"Yes, I know just the thing and the only thing that will save your plant," said the woman whose advice was solicited. "You may hold up your skirts in horror and say 'Rats,' when I tell you what it is, but I say 'Mice,' not 'Rats;' it's mice that will do the trick.

"You never have any in your house?" you say. "Well, never mind that; but get two or three mice somewhere, dead ones, of course, and just you plant them in the earth in your flower pot. See if that don't save your plant."

The information was received with incredulity and some disgust, but the woman with the ailing plant acted upon it. She got two mice—somewhere—and followed her neighbor's directions regarding the rodents' interment. Within three days she observed that the plant was beginning to revive, and it continued to thrive until now it is as healthy a specimen of plant life as it was when it came from the florist's and is spreading itself all over the lady's flower pot.

There promises to be quite a demand for mice in the neighborhood.

TO ESTABLISH RAILWAY TAX

Sessions In Washington Made Necessary by the New Rate Law.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Officials in the accounting departments of the railroads, with representatives of the State Railways Commissioners Association, will be in Washington most of next week in conference with the chief statistician of the commission.

The purpose of the commission will be to arrive at, if possible, an agreement on a method of attaining uniformity in the bookkeeping and accounting methods of the railroads and to agree upon the items which shall be put in the reports of the railroads to the interstate commerce commission and how they shall be determined.

In many ways, this is one of the most important matters to be decided by the commission under the new law. The widest and most absolute powers granted under the statute are those covering this matter of uniformity of accounting and publicity of records. The commission could hardly have larger powers than the law gives it. To enforce these provisions, Prof. Henry C. Adams, of the University of Michigan, was engaged as chief statistician and has since been formulating plans for co-operation with the railroads in agreeing on accounting systems.

Monday, the committee on railway statistics of the Statte Railroad Commissioners, composed of D. H. Meyer of Wisconsin; Thomas Yapp of Minnesota, and D. N. Lewis of Iowa, with C. I. Sturgis, of the Railway Auditors' association, will meet and discuss plans for separating the earnings of roads by states. This is one of the most difficult problems. On it depends largely the taxation values in the different states, and it is also the basis of rates fixed by state railroad commissions. After a plan is agreed upon and accepted by the Interstate Commerce Commission, effort will be made to induce the State legislatures to approve and enact it into their statutes. Thus conformity will have been secured as one of the most important matters in connection with railroad legislation.

Wednesday, the standing committee of two officials of the accounting departments of the railroads will commence with the probability of remaining a week. They will discuss with Mr. Adams the new classification of operating expenses, by which it is hoped among other things to arrive at a accurate determination of expenditures of the roads for traffic and for the carrying on of permanent improvements and maintenance.

MONSTER PALM LEAF FOSSIL IS FOUND

DENVER, Dec. 1.—A magnificent specimen of fossil palmetto leaf recently found in North Denver has been presented to the State Historical and Natural History Society.

The leaf covers the surface of a slab of sandstone four feet long by three feet wide and evidently had an original surface of twice these dimensions, leaves of these specimens of palms sometimes occurring as large as ten feet in diameter. The tree to which this specimen of leaf belonged was a relative of of the palmetto tree of the South Atlantic States, and which has been chosen as the State emblem of South Carolina.

A considerable number of stumps of petrified palm wood have been found on the heights above Sloan's Lake and in other places near Denver and Golden, fine specimens of which can be seen in the collection of the State School of Mines and of the East Denver High School.

At the time when these palmetto groves flourished in this vicinity Denver was occupied by a semi-tropical swamp and a warm, humid climate like that of the Gulf States extended as far north as the Arctic Circle.

CRAZY CHINAMAN FOUND BY CONSTABLE

Wandering about aimlessly in a demented condition, Gum See, a Chinaman, was found by Constable Tom Carroll of Brooklyn township, yesterday afternoon near Fruitvale.

Eight days ago Judge Ellsworth dismissed the Chinaman of a charge of insanity and had him sent on the county hospital. He wandered away from the hospital and was found in a field by the constable, where he had probably been over night.

Gum See was ushered for the second time to the Emergency hospital, where he was given a bed for the night. Steward Borchert tried to learn something about the Celestial's ailment through a Chinese interpreter, but Gum see could not be understood. It seems quite evident that the Chinaman is mentally unbalanced.

I said to the Doctors, Boltey & Lobay, when I went for treatment: "If you can cure me, after all the different medicines and doctors I have tried, it will be a very important case for you to refer to." Gradually the catarrhal matter became less troublesome in my nose and the dropping in my throat was checked. My stomach got better and my cough stopped entirely. I think it was because there was no more gathering of catarrhal matter in my bronchial tubes and throat.

Slowly but surely the evidence of Catarrh left me, and the Doctors told me my blood was pure and free from Catarrh, and then I did not need any more treatment, and I am most grateful for my present good health, as I feared I was doomed to consumption.

CAR FAMINE CAUSES LOSS

Farmers of Livermore Valley Cannot Move Hay Owing to Scarcity of Cars

LIVERMORE Dec 1—The hay producers of the Livermore Valley stand to lose $115 000 through the inability of the Southern Pacific Company to supply cars enough to move that crop There are 30 000 tons of hay on storage in the warehouses of Livermore waiting movement to San Francisco Oakland and Eastern points, and if this hay could be moved at once or even in the next six weeks the farmers and warehousemen could realize $3 a ton more than the hay cost them and the failure to secure the proper car service means that a loss of this figure if not more confronts these men

The car famine in Livermore is very serious and appears as a threat alike to all [illegible] No satisfaction can be obtained from the officials of the Southern Pacific Company other than the statement that Livermore is getting its share of cars

The situation is so serious that one hay merchant of San Francisco C E Gross by name was compelled to pay $19.50 a ton for a carload of hay in Livermore simply because that hay happened to be already in a car and [illegible] it sent to San Francisco without unloading when he already had 3000 tons of hay in different warehouses in Livermore and Pleasanton on which he had paid $11.50 a ton but for which he could not get even a single car

HAD TO HAVE HAY

"I absolutely had to have the hay and I had tried for thirty days to get even one car to have some of it moved" said Gross "I finally paid $8 a ton more than the hay that I have in warehouses cost me solely because I could get that particular carload shipped"

It is so with many others C W Miller & Co who have the contract to supply the United States army at Monterey [illegible] thousands of [illegible] because [illegible] can not get his [illegible] for the government [illegible] plenty of hay on storage [illegible] and other places to meet his contract but he cannot get the cars and the government is exacting from him the penalty for failure to deliver

People in San Francisco are paying all the way from $20 to $24 a ton for hay when there are 30 000 tons in this valley that could be thrown on the market at once and which would reduce the market price to about $15.00 a ton which would leave the hay men a profit and [illegible] to the consumers at a fair price It is not that there is any shortage of hay but the fear that [illegible] cannot be moved that is keeping the price up in San Francisco This difference is not being made by the hay men or the farmers for when the [illegible] has no [illegible] storage [illegible] the market the price [illegible] to where it should be [illegible] the [illegible] are [illegible] the Southern Pacific [illegible] cannot furnish the cars [illegible] absolute necessity

The only cars that are coming into Livermore are the few that come in loaded with merchandise to the town and which are loaded out by the hay men These cars are apportioned to the different warehouses in turn or they do not average four a day M G Callaghan manager of the Callaghan Warehouse Company estimates that 20 cars a day would be needed for every day between now and June 1st in order to move the present crop of Livermore hay Mr Callaghan who is one of the leading hay men of this section explained the situation saying

HAY CROP 30 000 TONS

"The shortage of cars for moving the hay of this section is the most serious question that [illegible] the Livermore Valley today The [illegible] of this section is estimated at about 30 000 tons and while the crop has generally been very good and the quality is excellent [illegible] because we [illegible] move it [illegible] San Francisco [illegible] ers and are [illegible] waiting [illegible] ing and [illegible] for hay the price in San Francisco [illegible] abnormally high [illegible] hay really [illegible] not get [illegible] last 30 days [illegible] 150 [illegible] tons to [illegible] moved just 300 tons [illegible] ment [illegible] who people [illegible] be paying more [illegible] no one [illegible] would like [illegible] ket and [illegible] It is [illegible] money [illegible] not get [illegible] price at all

Instead [illegible] threatened with [illegible] cause there is [illegible] of hay [illegible] not be shipped"

The firms most affected by the shortage of cars [illegible] Callaghan Warehouse Company [illegible] San Francisco [illegible] and M G Callaghan [illegible] president [illegible] Company [illegible] Wright [illegible] Bank of Livermore [illegible] Warehouse Company [illegible] and S S [illegible] Livermore [illegible] Farmers Warehouse Company T D Collins of San Francisco and M G Callaghan of Livermore and [illegible] bacher Bros

HALLEY WAS DEAD GAME

Broke His Arm Stopping Runaway, But Delivered Coal Just the Same.

BERKELEY Dec 1—A display of grit shown by Francis Halley a teamster in the employ of Charles Allen a Water street coal dealer can seldom be found The young man was delivering a half ton of coal in Berkeley and when on a hill near Hawthorne Terrace one of his horses balked and in making a quick turn hit the crossing with such a thump that the driver was thrown off his seat to the pavement

The right elbow was fractured as a result of the fall The plucky teamster hung to the reins and prevented what might have been a serious runaway With the broken arm Halley climbed back onto the box and took up his journey with the coal

The residence at Hawthorne Terrace was situated on a high bank but the teamster carried the ten 100 pound sacks of coal up the bank and into the basement The lady told him he could leave the fuel on the sidewalk but with his left arm carried the coal to the bunkers in the basement

The injured member began to cause him some pain so he drove with the one hand to Oakland and went to the Receiving Hospital where Dr Irwin set the elbow and the man went home feeling none the worse for the injury except that he will be laid up from work for a few weeks

Mr Halley seems to have his share of broken limbs for he has had his collar bone broken and also a leg fractured

Byrne. The Rev. Father Griffin, pastor of the church officiated. The bride had as her attendant Miss Nellie St. Clair of San Francisco, and the duty of best man was perfomed by J. J. Healy, a life-long friend of the groom. An informal reception and an elaborate wedding breakfast followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's father, M. A. Cull, near Irvington. Although the guest list numbered only a very few of the immediate relatives of the bride and groom, the home was prettily decorated for the affair. The happy couple, after receiving the congratulations of their friends, departed on their honeymoon for Lake Tahoe. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Byrn will occupy their pretty home near Irvington, where Mr. Byrne has extensive land interests.

GUILLOTINE OF FRANCE MAY REST

DEATH PENALTY TO BE ABOLISHED SOON IN FRANCE.

BY PAUL VILLIERS.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—France is about to abolish capital punishment. Executions have recently became extremely rare in France, and there has been no guillotining in Paris since 1899.

Two great criminal experts, MM. Goron and Jaume, who were head and chief inspector respectively of the criminal detective department, agree with the government in proposing to abolish the death penalty.

"Murderers," says M. Jaume, "make as light of the guillotine as of their victims. They invariably speculate on the indulgence of the courts, and if the worst comes it is over in three minutes. They do not cling to life, and their only care is to make a plucky show on the scaffold."

Far from preventing crime by the guillotine, the French police find that murders have increased to an enormous extent recently, but this may be due to the readiness shown by presidents of the republic to sign pardons for condemned prisoners.

As an alternative to the guillotine, M. Garon suggests a life sentence, during which the criminal should be closely confined and have no hope of release. This should be a more effective deterrent to the recklessly criminal "Apache."

Paris in the future may be lighted by electricity generated by an artificial Niagara 225 miles away.

The municipal council has a scheme to construct a great dam 210 feet high on the Rhone at Seyssel, near Geneva, and to generate electric power by the artificial falls thus created. The city will be illuminated, so to speak, by water power.

The project, which will cost $12,000,000, was originated by Monsieur Mahl, who, with four other Parisian experts, is now in Geneva as a commission to examine and report on the project.

Apropos of the discovery that a police officer at Seville, Spain, who was accidentally injured, was a woman, it is pointed out that there are several ladies in France who for professional reasons have been officially granted permission to wear masculine dress.

The late Rosa Bonheur obtained permission to dress as a man when attending horse fairs and abatoirs to make sketches for her famous animal pictures.

A woman journalist has this privilege, which has also been granted to a lady who devotes herself to exploration.

Mme. Du Gast, the intrepid sportswoman and friend of the Moorish brigand Raisuli, has appeared in bifurcated garments, which are more like masculine breeches than the ordinary "bloomers."

There is also a lady sculptor in Paris who elects to wear trousers, and is to be seen on the boulevards every morning walking with her dog.

The magnificent Villa d'Easte, near Tivoli, in Italy, which was built by a son of Lucrezia Borgia, is the subject of a coming lawsuit between the heir of the late Cardinal Hohenlohe and the Archduke Franz Merdinand, crown prince of Austria-Hungary.

Cardinal Hohenlohe found the villa forty years ago in a state of dilapidation and neglect, and he arranged with the owner, the last Duke of Modena, that the latter should loan the mansion to him on condition that he undertook all maintenance and repair expenses.

The cardinal spent about $65,000 on the villa. Afterward the Duke of Modena tried to sell the villa and agreed that a third of the price should be handed to Cardinal Hohenlohe as a recompense for his restoration of the place.

The Archduke Frank Ferdinand inherited the Villa d'Easte and the cardinal's heir is now suing him for $64,000, part of the money spent upon it.

The medical aspect of automobilism is thus set forth by Dr. Legendre, the famous physician:

"The automobile should be forbidden in cases of tuberculosis with fever, congestion of the lungs and liver, and gastric ulcer. The effect is good in certain skin affections, where rapid passage through the air produces vaso-constriction, followed by vaso-dilation when the exercise is over."

"Auto exercise has improved cases of emphysema, nervous asthma, chlorosis, certain alimentary affections, including gastralgia, anorexia and chronic constipation.

"I would urge the avoidance of automobile journeys by patients suffering from varicose veins, epilepsy, alcoholism and obesity. In certain forms of heart disease, too, auto exercise is to be avoided, as with such patients the results may prove serious."

Mr. Walter Wellman, who is now in Paris, is very busy making preparations for his expedition to the North Pole next year. At Asnieres, near Paris, the workmen have begun to erect a large workshop in which the polar airship, "The America," will be reconstructed during the coming month. The plan of reconstruction to be carried out has been designed by Mr. Wellman himself, and he says it will mark an advance in aeronautics as applied to geographical research. It is thought that the balloon will have a better chance to reach the Pole than did the vessel of Commander Peary.

France is to have its cancer institute for the treatment of the disease and researches into its nature. Professor Poirier, the well-known specialist, has just announced that an effort is to be made by leading scientists to follow the lead of other countries in this respect, and an appeal is to be made to the public for funds.

Baron Dr. Henri de Rothschild was the first to step forward and hand a check for $20,000 to the famous physician as a nest egg for the coming fund. His brother, Baron Edouard, has now followed suit for a similar sum. Probably a lottery of several millions of dollars will be started to get the money together.

A picture of the French artist Laurens, the "Death of Marceau," has been bought by Japan. This picture sold at the sale of the effects of the late M Jaluzot, former director of the great city dry goods store, "Le Printemps," for much less than its value. It was offered to the French government, but was not accepted.

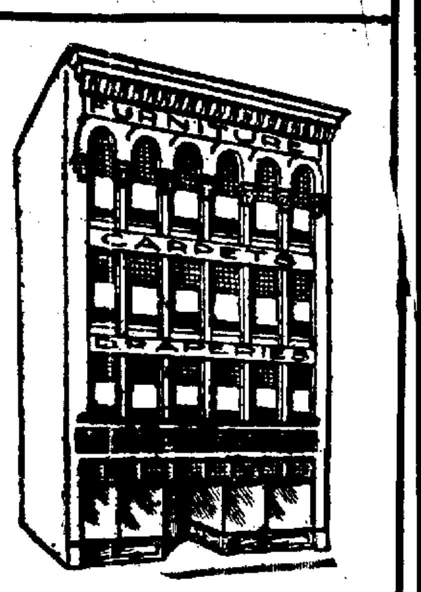
CULLIGAN'S
MANUFACTURER'S AGENT

$75.00 Honest Furniture for $1.00 a Week

Caught!



An unscrupulous merchant offers our factories a money inducement to stop selling us goods, but as we are the factories' representative and are under contract with the factories, we will still give the customer the benefit of our saving $20 on every $100.00 worth of honest furniture.

As we have told you before, the big stores cannot make any money by selling at OUR PRICES, BECAUSE THEIR EXPENSE IS SO GREAT to keep up the enormous rents and great expense. WE are under no great expense and we PURPOSELY keep our expense down by having a sample room for a show place of our furniture, and thus WE GET THE BUSINESS by saving 20 per cent to our customers.

Of course, to some the show that the larger stores give means something and they are willing to pay for it, but where money must be saved it is foolish to pay it for mere show. The wife must economize and an economist knows where to go for the best value. Take $100.00 to buy your furniture and go to CULLIGAN'S "Big Little Store Around the Corner"—when you come out you will have bought just what you wanted in furniture and still have $20.00 for yourself. Try it!

JAPAN HAS CONFIDENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—"Japan has every confidence that President Roosevelt will adjust the California school controversy entirely to the satisfaction of both nations. Feeling this confidence, Japan has ceased to be agitated over the situation. The Japanese newspapers are emphatically moderate in all their notices of the affair, and so far as the Japanese nation is concerned, there is absolutely no reason for the revival of the newspaper notoriety in this country."

It was further said that there were no new developments in the situation of any character; that the matter was in the hands of President Roosevelt, and his willingness and ability to act was entirely relied upon.

M. T. MINNEY

REMARKABLE SUCCESS OF REAL ESTATE BROKER

Mr. M. T. Minney has just completed the organization of the "M. T. Minney Company," which has been incorporated under the laws of California for the purpose of carrying on a general Real Estate and Insurance business. The capital stock of the new company is 100,000 shares of the par value of $1.00 per share. The stock was all spoken for before the company was fully organized. The large proportions to which Mr. Minney's business has grown made it necessary to employ considerable help and the principal object in incorporating was to band together a number of high-class men who would all be personally interested in the success of the company and the character of the men to enter into the organization has been the first consideration and the money they would put in was considered a secondary matter, although the use of additional capital will also be important as it will enable the company to buy and sell Real Estate on their own account and thereby take advantage of some of the wonderful opportunities for quick profit which the present situation offers. It is a mistake to think because prices of Oakland real estate have advanced considerably that they are high now. The city has advanced in a far greater degree than real estate prices and these prices are still very low compared with other cities of like size and importance. Outside people who are not familiar with old prices here and can, therefore, see the present situation without prejudice, are as a whole, much quicker to realize present values than people who have resided here for some time and who find it hard to forget the low prices of property a short time ago, but probably no one will fully realize what golden opportunities the present situation offers until the time has passed.

Mr. Minney has been in the Real Estate business in Oakland only a few months, but during that time has built up a very large business, and is now one of the best known brokers in town. He considers that his success is due in a large measure to liberal advertising, which has been confined to straightforward, legitimate lines. Another feature which has contributed largely to his success has been the securing under exclusive contract of all properties offered for sale by him. In this way the buyers are not disappointed by the prices being raised or the property being withdrawn after a deposit has been made which happens so often on a rising market.

The company find their present quarters much too small to accommodate their present business and have purchased the lease of the Novelty Candy Company on Broadway next to the Novelty Theater, where they will move at once and fit up more suitable quarters. This location is one of the very best to be had in Oakland. Several salesmen have been added to assist in showing property. Another feature of this company's business that will be carried out more fully in the future is the exhibiting of photographs of property listed with them for sale. In this way buyers are enabled to decide at once whether or not a property is suited to their needs and thereby much valuable time will be saved. It shall be the object of this firm to adopt every possible means to save time for all concerned in buying or selling property through this office.

The officers and directors of the company are as follows:

Directors—J. A. Sutton, Edward E. Avery, J. K. Ritter, D. F. Minney, M. T. Minney.

All of the stockholders and members of the company are actively engaged in the business. Mr. Sutton has been for several years Traveler for the New Home Sewing Machine Company, and is well known on this coast. Mr. Edward E. Avery has for the past twelve years represented the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company in California. He has been very successful and has made a great many friends throughout the State. Previous to the fire Captain J. K. Ritter was in business in San Francisco, where he was well known socially and as a leader in the affairs of several prominent fraternal orders.

BAILEY ON THE GRILL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Senator Bailey of Texas, who resented the imputation that he was in any way connected with the Standard Oil company, has been put on the rack by Attorney General Davidson of Texas, who asked some searching questions indicating that if the Senator received certain large sums of money from the Waters-Pierce Oil company he must explain whether they were loans, and if so, when paid; if fees, why were they given?

The questions politely put to Senator Bailey by Attorney General Davidson have just become known here and are as follows:

"That you have an opportunity of explaining the facts suggested by the notice filed by us in the discharge of official duty. I make the following statement and ask the following questions:

"April 18, 1900, you received from H. C. Pierce $3300. This was subsequently returned to H. C. Pierce by the Waters-Pierce Oil company and charged as 'account of Texas case.'

"Was the sum given to you as a loan or as a fee? If a loan, has it ever been paid? If a fee, for what service?

"On June 15, 1900, a charge was made in the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil company of $1500 as paid to Henry & Stribling on account of expense of anti-trust civil case.

"Was not this sum paid by a sight draft drawn by you? You have stated that you did not draw on the Waters-Pierce company for such sum.

"Did you draw a draft on H. C. Pierce or J. D. Johnson? You received $200 on November 23, 1900, which was charged up on the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil company or H. C. Pierce in Texas, or in any other case other than the anti-trust case. Was the sum paid to you by H. C. Pierce or the Waters-Pierce Oil company?

"On March 28, 1901, or about that time, you wrote a letter to H. C. Pierce, in response to which you received New York exchange for $1750. This sum was charged up on the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil company as 'on account of Texas legal expenses.'

"Did you in this letter request a loan, or did you demand a fee? If a loan, has it been paid? If a fee, for what service?

"On March 17, 1901, you executed your note for $8000, due in four months, to H. C. Pierce. You received Pierce's check for the amount. He immediately had the amount repaid him by the Waters-Pierce Oil company. Has this note ever been paid? Has payment ever been deman[illegible]

J. A. Jackson Cannot be Found and Friends Notify Police of Fact.

The relatives of J. A. Jacsen, a young man of twenty-six years, who lives in Berkeley, and has an automobile garage at that place, are greatly worried concerning his whereabouts. He left his place of business Friday evening to go to his home, but up to late yesterday afternoon his folks had heard no word of him. His aunt, Mrs. M. J. Jackson, of 519 Clark avenue, telephoned to the Receiving hospital to see if he had been brought there, but no trace could be found of him.

He complained of being ill before leaving for home Friday.

Proposed Marriage Even Threatens Peace of All Europe.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—A curious and involved plot is on foot, in which love and politics are strangely blended and in which the Spanish succession is put in danger by personal friends of the reigning monarchs.

A marriage, I hear, has been arranged between the Princess Louise de France, who represents the royal house of Orleans, and Prince Charles de Bourbon-Sicily. The union of these two houses means much to Spain and perhaps to the peace of Europe.

Prince Charles is the son of Prince Alphonse de Bourbon and, among his powerful relatives are his brother, Prince Ferdinand, Duke de Calabria, who is married to Princess Marie de Bavaria, his sister Marie, who is engaged to Prince de Saxe; and another sister, the archduchesse Pierre Ferdinand D'Austria.

Moreover—and here is the one strange phase of the situation, Prince Charles is a widower, his first wife having been the infanta Maria Delmas Mercedes, the sister of King Alfonso of Spain. He is therefore brother-in-law of the king. He has two motherless children, Prince Alphonso, aged six, and the little princess Isabella, aged two. Now, the little Alphonso, is the heir apparent to the crown of Spain, and should Queen Victoria (Ena) not become the mother of a son, or should she be "removed," little Alphonse's heirship would continue to be direct.

It is to be noted, also, that Prince Charles is a naturalized Spanish citizen, occupies the high rank of general of brigade, Spanish army, and is much beloved by the Spanish people.

The Princess Louise de France is the youngest daughter of the Countess de Paris, who is a daughter of the Duc de Montpensir, and a Spaniard.

She, too, has powerful relatives. She is a sister of the Duc D'Orleans, of the Queen of Portugal, of the Duchess Helene D'Aosta, of the Duchess de Guise and of the Duc de Montpensir. Also is the niece of Princess Vladimir of Denmark and the grand niece of Louis Phillipe. She is the warm personal friend of the young queen of Spain.

The Princess Elouise is a beautiful young woman, with a captivating regard, an unusual intelligence, is a daring horse woman, a liberal patron of the arts and generally beloved.

In fact she has nearly all the qualities which Queen Ena has not. Given, therefore, the fact that Queen Ena is not liked by the Spaniards, and it will be readily understood how full of menace to the present royal family of Spain is the approaching union of these two great Franco-Spanish legitimist families.

HARTLEY & CO. PLEAD GUILTY

They Received Rebates From St. Louis Road—Court Imposes Heavy Fine.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 1.—Henry S. Hartley, senior member of the grain brokerage firm of H. S. Hartley & Company, pleaded guilty in the United States District Court today to receiving rebates from the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad.

Judge Carland, before whom the plea was entered, assessed the minimum penalty for the offense, a fine of $1000 and granted the broker until Wednesday to pay the fine.

Hartley was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury November 12. The evidence laid before the jury was to the effect that Hartley had shipped in February, 1905, 500 sacks of cotton seed meal from points in Indian Territory, the ostensible destination being Carrolton, Mo. By diverting the shipment at Kansas City he secured a rate of five cents a hundred pounds less than should have been paid. In entering a plea of guilty today Hartley's attorney said:

"Mr. Hartley is unable to deny the charges made in the indictment."

BERKELEY, Dec. 1.—Beneath a bower of ferns and pink roses, Miss Ednah Harmon Wickson tonight became the bride of William Frank Kelley, general manager and superintendent of the Oakland Traction Company. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Professor and Mrs. E. J. Wickson, at 2723 Bancroft way. The bride was attended by her three sisters, Miss Catherine Wickson acting as maid of honor, and Misses Ida and Gladys as bridesmaids. Walter Leimert of Oakland attended the groom.

The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. George Eldridge of St. John's parish of San Francisco.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by Professor and Mrs. Wickson. Eighteen of the bride's most intimate friends were seated at the bride's table. The other guests were seated at smaller tables grouped about the center table.

The bride and groom are both well known in society circles on both sides of the bay. Miss Wickson is a graduate of the University of California and is a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

After a short honeymoon the couple will return to Oakland, where they will reside. Mr. Kelly has built an attractive home for his bride on Vernon Heights.

HIGH CLASS OF ANIMALS IS SURPRISE

SECOND WEEK AT OAKLAND TRACK BETTER THAN FIRST

Horses Are Rapidly Rounding Into Fast Form

By LEE DEMIER

It [illegible] looking back over the past week's racing [illegible] pounded to see the high class of animals that have been performing at Williams Park. Of course Thanksgiving was the banner day of the week and the card presented to the public on that day was par excellence. The track was sloppy but that did not mar the day's sport [illegible] fast time was made in all races. The day was beautiful [illegible] an immense crowd was on hand [illegible] estimated between [illegible] persons. It was the largest attendance ever recorded on a California track. Society was well represented and the many beautiful gowns that graced the lawns and grand stand were freely commented on. Fair women and handsome men were seen everywhere. The stand was crowded with the gentle sex while the betting ring was a pushing mob [illegible] endeavoring to wager their money on their choices. To get [illegible] up was next to impossible. Such a jam of good natured people pushing and jostling each other was never seen on the [illegible] before.

FEATURE WAS EASY

The feature event was a very easy win for Mr. Rudolph Spreckels' Borghesi [illegible] this [illegible] come with the [illegible] popular and the [illegible] heavily played. This was Mr. S[illegible] [illegible] the turf as an owner [illegible] the stud horse [illegible] building up a large stable [illegible] the turf and greatly [illegible].

Walter Jennings' good handicap horse Proper was made to [illegible] and ran a swell race finishing second but the weight he [illegible] the winner [illegible] finishing [illegible] Lubin ran a [illegible] a little longer [illegible] finished a close up fourth.

CHRISTMAS HANDICAP

It is to be hoped [illegible] handicap Christmas Day will be run on a fast track so as to [illegible] the merits of Sam Hildreth's [illegible] tella with B[illegible] If the track [illegible] fast the contest will [illegible] traveling miles to see and the accommodations would [illegible] to take care of the immense throng that would turn out.

On the same day that Borghesi won another race [illegible] the value of the handicap [illegible] attractive [illegible] In this race as [illegible] a lot of sprinters as ever faced the [illegible] lined up. Shot Gun the superb [illegible] runner belonging to Walter Jennings was a [illegible] favorite but had to be content with second place to the great Cruzados, a horse who has a wonderful [illegible] of speed and ran the five furlongs in the fast time of [illegible] on a sloppy track making his [illegible] stand out [illegible] [illegible] Burleigh came in third. The consistent three year old Gypsy King [illegible] table was [illegible] left. Great things were expected [illegible] the last [illegible] and it was unfortunate that he got away [illegible].

JENNINGS BAD LUCK

Walter Jennings has been in bad luck since the opening, as yet being [illegible] over the [illegible] though his horses have been [illegible] near the [illegible]. [illegible] trust this popular winner will soon break the [illegible] and repeat his many successes [illegible] the past on the California turf.

Another well liked and popular owner who seems to be followed by a hoodoo at the present meeting is Garnet Ferguson. This young man has yet to win his first race of the season. His hard luck horse Military Man has been in what looked to be two soft spots since the opening but could do no better than show. In his last start the horse pulled up very lame and will be unable to face the barrier for some time. No more popular win would be welcomed by race goers than to see this well known owner's colors flash by the wire first. He has the good will and confidence of all true lovers of the game.

For consistency the gelding Montendo belonging to D. Conley about takes the palm. Out of four starts he has won them all easily never being extended and always at a good price.

On Monday November [illegible] Harry Stover's colt Native Son ridden by Willie Dugan reversed the decision over Tony Faust winning [illegible] up. This colt looks about the best two year old in racing [illegible] and should annex some of the stakes for three year olds later on in the season.

BELDAME HANDICAP

The Beldame handicap at six and one half furlongs of last Tuesday was won by Romaine at the good odds of 5 to 1. This horse has been one of the most consistent animals racing here for the past three seasons and is always to be depended on to run his race. The favorite Gypsy King was badly ridden by Knapp being unplaced. The lad has been unfortunate in his riding of favorites of late but it is to be hoped that he will soon hit his stride and put up some of his old time rides.

FIRST MUDDY TRACK.

The first changeable track of the season came on Wednesday, when a heavy rain put the track in a muddy condition but the form of the horses if anything was keener that day than any other so far. Four well-backed favorites won while a heavily played equal choice also won and only one outsider got in first. Favorites fared much better the second week than the first eighteen winning out of thirty-six races. The great run of luck for the bookmakers broke and they have had their bankrolls considerably depleted during the week but at that the largest number of books ever seen here has been operating. On Thanksgiving Day thirty-one books were doing business in the big ring while four fields and one combination took care of the smaller play.

HAS JOCKEY HONORS.

Graham carried off the jockey honors for the week having won five mounts while Knapp rode four winners L. Williams four and McIntyre four. Knapp though still heads the winning jockeys. Sam Hildreth was unable to follow up his successes of the previous week and did not put over a winner though he had horses en-

The finishes of the past week were not of the sensational kind, or the former week most of the wins being of an easy nature while the first few days the one two three horses went under the wire so close that only the judges were able to place them.

THIRTY-ONE BUSY BOOKS.

The ring instead of decreasing in volume of business done has steadily increased to such an extent that the thirty-one books doing business could hardly handle the money. The horses are gradually rounding to form and the battle between players and bookies is very keen.

One of the noticeable features of the year's meeting is the large attendance from this side of the bay, and it increases each day as the meeting progresses.

YESTERDAY'S RACES.

The week's racing was brought to a close yesterday and the weather was all that could be asked for. The attendance was very large. Outside of the holiday and opening day Saturday's crowd was the biggest of the meeting. Twenty-six bookies made the weight for the big ring while three field and one combination took care of the want of the public. The bookmakers dodged the issue and could not stand the public onslaught and regularity in picking the winning horses.

Saturday's feature event was the prettiest race of the week and resulted in a nose finish between Rubric the winner and Sir Edward. It was a case where little Sandy put it over L. Williams at the finish. At that, the best horse won as Rubric met with much interference at the start and was in several pockets but when he got clear sailing made up a world of ground, and Sandy's ride called for rounds of applause. Lubin in this race showed greatly improved form and finished third in the fast time of 1 39 4 5 for the mile. The route was considered too short for this old fellow and he will have to be reckoned with in future handicaps over a distance of ground.

The first race of the day was won by Prestige at 6 to 1. Lustig the favorite got away bad but finished a fast-going second. In the second race for two-year olds Gemmell showed his heels to a pretty shifty lot winning easily. He was a 4 to 5 chance and won like one at these odds should. Mahtah got the place while Gromobi showed.

Mansard a prohibitive favorite, romped home in the third event. The fifth race was won by Dutiful, though Orchan who placed was best. He got away bad was in all sorts of pockets and never got clear until near the paddock where he just run over horses.

HORSE SALES TO SETTLE ESTATES

There will be an auction sale of brood mares and other good racing material in the near future to settle up the estates of Bert Kavanaugh and Caesar Young.

ST. MARYS AND ALL STARS TODAY

This afternoon St. Marys will line up against their old rivals the All Stars. Last year the two teams played until dark neither side being able to bring a man as far as third during the [illegible] innings. Hopkins and McGregor [illegible] each other. The following Sunday [illegible] inning encounter brought [illegible] to St. Marys by [illegible] to 1.

The All Stars will have practically the same line up as a year ago and as St. Marys has changed its personnel somewhat some comparison of the Phoenix [illegible] and that of 07 will naturally be drawn. The game will be called at 2 30.

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

LOS ANGELES, Dec [illegible]—There are [illegible] fights to the [illegible] O'Brien [illegible] nothing [illegible] newest thing in [illegible] lights. [illegible] was drawn [illegible] ink. In the main event [illegible] O'Brien was bleeding [illegible] though someone had daubed his face with a good coat [illegible] daring was [illegible] but [illegible] fight.

[illegible] In both respects Jeffries [illegible] is as burly and as active as in the days before his retirement. He seemed to be well trimmed [illegible] and it should [illegible] times the [illegible] at [illegible].

JEFF EMBARRASSED

Jeffries was [illegible] embarrassed when the dispute arose over the pneumatic belt worn by Burns. O'Brien claimed that this stomach protector would serve as a cushion to the body punches he inflicted upon Tommy and [illegible] that [illegible] might turn the wrist when the blow was sent in. He swore he would not box unless Burns removed his [illegible] belt and Burns on the other hand declared he would refuse to toe the scratch rather than fight without his belt.

Things looked gloomy for a while and Jeffries made the rounds of sporting writers and sporting notables asking what they thought should be done under the circumstances.

I don't know exactly how to decide, said Jeffries. No matter what I do I will be accused of favoring one or the other.

What would you think of the matter if you yourself were opposed to a man wearing such a thing was asked of Jeffries.

I wouldn't care a snap what he wore said the big fellow with a look of disgust.

BURNS IMPROVED

The contest was a very interesting one and so fast that the attention of the crowd was held from start to finish. Burns showed wonderful improvement over other performances of his that I have witnessed. His fight with Hart particularly was an insipid exhibition.

He seemed to be leary of the big Kentuckian. He struck out in a halting way and he grabbed at every opportunity. With O'Brien he fought like a man whose blood was up and whose courage and confidence were intact. He hated O'Brien and it seems to me that it mightn't be a bad idea for Tommy to learn to detest all of his future opponents.

Burns was poorly handled. To begin with his eagerness to make a rough headstrong contest should have been counterbalanced by advice from the men in his corner. Instead of that when Burns jumped to his feet at the starting bell of each round bent upon making a cannon ball rush some one of his seconds actually pushed him for the purpose of adding an impetus to the Canadian's bull-like charges. So vehement were these pushed him for the purpose of adding but sent on his face more than once.

MARVEL OF DEFENSE

O'Brien's fight was a marvel of defensive work. He decided early in the game that he was no match for the Canadian at free arm work when half clinched, and he made his feet twinkle in spoiling Tommy's scheme for close-in battling.

O'Brien, With His Crippled Arm, Was a Marvel of Defensive Work in the Ring.

Excuses after a fight are not well received but it is plain cold fact that O'Brien went into the ring with a crippled left arm. He struck the inner side of the elbow joint against Battling Swanson's head during a practice bout at the training quarters and the injured member was almost double the size of his other arm at the point of injury when he answered the gong.

Burns' rough tactics made matters worse for O'Brien and before the contest was half way through the Philadelphian could only work a straight left with the greatest difficulty and with comparatively little punishing force.

Whether it is much of a figure so far as general results were concerned is a matter that it isn't easy to decide. Burns with his immense strength would have made things uncomfortable for O'Brien no doubt if O'Brien had been arm-whole. Burns has earned the right to be considered in the first flight of latter-day heavyweights such as they are.

EFFECT ON JEFF

The contest did nothing toward reviving talk of a return to the ring on the part of James J. Jeffries the general opinion being that either O'Brien or Burns would be as a child in the hands of the big farmer. Pity it is too for Jeffries is really inclined to take another whack at the game.

I'll tell you how I discovered the fact. When Jeffries first retired I asked him if he could foresee anything that might bring him into the ring again at a future time. He told me that if any foreigner came to these shores and defeated the best of the American heavyweights at that period in sight he would challenge said foreigner to battle.

Does that still go? I asked Jeff the night of the Burns-O'Brien match.

It surely does said Jeffries. That is if I am not back in the game before the foreigner puts in an appearance.

I tried to get Jeffries to talk a little more freely on the subject of his possible return to fisticuffs but he merely smiled and kept his own counsel.

I know a fellow does not improve any while laying off was a remark volunteered by Jeffries and putting this and that together I am persuaded that the big fellow hankers after just one more battle and does not want to leave the ring until a time when his wonderful fighting powers will have been affected by years of pugilistic inactivity.

MAY FIGHT AGAIN.

It may be the love of a ring conquest will overcome Jeff's love of farming but according to the retired champion's friends the prospect of an exciting hunting trip would draw Jeffries away from a match-making conference at any time. Here is a story told in this connection by one of Jeff's intimates.

Los Angeles as everyone knows has been a scene of real estate activity for a few years past. A friend went to Jeffries and told him of a piece of property that could be acquired for $20 000 and which in the language of the agent was a good buy. After listening to the details Jeffries decided that it was a bargain he could not afford to pass up. He made arrangements to go with his informant next day and put up a sum of money to bond the deal but that night Jeffries learned from another friend that there was a wild boar cavorting around somewhere in the bottom lands of the Colorado river.

That settled it. Next day instead of going to the bank to obtain the forfeit money Jeffries was on the route with a Winchester and a camping outfit to interview his bearship.

$700 BAIL KEEPS BAKER FROM GOING TO TONOPAH

VALLEJO, Dec [illegible]—Harry Baker [illegible] well known featherweight boxer [illegible] about the most [illegible] in the [illegible] State [illegible]. Harry is under contract to go to Tonopah to train Hermann for his battle with Joe Gans but cannot leave the State as he is under heavy bonds to answer two charges of battery on Sam Coffee the proprietor of the Napa skating rink and another charge of disturbing the peace. Baker has up $700 of his prize-arena won coin.

Emmett White another ring follower and a friend of Baker's is in the Napa county jail as he cannot furnish bonds for the charge of assault with a deadly weapon. Frank Connolly formerly of Billy Snailham's staff, and who has conditioned many well-known boxers is also waiting a hearing on similar charges all three of which grow out of the beating that was administered to the manager of the Napa rink and two attendants. It appears that the three boxers aroused the ire of the management and not knowing Baker's real business Coffey smashed him in the mouth. It would be cruel to really tell what happened.

Coffey is now hobbling about Napa swearing vengeance and two of his employes who came to his aid are still in bed under the doctor's care. The whole town of Napa is up demanding that the accused men be given terms in the county jail and to say that Harry is bothered, is not beginning to describe his feelings, or those of White and Connolly.

MITCHELL AND JOHNSON WILL BE THE MAIN EVENT

The Reliance club has decided to hold its next boxing contest Tuesday December 11. The matchmaker has announced that he will have a stronger and better card than ever before, and will announce the entire list of events in a few days. Joe Mitchell, the fast colored boy, who has become popular with the Oakland fans through his fast and aggressive fights here will meet Willie Johnson, 'Spider Kelly's clever pupil in the main event. This should prove an excellent contest as Mitchell is a strong boy with a good punch and is at all times aggressive. Johnson has not appeared before in Oakland, and will be a new one to the fans, but the fact that the famous 'Spider Kelly has him in tow, and is his instructor, is as good a recommendation as any boy would wish for. In his last fight in San Francisco he met Jim Ford, who is considered one of the best boys in the lightweight division on that side of the bay, and, although the judges declared that the contest was a draw, spectators were of a different opinion and voiced the sentiments with a vigor. This event will no doubt prove one of the best main events that has yet been seen in Oakland.

HORNETS AND ALBIONS PLAY GAME TO DRAW

By BOB SHAND.

Somebody said in somebody's paper last Sunday that there was going to be a warm football game at Freeman's park but the [illegible] had the wrong hunch. The game was not a warm one it was a red hot scorcher, hotter than that—and then some. [illegible] In the way of excitement it was the [illegible] finale of the uttermost limit. And the game resulted in a draw.

The Oakland Hornets and Albion Rovers have ever been the keen [illegible] of rivals both eternally [illegible] to the soccer championship of Oakland and this [illegible] fact that the personnel of neither team was known to the general public lent such interest to the contest that only the blind and the feeble were left in charge of the city. All others [illegible] bulating riding or skating to the scene of the conflict. And maybe that game was not worth going miles to see. As an exhibition of pluck and determination it was the greatest soccer contest ever witnessed hereabouts. The Hornets came out of the game with all the credit they could possibly acquire in ninety minutes and the Rovers surprised even their most pronounced admirers by their fast snappy work.

TROUBLES START EARLY

The troubles of the insects started early in the fray when McIntyre the left half of the Rovers slipped the sphere into the place where it counted. A few minutes afterwards Duquesne outside left of the Hornets sustained an injury which caused him to leave the field and thereafter he was left outside. With only ten men against eleven husky Rovers it was up to the Hornets to show the stuff they were made of. And this they did without having any of the sawdust shaken out of them and for the full ninety minutes the Rovers had only a fair share of the play.

Elliott who had been playing in the back division [illegible] center forward in the first period and an excited Hornet rooter then nudged me in the back and told me [illegible] not wait any longer to obtain the result as the Insects had the game cinched. Nevertheless I waited—you couldn't get me away from a good football game with a common [illegible] in the last forty-five [illegible] that game rewarded me for my [illegible] in not taking the well meant advice of Mr Hornet. Handicapped as they were the Insects had all the better of the play during the entire second half and Elliot was the man who inaugurated all the dangerous runs. In W[illegible] and Marr however [illegible] of defenders who knew a few things about putting an opposing forward line in retreat and time and again when the busy Hornets were just on the point of planting the ball in the tally hole a number nine shoe [illegible] and someone would holler "Well played Woodend."

HORNETS TIE SCORE

Despite the objections the Rovers plainly showed to the attempts of the Pomeronians to pierce the defense the Insects were rude enough to continue their efforts to earn the applause of the rooters and finally when least expected Elliott put on the [illegible] with a shot that gave the [illegible] chance to save. About eleven [illegible] of the four [illegible] tried to beat the goalkeeper within the space of a couple of minutes and then McLachlan had his try. He returned the ball, it rebounded to Elliot who was waiting on just such a chance and with a well-directed shot the Rovers' lead was no more.

As announced exclusively in these columns the Rovers' R[illegible] was on deck with a melody of sounds never before heard outside of Darkest Africa. Who he is or where he comes from is a mystery. He just happened along one day and immediately adopted the entire Albion team and nothing he says can ever sever his connection with the boys in red. He has dubbed his pets "the old timers" and this is his eternal slogan. It is said that a farmer in Contra Costa county somewhere hearing the silvery tones floating over the Berkeley hills hung out his particular star spangled banner expecting a detachment of the G A R to pass his way.

Just before the game was advertised to start a youth bearing a strange device slipped off the horizon and dropped into the center of the field. On [illegible] the youngster [illegible] brought on the scene with the purpose of [illegible] the young men of soccer [illegible] of any independence they ever possessed. Arrayed with [illegible] California Association Football Union the Knight announced himself as a member of the aforementioned committee and stated that he was there for the purpose of inspecting the [illegible] of those inclined to [illegible] in the afternoon's festivities. This was something new to those who have been in the game since their early childhood and the right of this registration gentleman to interject himself into the proceedings was questioned.

DELAYED AN HOUR

As a result of his investigations the game was delayed over an hour and [illegible] on the point of refunding their money back [illegible] to his ideas. Elliot [illegible] Hornets and [illegible] of the Rovers were [illegible] of the [illegible] registration [illegible] and [illegible] up the power of the inquisitorial committee they were [illegible] round the lot fearing that they might be lynched [illegible] and [illegible] withdrew from the scene [illegible] it was admitted that they had applied for the right to bask in the good graces of the registration committee. Elliot however had not [illegible] application and had duly [illegible] he was not supposed to participate in the fun he naturally demurred [illegible] he was going to play [illegible]. In this action he was supported by the secretary of his team and the Rovers knowing the foolishness [illegible] someone [illegible] appointed committee [illegible] play [illegible] protest.

Elliot's [illegible] it seems was [illegible] during the game to [illegible] at times [illegible] in the Rugby game in which he is an expert [illegible] doing without asking the permission of the registration committee of the California Association Football Union he is suspected by that august body of being a professional. Nothing in the way of proof has been offered by those who are holding up his amateur [illegible] apparently being [illegible] that he cannot play at the [illegible]. A continuance of this policy might well result in the death of the soccer game in California [illegible] is within the [illegible] possibility [illegible] suspicion might [illegible] of this tyrannical committee that the game was not so [illegible] as it might be and it would be well to declare every player a professional until such time as he came before the committee bearing in one hand his pedigree and in the other a vote of thanks to the registration [illegible] for allowing him to [illegible].

There will be two performances this afternoon one of which will take place at Freeman's Park. The San Franciscos and Albion Rovers will dispense the amusement on that lot and the contest should be a good one. The Vampires and Independents have an argument to settle somewhere also and it is likely that the game will be pulled off in Alameda. It was originally intended to play this game at Pinole but the ground there cannot be secured so Alameda will likely be the venue.

By EDDIE SMITH.

Just when it looked as if the tangled mess in which Jeffries left the heavyweight division when he retired was about to be untangled and the great majority of the sporting authorities had settled on Jack O'Brien as the champion Tommy Burns comes along and upsets all the chances of having a real and undisputed champion of the heavyweight class and once more the sporting public will have to advertise for a big strong fellow with a good punch, must be game and have plenty of pugilistic cleverness and capable of meeting all comers.

In this way we may get the title settled but we must from now on count O'Brien not as the heavyweight champion but as the middleweight champion and a wonderfully clever fellow capable of meeting and defeating most any of the heavies at present in the business. The Quaker has announced that he is willing to meet Burns again at any time that some club sees fit to bid high enough for the contest but that the next meeting must be with the clean break and no hitting in the clinches. [illegible]

This is all very well and I do not blame O'Brien for not wanting any more of the [illegible] with the straight rules governing the contest. Burns is a big strong fellow and not only a great fighter but a great athlete having been at one time one of the greatest lacrosse players in Canada and if any game tests a man's physical fitness for athletics it is lacrosse. Burns' weight was announced the day of the fight as being about 171 pounds but from information that I have received from his camp I feel sure that he weighed all of 18[illegible].

O'Brien weighs within five pounds of what Fitzsimmons did when the old timer was at his best and beating all the heavyweights in the country but Jack has not the stinging punch to put them away with that Fitz had. Instead of relying on a knockout to win for him as Fitz did he jabs and gets away with such lightning like speed that his punches lack the force required to put a big fellow away. O'Brien [illegible] Tommy Tracey places all his balance on his foot [illegible] and it would be worse for him to hurt one of his pedal extremities than it would if he hurt one of his hands. Jack is really a wonderful boxer and a great general but he has not the natural advantages that are required to be a real heavyweight champion such as John L Sullivan, Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Jeffries [illegible] in their time. This is the kind of a champion that the people want and a great fortune awaits the young man who can answer the above advertisement and make good.

ABOUT HUGO KELLY

There is another fighter that commands recognition from O'Brien and he is not a heavyweight at that. Hugo Kelly is the man I speak of. He met the Philadelphian in a ten round contest last year and from all accounts gave him a lacing that O'Brien has not since forgotten. Kelly in a letter to the writer a short time ago said that he was anxious to go on with the Quaker and would agree to any reasonable terms to get the match. He also stated that he had repeatedly asked O'Brien for a return engagement but for reasons evidently best known to himself he has always refused to agree. Kelly has appeared only once in California and that was about a year ago when he fought Tommy Burns in Los Angeles. The men fought with an agreement that if both men were on their feet at the end of the twenty rounds the contest would be declared a draw. The fight went the limit and was called a draw but the majority of those present thought that Kelly had the best of it. Kelly has improved considerable since then and is not the same fighter but nevertheless his past performances entitle him to consideration and a contest between he and O'Brien would make a good card for one of the San Francisco clubs.

EDDIE SMITH

JOE GANS GRATEFUL

When Joe Gans jumped into the ring Friday night at the Neil McConnell-Thomas fight and announced he was grateful to the San Francisco sporting public for giving him another chance to get a start in the game after he had acted so badly with Jimmy Britt there was a convincing manner about his actions and speech that told more than his words that he really was thankful for the new start that he got in San Francisco. Eddie Graney is to a great extent entitled to the credit of starting the famous lightweight on the right road. It was he who insisted that Gans be given another start and he went personally responsible for Joe's actions while in the ring. Graney also assured the Goldfield people that he would stand responsible for Gans' work in the mining town and Gans has made good in each start. Gans is conceded to be the greatest living fighter today and as he is of a most pleasing disposition and a fellow who always knows his place and seldom has a harsh word for anyone there is no reason why he should not go down in history as one of the most popular fighters that ever pulled a glove on. He is certainly one of the greatest.

For myself I have always been of the opinion that had Gans been with most anyone but Al Herford there would never have been a mark against him. Herford had a great big hold on Gans and when he wanted Joe to do anything he usually went about it in a manner that left little room for Joe to refuse. Then Joe was not making much money during the last few years that he was with Herford and his love for gambling generally kept him in Herford's debt to such an extent that he was duty bound to do his bidding. Herford is now out of the game for which no one will shed any tears but Gans is still with us and it is to be hoped that he has seen the folly of his ways and that he will forever keep on the straight and narrow path.

HENRY LOAGUE WILL QUIT RING

Henry Loague the popular Oakland lightweight has announced his permanent retirement from the ring. He gives as his reasons his not getting a return match with Young Chovnski, and the bad decision in his fight with Iron Man Charlie Dunn in San Francisco.

RELIANCE IS TO PLAY SAN MATEO

The Reliance football club will play San Mateo at San Mateo today and on the following Sunday they meet the Lincoln team at San Francisco.

BEST TIME TO ENTER THE TRIBUNE PRIZE CONTEST

Decisive Lead Has Not Yet Been Obtained by Anybody in Any of the Many Departments.

THE TRIBUNE popularity contest is fully under way now, but not enough time has elapsed for anyone contestant to take the lead. New candidates may enter at any time and make a great change in the results.

There is plenty of time to enter a new name; however, it is best to do so at once, as the earlier start you get the better chance you will have to secure the prize you desire.

The prizes are to be given absolutely free of cost to the fortunate contestants, who may do whatever they please with them after winning.

MANNER OF VOTING.

A coupon good for one vote will be published in each issue of the TRIBNUE until the end of the contest. This coupon, if clipped and sent to the Contest Manager of THE TRIBUNE, will count as one vote for the contestant named therein.

TO BUILD NEW CATHEDRAL

Architects Chosen by Diocese of Washington to Make Plans for Work.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Henry Vaughan, of Boston, and G. F. Bodley, of the Royal Academy, England, architects, who have been chosen by the diocese of Washington to make plans for the new Episcopal Catholic cathedral, are in Washington in conference with Bishop Satterlee and the authorities of the Episcopal church.

The architects visited today with Bishop Satterlee the cathedral ground, as the architects wished to get in touch with the surroundings and the local color before making suggestions as to the building.

On these grounds is the Phoebe Hearst School for Girls, an institution which was made possible by the munificence of the lady whose name the school bears.

Mr. Bodley says that while the designs for the cathedral will be made in the spirit of old English Gothic architecture, it will be a new design to suit the site and requirements.

Even if the plans should be started at once, they will not be completed for at least six months, and the work will be begun as soon thereafter as sufficient funds are obtained. No limit has been set as to cost, but it is expected the amount will exceed $2,000,000.

CHINESE PAY $85 FOR GAME

Policeman Gets Quintet of Oriental Gamblers on Second Street.

For gambling, five Chinamen, all of whom boast the name of "Ah," were arrested yesterday by Officer Cox. The orientals were released on bail ranging from $10 to $30. Battery incident to the raid was charged agaist Ah Jim.

The quintet was taken at 272 Second street, a house which had been under surveillance for many weeks.

Ah Bow, who appeared to be the leader of the gamblers, was released on $25 bail and Ah Jim, who, during the raid fought indiscriminately, was freed on a $30 deposit. The others were released on presenting $10 bail.

The import trade of Natal, in Africa, shows a large decline for the first six months of the present year as compared with the corresponding period of 1905. Imports of foodstuffs and miscellaneous imports both show considerable decline. The only advance in imports was in that of machinery, which represented a value of over $2,000,000 as against $1,500,000 for the same period of last year.

Our Holiday Announcement

We wish to announce to the Public that our store will remain open evenings until nine o'clock beginning December 1st and to continue till Christmas. Our reason for doing this is to give those who are busy during the day time to investigate our goods at their leisure. We have found it necessary of late to make many evening appointments for people who had rather make a selection of a piano when they have ample time, and when all who are interested in the purchase can be present.

We now have a complete line of Knabe Grands, Uprights, Combination Pianos, and all the different styles of the following makes:

Mason & Hamlin, Hardman, Conover, Packard, Price & Teeple, Ludwig, Harrington, Kingsbury and others. Don't be stingy callers at our house as we are always willing to put our time against yours for the benefit of your enlightenment. We do not claim that we are going to give you a piano for the asking, nor to sell you one without a profit, as that would be an insult to your better judgment. We do not carry a line of pianos that have to be sold to ignorant or unwary people, as we cater to a class who are educated in music and well informed on the different makes of pianos. Of course, we always have some cheap pianos, which we sell for practice purposes, always with the privilege of exchanging later for a better one and the full amount applied thereon. We are positive if you would consult any dealer who has a stock, such as we, he would also advise you to buy the best as it is cheapest in the end. Now we do not wish to infer that we have a monopoly on all of the good pianos, as that would not be fair to some of our competitors, who also have good goods, but we do claim to have a more complete line and more different agencies of high grade pianos than any other house on the Coast, and if you investigate our line you will certainly agree with us. We have found by experience that the Oakland people appreciate purchasing from a thoroughly reliable house who do not have to hold out false inducements to obtain patronage.

We are now giving a sale on slightly used and broken lines of pianos that are not regularly carried by us, which we will discount from 10 per cent to 20 per cent from their regular prices. It is a good time to purchase. We will be glad to see you any time.

ROSE PASTOR SAVES CROOK

Bride of Millionaire Stokes Pleads for Man Who Went Wrong.

WHITE PLAINS, Dec. 1.—Mindful of the roseate romance that elevated her from a cigarmaker's bench to be the wife of a wealthy youth, one of New York's proudest families, Rose Pastor Stokes listened to the plea of Charles Haworth's fiancee and appeared in court here today to ask leniency for Haworth, who was arraigned as a burglar. The wife of J. G. Phelps Stokes told County Judge Platt that she had investigated the case most thoroughly and found that since Haworth came to this country eleven years ago from Germany, he had led a spotless life until when, out of work and engaged to be married, desperation had driven him to commit burglary.

"If your honor will release the prisoner in my custody," she said, "he will lead a Christian life.

"Both he and his fiance have given me this pledge, and I believe they are sincere."

Judge Platt granted the request, with the proviso that Haworth should report to Mrs. Stokes every week.

THEY MUST FURNISH CARS

Attorney for Kansas State Board Files Complaint Against Railroads.

TOPEKA, Kan., Dec. 1.—Carr Taylor, attorney for the State Board of Railroad Commissioners, filed this afternoon with the Board a complaint to compel the seven largest railroads in the State to show what disposition they made of their cars with reference to the traffic on each road, to compel the roads to furnish the proper proportion of cars to Kansas and to increase their equipment so that it will fully meet the demands of the shipping public. The defendants in the action are: The Missouri Pacific Railway Company; the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company; the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company; the St. Louis and San Francisco Railway Company; the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway Company; the Union Pacific Railway Company; the Leavenworth, Kansas and Western Railway Company.

Taylor charges that in addition to the roads not having sufficient cars to take care of the traffic in Kansas, there is less traffic moving at this time than in August, September, October and November a year ago.

KNEEL DOWN AND PRAY

CLVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 1.—Last Sunday twenty-five employes of the Standard Oil Company at Preble, Ind., were arrested for working on Sunday. Representatives of the company from Cleveland went Friday to Decatur, Ind., and pand fines amounting to $225.

John D. Rockefeller's pastor, Rev. Charles Eaton, when asked what he thought of the employer who made his men work on Sunday, made the following statement:

"Any man who interferes with the day of rest unnecessarily is doing a great wrong. Everyone is entitled to worship God on the Sabbath unless kept away by some higher duty, such as nursing the sick. Making money on Sunday is not a duty but a great wrong."

HOPPER "RIDES KINDER CHILLY"

Long Comedian Refuses to Subscribe to Charity—Take His Straight.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 1.—De Wolf Hopper, the comedian, offended the ladies, who conducted the stand for the Saturday Hospital Association in the Planters Hotel this afternoon. When he entered the lobby, Miss Josephine Cobb, daughter of Ex-Congressman Seth Cobb, approached him and asked if he didn't want to contribute something.

"No, I wont," replied the actor, curtly.

"You may need to get to one of the charity hospitals some day yourself," said she.

"If I go as a charity patient," he replied, "I want to take it straight," and he strode away up stairs.

RAILWAY BLOCK SIGNALS

have become an absolute necessity to the railroads for the safety of passengers and employes as well as protection for their own property. The number of frightful accidents of late has been largely due to the high rate of speed demanded nowadays, and the close spacing of trains due to the enormous increase in traffic.

A strong movement, inaugurated by the Interstate Commerce Commission is now under way to compel the railways, by law, to install safety signal systems. A patent has just been granted to Paul J. Simmen, of Chico, Calif., for a device for this purpose which is remarkable in many ways, especially as to simplicity, low cost, and absolute reliability. A corporation, the has been organized, taking over Mr. Simmen's patents, and will raise funds to install the system on several railroads at once.. A limited amount of stock will be sold, and is now offered for public subscription. Vast profits are assured to investors who now take advantage of the ground floor prices. A model is now in operation in our office and prospective investors are invited to inspect the working of this most extraordinary invention. If unable to call, write us for prospectus. We carry on the largest business in unlisted stocks on the Pacific Coast, and execute orders also for listed stocks of all exchanges. Members Oakland Stock and Bond Exchange.

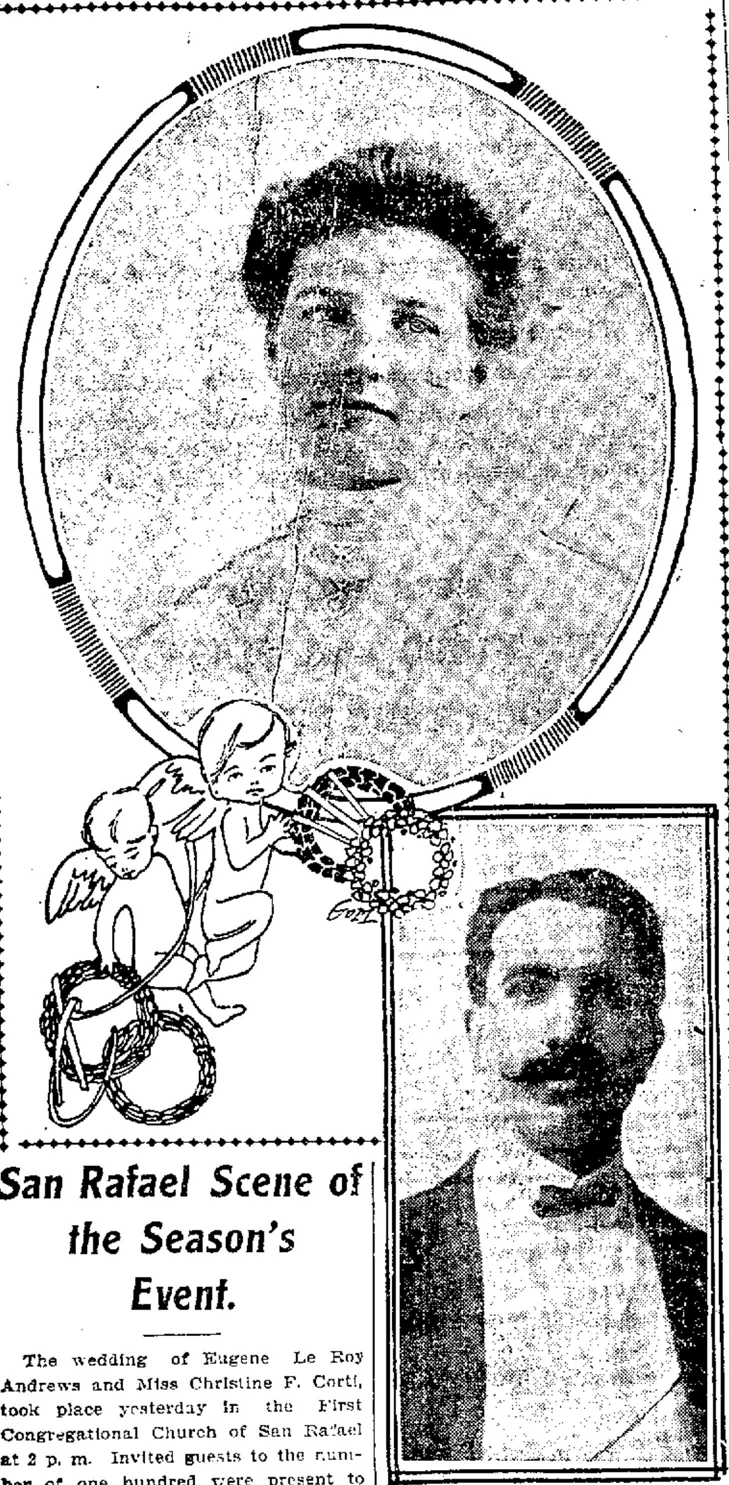
CEREMONY WAS UNIQUE FOR A PRETTY WEDDING



MR. AND MRS. EUGENE LE ROY ANDREWS.

San Rafael Scene of the Season's Event.

The wedding of Eugene Le Roy Andrews and Miss Christine F. Corti, took place yesterday in the First Congregational Church of San Rafael at 2 p. m. Invited guests to the number of one hundred were present to witness the ceremony, which was a very unique and pretty one. A brother and sister of the bride acted as best man and bridesmaid.

Mr. Andrews is the junior member of the firm of Simpson & Andrews, real estate brokers. During his years of residence in Oakland he has won for himself a host of friends by his honesty, integrity and uprightness in his business relations, and generous public spirit.

Miss Corti, the happy bride on this occasion, is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Corti of San Rafael. She possesses a most charming personality, and the sweetness and excellence of her character and disposition is evidenced and proclaimed by her many friends and acquaintances in the town where she has lived and grown up.

After the ceremony a short reception was given, when the happy couple left on their honeymoon, and an extended trip through the south, taking in Santa Cruz, Monterey, Los Angeles and other points.

Returning they will take up their residence in the beautiful home Mr. Andrews has fitted up at Piedmont.

SACRED OPERA PRIEST'S WORK

Theme Is John the Baptist and Scores Success In Turin.

ROME, Dec. 1.—Don Perosi, the priest-composer, has been eclipsed by another clerical maestro, who composed an opera on the theme of John the Baptist, and had it produced with enormous success in Turin.

Don Giocondo Fino, who has set the sacred story to popular music, is a canon of Turin cathedral. In his version, the libretto, of which is mainly founded on Gustave Flaubert's "Herodiade" and Oscar Wilde's "Salome," he makes the role of Saviour prominent. He also introduces a ballet performed by dancing girls at Herod's bacchanalia.

While the opera was first performed in the Vittorio Emanuele theater, the Duke D'Abruzzi was present. The priest composer was called before the curtain ten times, and was received with indescribable enthusiasm. He appeared on the stage in clerical robes, having obtained from Cardinal Richelieu an exemption from the ecclesiastical law forbidding priests to enter theaters.

Some of the greatest discoveries are made by accident, as every one knows. When I was paying attention to Mrs. Minister (before our marriage, I mean) her estimable mother dressed the salad one Sunday evening with kerosene instead of vinegar. No one seemed to care for salad that evening, but I gulped mine down rather than offend the old lady, and bless me, if it didn't make the hair grow out on a pet bald spot of mine. Since then I have done much rooting for petroleum distillate as a hair renewer, but I recommend its use externally. When I want to stimulate the follicles of the scalp by an internal treatment, I go to Lehnhardt's and order a hot lemonade.

CROWD HOOTS HORRID DRAMA

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—A drama stuffed so full of horrors that the audience rose and hooted it, has been produced in the Lessing theater here. "Chevalier Bluebeard," by Herbert Eulenberg, is a gruesomely realistic version of the old nursery tale. It opens with a scene in a cript, where the heads of Bluebeard's five murdered wives lay.

In the second act Bluebeard's only son drinks himself into delirium at a wedding banquet and runs amuck, then suddenly kneels down and says the Lord's Prayer. The murder of Bluebeard's sixth wife takes place in the third act.

In the fourth act the dead woman is buried, with every detail of the funeral reproduced on the stage, even to the filling up of the grave with earth. This act also shows the suicide of the drunkard son, who hangs himself from a tree in sight of the audience. The dead wife's sister, too, drowns herself.

In the fifth act Bluebeard attempts to murder his seventh and last wife while his castle is on fire. She escapes from him and leaps into the flames to perish. Bluebeard is then killed by his last wife's father and brother.

Amazed at these accumulated horrors, the audience raised a storm of protest, shouting "Disgusting," "scandalous," "profane" and "stop it." They drowned the actors' speeches with hoots and hisses and many of the audience arose and shook their fists at the stage.

WIFE IN FARM WAGON VISITED BY STORK

GALVESTON, Dec. 1.—Had they known what was going to happen Mrs. Johanna Kratzen would have remained at home today. They started together in the farm wagon for the Catholic Church at Chapel Hill, and on the way a ten-pound baby, the eleventh addition to the family, came into the world. Dr. E. R. Nichols passed during the birth and offered his services, which were declined.

Mrs. Kratzen appeared but little the worse for the experience and returned home, four miles away, in the wagon after the chirstening.

Mrs. Kratzen is forty years old.

HOUSE MEETS ON MONDAY

President's Message Will Be Read on Tuesday—Japanese Question.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Congress will meet and formally organize on Monday. The House will adjourn after the calling of the roll, out of respect to the memory of General Ketcham, Robert R. Hitt, Rockwell Hoar and H. C. Adams, members who have died since the summer recess.

On Tuesday the President's message will be read and referred and on Wednesday the Payne bill, abolishing useless customs houses, comes up on the order of unfinished business.

So many things are demanding action that the legislative machinery will be badly clogged up and it is apparent that it will be possible to dispose of comparatively little important work aside from the appropriation measure.

No less interesting than the fight over ship subsidy legislation will be the inheritance tax question. The opinion is becoming stronger that a bill will be passed this session.

Members of Congress reaching Washington declare themselves for an inheritance tax bill. Several such bills will be introduced.

LODGE IS AGGRESSIVE.

Senator Lodge has reached Washington determined on aggressive tactics in the Philippine tariff bill. He will lose no time in trying to get this taken up.

The expressions of most of the members of Congress who are reaching here are to the effect that there will be no currency reform legislation this session. The subject will be up, however, and will be threshed over. President Roosvelt is expected to come out strong in his message for legislation restricting immigration of the undesirable sort. This will possibly influence Congress to do something with the immigration bill now in conference.

BURROWS AFTER SMOOT'S SCALP

Senator Burrows says he will bring up the question of expulsion of Senator Smot at the earliest passible date and that he expects to get a vote this session.

In the way of labor legislation little will be done although it is expected the bill will pass limiting the hours of labor of every government employe.

Much talk was indulged in over the legislation for the control of corporations in inter-State business. Nothing will be done in the short session. Various important confirmations will require the Senate's attention as well as various treaties.

President Roosevelt may lay the Japanese question before Congress, but in the present state of things Congress can accomplish nothing. Other important matters will be discussed with no great chance for action.

MUSICIAN SUES UNION

Eugene Willey, an Orchestra Leader, Sues Musicians' Union.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec 1.—Eugene Willey, an orchestra leader of Los Angeles, who made a contract with Grauman's Skating Rink to bring Donatelli's Band to this city for six months, has sued the Musicians' Mutual Protective Union, Local 6, and the San Francisco Labor Council for $14,100 damages on the ground that they conspired to keep him from carrying out his contract and alleging they were successful in doing so.

Willey entered into a contract with Grauman to come here with thirty-six men and play for six months. For this he was to receive $1200 a week. He arrived with his band the latter part of October and in accordance with the union rules deposited his contract with John A. Keogh, the secretary of the local union. Then it was, Willey asserts, that the defendants conspired to keep him from carrying out his agreement. The union men, in taking up the case said that Willey was to furnish music at less than the prevailing scale and they held that because of this they had a perfect right to call him to account. The scale in Los Angeles is lower than it is here, but that was no reason, the local men said, why Willey should be allowed to import musicians at the price paid in the southern city. Willey says that a member of one of the defendant organizations told a member of the Grauman corporation that the Willey band must not be hired.

Musician Willey and his men were summoned before the Musicians' Union November 3 to answer the three charges, namely: Contracting to furnish thirty-six pieces at less than the schedule price; offering less than the proper salary to his workmen; hiring two men, one of whom had been expelled from the Los Angeles Union and the other suspended.

The examination was held the same day and each man, Willey says, was questioned separately and then sent into a room where he was guarded by the sergeant-at-arms and not allowed to converse with his companions. Willey declares that all were restrained of their liberty until 2 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day.

After the hearing Willey says he was fined $20 apiece for thirty-one of his men and $50 for himself and then expelled from the union. The thirty-one men were called in and fined $100 each.

Willey says that he offered to go to his employers and ask them if they would pay a higher rate, but was told that this would not be allowed and that he must break his contract. He further alleges that by coercion, intimidation and bribery the members of his band were induced to leave him and return to Los Angeles.

The plaintiff thinks that the loss of the Grauman contract is worth $5000; that the loss of other contracts which he expected to secure is worth another $5000, and that he should be reimbursed to the extent of $3100 for money expended for uniforms and appurtenances.

BRICKLAYER FALLS FROM A SCAFFOLD

LYMAN SKIPS AT EARLY MORN

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 1.—Dr. John Grant Lyman, president of the Union Securities Company of Goldfield, Nevada, who is charged with fraudulently securing $9250 from B. H. Scheftels, a Chicago broker, in a mining stock deal, left the Hotel Greene, Pasadena, at 3 o'clock this morning, whither, no one seems to know, so far as the Sheriff's office is able to learn.

Officers working on the case discovered at the start of their investigations that Dr. Lyman had much so th early and hurriedly, so much so that he failed to take any baggage. His manner of departure was somewhat remarkable for a person of the doctor's elegance, as he boarded an electric car out of the crown city for Los Angeles.

During the forenoon an attorney named Augustus Tilden, of Goldfield, called at the hotel, secured the doctor's baggage and checked it to Phoenix, Ariz. A deputy sheriff accompanied the attorney as far as Pomona, but could learn nothing bearing on the doctor's whereabouts or intentions.

The sudden move of the mining promoter was surprising, as he received reporters Friday night and seemed more indignant than alarmed at the charge. He denied Scheftel's charges and asserted that he would prove his innocence in tthe alleged fraud. He is supposed to be in hiding in Los Angeles. E. H. Lattimer, sec-charged jointly with Lyman, was ar-charged jointly with Lyman was arrested in Goldfield and was obliged to furnish $1500 bail for his release.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY.

GOLDFIELD, Dec. 1.—Dr. J. Grant Lyman, general manager and chief stockholder of the Union Securities Company, which he is alleged to have defrauded in a mining transaction in the sum of $9250, has not yet been apprehended. E. H. Lattimer, secretary, today pleaded not guilty. He was admitted to bail and will have a preliminary examination next week. B. H. Scheftels, the Chicago broker who is the complaining witness, stated today that additional complaints would be filed, one of which would be in the United States court, on a charge of misusing the mails.

Meanwhile, a search warrant having been issued by Justice Solomon, the records of the Union Securities Company are being searched for evidence.

FREIGHT CAR THIEF TO BE EXTRIDITED

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 1.—Governor Pardee has issued extradition papers on the Governor of Texas for the return of F. L. Murray, who is wanted in San Bernardino county on a charge of burglary. Murray is being held in jail by the Texas authorities, awaiting the action of the governor.

The charge against the man will be prosecuted by the Santa Fe Railroad. It is alleged that Murray broke into a freight car and stole a jug of whisky. His lantern set fire to the car.

FOUR YEARS IS SENTENCE

Russian Robbed the Treasury With the Aid of the Soldiers.

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—The trial of Wilhelm Voigt, rendered famous in Germany as "Captain von Coepenick," owing to his bold robbery of the treasury of Coepenick and the arrest of the Burgomaster of that town October 16 with the assistance of a number of soldiers who had been imposed upon by Voigt, began today before a large crowd. Application for tickets to the court had been received from all over Germany, and even from foreign countries.

Much amusement was caused when nine grenadiers, in strict military order, marched into the room as witnesses against the prisoner. Voigt answered the judges' queries unreservedly, narrating the history of his life without dramatic embellishment, and told a straightforward story of the Coepenick affair in an unassuming manner.

An interesting fact brought out was that Voigt years ago made use of an expression which led to his capture, having remarked to a fellow prisoner while in the penitentiary where he was under sentence:

This prisoner, after hearing of the Coepenick affair, informed the police of Voigt's remarks, which fastened suspicion upon the latter. Voigt was sentenced to four years' imprisonment and costs.

The indictment included four counts, namely: aggravated forgery, publicly depriving another of liberty, fraud, and wearing a military uniform without authority.

CLEARING RECORD IN LOS ANGELES BROKEN

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 1.—The monthly record for Los Angeles' clearings has been broken. Total payments through the local banks in November were $53,627,100, which exceeds the previous high point, touched last March, by $438,821, and is $8,152,279 in excess of the total reported for November, 1905, a month which also broke the clearings record up to that time. The gain last month as compared with October, was $2,686,000, and the increase over November, 1904, is more than $20,000,000.

Some Big Political Steals in Days of Greater Purity

THE KNAVE

Sandy Austin, the Chevalier Bayard of Defaulters.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—The present graft investigation suggests some interesting comparisons. Two Grand Juries have grilled the Schmitz administration with eager animosity and gone over everything it has done in a hungry search for evidence of plunder and malfeasance, but no defaulter has yet been uncovered among the office-holding followers of Schmitz.

They are a queer lot, take them as a whole, and show a breezy contempt for some of the technicalities of the law, but none of them has been detected stealing the public funds. They are not particular in small matters, and their standard of education and political morals is rather low, but they have not plundered the public treasury whatever else they may have done.

They do rough and raw politics and their conversation is neither polite nor edifying, but so far they have kept their hands off the city's money.

After all the talk of thievery the press has indulged in for more than two years past, no embezzlement has been exposed. Sharp reporters and keen detectives have been watching, waiting and digging for months to unearth a big steal, but the sleuths of the press and the Citizens' Alliance have alike failed to discover official thefts.

There is a great deal of talk about graft in connection with the purchase of supplies and the carrying of useless deputies and employes on the pay roll, but there is nothing new about all this. The practice of taking care of the push and swiping a commission here and there is as old as the city.

It was the usual order in the days of Mannix and Brady, and was perpetuated under the halcyon regime of Chris Buckley. Teachers had to pay for jobs in the school department and the contractors who supplied the jail, the House of Correction, the Alms House and the City and County Hospital had to contribute to the graft fund. City Hall deputies had to contribute a percentage of their salaries to the war chest of the boss.

The gas and water companies had to pay handsomely for being "treated right" in fixing rates, and the boss always had to be seen and satisfied before any valuable franchise could be had.

Bill Higgins was no reformer or innovator. He was a frank spoilsman, and the ways of Buckley and Rainey were good enough for him. The boys were allowed their little pickings and were assessed as usual. The gas and water companies simply paid toll to a new set of men, and franchises came by permisson of others, but just as high.

But as long as the grafters and the bosses trained under the regular political parties, they did not have the newspapers united against them nor the Citizens' Alliance after them with a sharp stick. Then the Democrats stood by their own rascals and the Republicans were loyal to their plunderbund. No industrial issue had arisen to put the bottom rail on top and heat the wrath of the wealthy employing class.

Now the regular Republican and Democratic organizations are against the Schmitz administration because of the loss of patronage, while it is on the black books of the Citizens' Alliance because it stands in with the labor unions.

This is Schmitz's third term as Mayor, but the only defalcation of note discovered since his first election was that of Ed Smith, Tax Collector, who got away with over $60,000 of the City's money. Smith is doing time in San Quentin now, although a surety company made good his stealings.

But Smith was not affiliated politically with Schmitz and Ruef or the Union Labor party. He was elected as a straight Republican and went crooked as a straight Republican.

The Phelan administration had its defaulter in Treasurer James Widber, who got away with over $100,000, which he squandered on the fairies of the tenderloin and the ponies at the track. He was going the primrose route at a breakneck pace, throwing money away like a drunken sailor, for more than a year before it was discovered that he was stealing the public cash by the scoopfull.

Widber's head deputy had reason to believe that his chief was stealing—knew it, in fact—but kept the guilty knowledge to himself till it could no longer be concealed. Smith's chief deputy did the same thing.

Widber also was a Republican. Phelan was severely criticized for not counting the money in the city treasury as the law required him to do. He merely "hefted" the sacks from which Widber had abstracted the gold and replaced it with silver. However, the Union Labor party is not responsible for Widber's embezzlement.

San Francisco's most magnificent thief was neither a professional politician nor a workingman. He was a stockbroker, and one of the most popular men among all classes of society that the city has ever known.

Even when it was learned that he had looted the city treasury of half a million to chuck away in the stock board and on wine and women, people generally appeared to be sorrier that poor "Sandy" Austin had committed suicide than that the city had been robbed.

Like Widber and Smith, Alexander Austin was a Republican. Although he died a thief and a suicide, he is still spoken of with affection and regret. Men loved and women adored him. He was a great spender—a good fellow in a princely, open-handed way that won all hearts. Still there are others who could make the cocktail route gay and the redlights dance with $500,000 of the dear people's money.

Ellie Wilton was "Sandy" Austn's chere amie. She was playing at the old California Theater then, along with John McCullogh and other famed celebrities of the San Francisco stage.

Austin provided her with luxurious apartments, gave her a small fortune in jewels, and spent money on her like a buccaneer ashore from a successful cruise.

He dined with her in public in the old Poodle Dog and Marchand's, and often had the chief magnates of the city to keep him and Ellie company. Their relations were as notorious as Sam Brannan's fondness for whisky, but nobody seemed to think it strange that the City Treasurer should gamble in stocks, play poker like a thoroughbred and lavish money like an Indian prince on a stage beauty.

When Austin got to the bottom of the city's strong box and slew himself, there was public pity for him but a fierce outburst of execration for Ellie Wilton. She was accused of ruining him and sending him to an untimely and dishonored grave.

She quickly shook the dust of San Francisco from her feet and flitted to New York. If my memory serves me right, she never came back, though she long played leading parts in the principal Eastern cities.

On the score of old-time graft, I might tell, if space permitted, of the Supervisor who skipped out many years ago with $90,000 of bribe money got from the gas company, leaving his fellow-boodlers without a penny of their wages of dishonor, or about the grafting Board of Supervisors George K. Fitch used to term in the Bulletin "the Boston Bandits." Nine of those worthies were blacklisted on the front page of the Examiner as taking a bribe of $3000 apiece from the gas company, but they never turned a hair and a good-natured Grand Jury declined to look into the matter. But it's different nowadays.

As I predicted, Chief of Police Dinan has made a mutt of himself under oath. He has been indicted, and for one of the most childish or fiendish crimes on the calendar, according to your viewpoint. The manner in which he perjured himself is quite up to the standard of the intelligence of a police officer who makes the town's chief pickpocket his boon companion and confidant.

Dinan claimed that the Grand Jury couldn't indict him if it tried. Then emphasizing his imbecility he stated he had inside information that the Grand Jury would under no circumstance bother him. And all the while the vote on his indictment had been taken and his fate sealed.

The case against Dinan is more definite and clearer than the cases against any of the others. In addition to being a proved perjurer by his own men, the official records of the department, O. K.'d by himself, brand his testimony given under oath as absolutely false.

Dinan thought he was to be judged by the testimony of Andrieu and some of the other human scum that told the grand jurors their tales of woe. He never dreamed that it was the information given by Captain Jack Martin, formerly head of the detective bureau, and the Rev. Father Caraher, one of the best-known and most-beloved priests on this side of the bay, that contradicted him. But, of course, the documentary evidence of the department bearing Dinan's own signature was, after all, the finishing touch. If Dinan has a gleam of intelligence left, he, like his antecedent, Dogberry, will erect a platform in a public square and write himself down as an ass. Then he may gracefully retire to the privacy of San Quentin or Folsom.

A couple of years ago, during the maladministration of the police department by Wittman, one of the pickpockets enjoying protection made the grievous error of stealing Joe Harvey's pin. Now, as Harvey had the late Charley Fair's leg at that time, and as he did a bit of business with the police himself along the lines of protection, it was not nice for a fellow-crook to touch him. But the thing came off and Harvey roared like a herd of bulls.

In those days Dinan and Ed Wren were looking after the pickpocket colony wintering on the coast. So they went to "Kid" Sullivan, Dinan's friend, and told him to get back Harvey's pin. Sullivan said he would do so with pleasure, explaining that it was taken by a new arrival who didn't know that Harvey was exempt.

Harvey was told that he would get back the pin all right, but that the man who had it thought it was worth $75 to him to give it up, as he could sell it for several hundred in the East. So Harvey gave up the $75 and the pin was returned to him by Sullivan. A few minutes after Joe parted with the $75 he walked around the corner of Ellis and Mason streets and bumped into Sullivan, Wren and Dinan, who were earnestly discussing Harvey's shakedown. They thought it wasn't a bit clubby of Joe to so unexpectedly come upon them. It was suggested that in the future, under similar circumstances, he wear a cowbell. And he will.

If nothing else, the Grand Jury investigation has already proven the absurdity of the phrase, "A dead game sport." It has demonstrated that your professional sport—by sport I mean the man who earns his livelihood through the floating of sporting enterprises—is not even half-way "dead game."

In the recent Grand Jury indictments the "dead game" sport has shown that as soon as he finds himself in serious trouble, he is only too willing to "peach on his pals" to insure his own liberty. The crowd of marauders who conducted the Belvedere dive and the sure-thing gentlemen behind the Fight Trust have been perfectly willing to tell Mr. Heney and Mr. Burns anything that they care to know about their associates, providing their personal safety is guaranteed and provided they are guaranteed immunity from punishment for bribery and contributing to police corruption funds.

Take Eddie Graney, for instance. For years Graney has enjoyed the star-spangled designation of being an "honest blacksmith." In matters affecting prizefights, many of which he has refereed, he has always posed as one above reproach. He enjoyed the political confidence and friendship of the late Sam Rainey and the late Chief Sullivan of the fire department. He was able to secure the monopoly of the horse-shoeing business of this city and county. The merchants who employed him to keep their horses' hoofs in good condition were loud in their praises of his business integrity.

Then, like a thunderclap out of a clear sky, came the revelations of the Belvedere, which placed Graney in an entirely different light. According to the confidential manager of that notorious resort, Graney didn't put up his pro rata of coin necessary to open the place, and that Graney was not on the level with his partners. It has also been demonstrated that he was the man that handled the corruption money to protect several illegitimate enterprises.

In the affairs of the Prize-fight Trust it appears that Mr. Graney collected $15,000 from James Coffroth, Willie Britt and Morris Levy to be paid to the Board of Supervisors for the privilege of cornering the prize-fight permits. There is now some question as to whether this bribe money was actually paid.

Among the "dead game sports" who were in wrong in the fight in question was Mat Larkin of Albany, New York, who lost $3500. He had been assured by the referee that he couldn't lose. The yell he set up when he did was sufficient to wake the dead. Harry Corbett was also in wrong for $3000. Jim Coffroth lost a like amount. So you see the path of the sport is not always strewn with thornless roses.

Burns and his people have been able to trace the payment of this fund to Ruef, but beyond that they are up against a stone wall unless Graney makes a full confesson, which it is understood he will do.

One story is to the effect that Graney and Ruef split the $15,000. So now every time the "honest blacksmith's" name comes forward in connection with the investigation of the Belvedere and the fight scandals he is exploited in a very unfavorable light.

And, if you go among the sporting men and get them to tell you their real names and a few of the secrets that they have next their undershirts, you will learn that not only were practically all of the prize-fights that have been pulled off here during the past three years merely bunco games, but you will find that the referees always bet heavily on the result.

In one instance, it is said, the referee wagered $750 on the favorite the night before the battle. But so great was the popular demonstration for the other man at the end of the twenty rounds, that he was forced to give his decision in favor of the man against whom he had bet his own coin and caused his friends to lose nearly $20,000. He had guaranteed them all a decision in harmony with their bets, but hadn't the grit to make good at the last moment.

By far the most enjoyable entertainment which has taken place in local clubdom since the fire was the costume dinner at the "Family" on Friday night.

Sixty of the members sat at table in the most grotesque make-ups possible. Some of the men with whiskers were disguised as bearded ladies. One man, who is famous for his big voice and large thirst, appeared as little Eva. Many of the get-ups were extremely original and exceedingly pat. For instance, the man that disguised himself as a sausage could not possibly have secured a more adequate emblem. Another went as a package. By far the most original get-up, however, was the man who looked like a Christmas tree, with Roman candles and blue lights in action.

One of the most humorous dodges of the Ruefites to discredit the Grand Jury investigation of the graft charges is the plan to prove that Supervisor Sanderson has lost his mind. It is feared by those close to Ruef that Sanderson has already or is about to tell what he knows of the trolley bribe. He is a sick man and believes he will soon face his Maker. Hence a natural desire to clean up a bit.

So fearing that he may talk in his sleep, Morris Levy has been assigned by Abe to prove that Sanderson is a "nut." Morris, in his own peculiar way, tells how he met Sanderson in the Orpheum, at Los Angeles, and how the Supervisor displayed to him innumerable evidences of mental abberation. Morris speaks about the furtive glances, the ragtime remarks, the disconnected coughs, and, above all, Sanderson's failure to talk about the Fight Trust.

Upon such important things doth our sanity depend. "Morris, where art thou going?" sang Willie Britt when he met Levy upon his return from Los Angeles. "Pretty boy," replied Levy. "I'm going to tell Abe that Sanderson is a bug." So there!

ARABS HURL INSULTS AT WHITE WOMEN DAILY

BY PAUL LAMBETH.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—There is a great deal more in the tale of Egyptian unrest than the general British public is aware of. Private letters received from Cairo state that the natives are becoming more arrogant and insulting to English and Americans every day.

The Cairo season will soon be in full swing, and Lord Cromer intends to start a regular crusade against certain "goings on" which contribute very largely to the attitude adopted, especially by the Arabian races, toward English and American women.

It is useless, according to those who regularly visit Cairo during the winter, to conceal the fact that white women have been involved in scandals with the low class of Arabs who escort parties by moonlight to the desert.

The cases, fortunately have been rare, but the result has been that white women of respectability are liable to be insulted by donkey boys and others, and that the native races are losing respect for the tourists whom they once held in such awe.

In addition to this serious state of affairs the propaganda of rebellion carried on by two or three native newspaper proprietors is causing serious apprehension to the authorities, and no one would be surprised to hear of a serious revolution in the very height of the Cairo season.

PRELATE OF FAR EAST PRAISES PHILIPPINES

PARIS, Dec. 1.—I have just had an interview with Archbishop Harty of Manila. His Grace, who looks in excellent health, said the climate of the Philippines had been much maligned. It is not true that the archipelago is not a "white man's" country. He expects that there will be a great influx of white colonists within a few years. The three railroad lines which are to be built will open up a veritable Eldorado for capital, and especially in wood an dpulp. Owing to the difficulty of communication, not more than one-tenth of the soil (which is the most fertile in the world) has been cultivated.

With regard to his dioceasan work, the archbishop has been greatly handicapped by the want of priests. There are no fewer than forty-eight parishes without priests. He hopes this will soon he remedied by the supply of priests from his seminary, which has 250 students.

The archbishop believes that the best Filipinos are all in favor of the United States. "I did not go to Rome," he said, "on any political business of any kind. If there are any questions between the civil and religious authorities they are treated by the apostolic delegate, Archbishop Agius. I went there simply on my official visit, just as all bishops of the Catholic church are obliged to go to Rome at stated periods."

The archbishop would not say anything about the appointment of a coadjuter or a bishop, but I know on good authority this question will be decided during Mgr. Harty's stay in Rome. It is probable an American priest will be appointed as assistant bishop, but probably without the right of succeeding Mgr. Harty, who is still a comparatively young man of fifty-three.

POPE'S DOCTOR CANNOT LIVE VERY MUCH LONGER

Physician Is a Victim of Cancer---He Continues to Visit the Pontiff Twice Weekly.

By PAUL VILLIERS.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—There is reason to fear that Dr. Lapponi, private physician to Pope Pius, as he was for thirteen years to the late Leo, cannot live much longer. He is a victim of cancer of the stomach and the doctors have relinquished the hope of bieng able to perform an operation.

Still Dr. Lapponi continues to visit Pope Pius twice a week officially. In fact, his assiduous attention keeps alive the idea that the Pope himself is not well.

The only truth is this, that Pius X continues to suffer from the effects of his last attack of gout, which have not passed off as rapidly as previously.

At the consistory which will be held in Rome on December 5th, it has been practically decided that no new cardinals will be created. There are at present fourteen vacancies in the Sacred College, so the Pope's decision not to fill some of them now has created considerable surprise.

The real reason of it is this: There are a number of ecclesiastics who, according to old custom hitherto followed, would have a kind of right to be created cardinals. Pius X wishes to abolish all such pretended rights—he does not want to make any man a cardinal who has not shown special ability and done special service to the church. He prefers, therefore, not to create any cardinals at all for the moment rather than to hurt the sensibility of those who would be doomed to disappointment.

BURGLARS ROB GERMAN MUSEE

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—Fifteen thousand dollars' worth of treasures have been taken from the German Museum, Herrenhausen Castle, Hanover, by burglars who were evidently experts, and who disappeared with their booty.

The stolen exhibits consisted of fifty jeweled orders worn by King Ernest Augustus, including British, Hanoverian, Prussian and Russian decorations, and a number of ornamented swords. Entering by breaking a window, the thieves ransacked a large glass case and escaped without waking the attendant.

KAISER SIGNS PAPERS IN BED

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—The Kaiser has no time to be ill. Even when kept in bed for a week by a severe cold, he carried on the affairs of the empire as usual.

Ministers were received by him in his bedroom and the Emperor, propped up with pillows, heard their reports, gave instructions and signed documents, just as if he were seated in his study.

NEW TUNNEL IS PROJECTED

ROME, Dec. 1.—Another tunnel under the Alps is now projected, to connect Italy with the rest of Europe. It will pass under Mount Blanc at a height of 3100 feet.

The railroad passing through this tunnel will bring Turin nearer to Geneva by 166 miles and shorten the distance between Turin and Chamounix by 116 miles. The expense of the new road and tunnel is to be borne by the municipalities of Turin, Geneva and Chamounix.

EDNA MAY IS EXPERT GOLFER

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Miss Edna May is becoming an expert golf player. For some weeks past she has been out on the links at Ascot with a professional, and now plays a remarkably good game. What chiefly amuses the members of the club is the worship of the caddies, who fight with one another for the privilege of escorting Miss May around the links.

The actress declares that no amount of professional worries or jealousies will ever affect her again. She has reduced her figure and is in perfect condition, and she has taken a sort of pledge to give up late hours and suppers when she takes her part in "Nellie Neale," the new musical comedy in which she is to be the star.

HALL WILL BE BROUGHT BACK

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 1.—According to a telegram received by Mayor Sehon from Washington, via the Governor at Sacramento, Secretary Root has cabled to the American Embassy at Mexico City, to request the arrest and detention of Captain A. W. Hall, accused of kidnaping Dora Dennis. The State Department makes it clear that it only wants Hall detained until an officer can be sent to bring him back to San Diego for trial, but this is significant of the fact that Hall will be prosecuted on a federal charge and probably be dealt with severely if convicted.

SALEM, Mass., Dec. 1.—Capain Thomas Fuller, veteran shipmaster and hero of many an exciting experience on the high seas in days when piracy and mutiny were frequent, died at his home here today, aged 93 years.

Captain Fuller won international fame as master of the ship Lucilla. While that vessel was off the coast of Sumatra, with $25,000 in specie on board, the crew mutinied. Revolver in hand, Captain Fuller subdued his men and finally brought his ship into Philadelphia.

HILL WON'T DISCUSS PLANS

Railroad Magnate Denies That He Is After Missouri, Kansas and Texas

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—James J. Hill, who returned to this city on Thanksgiving day, was at his office yesterday. He was not inclined to discuss any of the reports concerning his railroad plans beyond adding another to his numerous denials that he was after the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, which recent reports had it as being purchased in the interest of Mr. Hill's roads.

Mr. Hill said that if he wanted a road to the Gulf he would sooner build a line than buy one already built. He would rather see the government build a 15 foot canal to the Gulf, which would be vastly better than a railroad.

ENGAGEMENT OF PAIR PLEASES PARENTS

Walter Burns is the Most Extravagant Man of England's Capital.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The engagement of Mr. Walter Burns, J. Pierpont Morgan's rich nephew, to Miss Evelyn Cavendish Bentinck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Cavendish Bentinck, has given great pleasure to both families.

Although Mrs. Bentinck is wealthy, her husband is one of the most extravagant men in London and spends money like water. Were it not for the fact that the King is a great friend of Mrs. Bentinck it is extremely doubtful if Mr. Bentinck's mode of living would be tolerated by society.

The Burns' relatives are glad to see Mr. Walter Burns married to a charming girl, as his first marriage, contracted in youth to a woman of eccentric character, was a terrible blow to them all. Fortunately the woman gave him ample reasons to divorce her.

PUBLISHER DENOUNCES WOMEN'S EXTRAVAGANCE

His Plan Is to Form an International League to Fight the Luxury of the Fair Sex.

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—A crusade against women's extravagance in dress is being organized here by Felix Heinemann, a leading German publisher. His scheme is to form an international league to fight against the passion of most women for luxurious, costly clothes and ornaments.

As an object lesson to what lengths women will go in arraying themselves, Herr Heinemann proposes that illustrated books should be published in Berlin, New York, Paris and London, with photographs showing fashionable women of all nations wearing gorgeous gowns, rich furs and magnificent jewelry. The pictures would be accompanied by letter press describing the careers and habits of the women, especially noting their methods of spending their money, the object being, of course, to point out the wicked waste on fashion among wealthy people.

Her Heinemann thinks that such a book would be a powerful argument for a return to sane and simple tastes. While admitting that this movement has been inspired by Cleveland Moffett's newspaper campaign in America, he disagrees with Mr. Moffett's proposal of a ten per cent tax on gowns and jewels for the benefit of the poor, as a check to extravagance.

$60,000 FOR YACHT CHARTER

"Silent" Smith Will Sail Anthony Drexel's Steamer "Margarite" for Five Months.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—At last Mr. Anthony J. Drexel of Philadelphia, has found some one to charter his magnificent steam yacht. Margarita, the finest vessel of the kind in British waters.

Mr. James Henry Smith (silent Smith), whose marriage to Mrs. Rhinelander Stewart surprised most of his friends, has chartered the Margarita for five months. He and his wife and a small party will visit India and Japan.

Mr. Smith is paying $60,000 for the charter and no one will be surprised if he buys the yacht outright. Mr. Drexel refused an offer last season of $750,000 for the yacht, made by a wealthy Scotch manufacturer. Mr. and Mrs. James Henry Smith will settle in London next season.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Exception is taken in some of the afternoon papers here to the statements made by Andrew Carnegie at the banquet of the St. Andrews' society in New York last night regarding the decline of recruiting in Scotland.

The Pall Mall Gazette heads its comment "An Alien Insult," and says that even if true, "it is the worst of manners in an alien who elects to make frequent use of British hospitality to make it the subject of public rejoicing."

Sir Mortimer Durand's "vigorous rebuke" of Mr. Carnegie on the same occasion is applauded by the press.

KAISER'S HUNT VERY TAME SPORT

Stone Marks Spot Where His Ten Thousandth Pheasant Fell.

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—This is the season of the Kaiser's big battles among the game preserves of the great German land owners. As the guest of sporting noblemen, His Majesty loves to kill as many head of game as he can.

His shooting methods are not like President Roosevelt's strenuous Adirondack expeditions. The Kaiser sits in an ambush, attended by three or four keepers, who hand him loaded repeating rifles in rapid succession. He pots at the game as it is driven past him within easy range by hunters, and his only object is to kill as many as possible.

Minute records are kept of the number of birds, bears or deer shot by His Majesty, and the spot where he kills his thousandth or ten thousandth pheasant is now marked with a memorial stone inscribed with the fact and date.

According to court chroniclers the Kaiser is a perfect shot, as he ought to be when it is all made so easy.

Lovers Become Reconciled When the Perilous Trip Ends Safely.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—By the safe return to civilization by Dr. Louis F. Wolf, surgeon of the Peary Arctic exploitation, an estrangement between the doctor's sister and her fiance has been brought to an end and the intrepid brother's arrival in this city will be followed by a wedding.

Displeased that her fiance, P. Willard Geer, should have induced Dr. Wolf to undertake the perilous trip with Commander Peary, Miss Sophie Wolf, sister of the surgeon, gave Mr. Geer her ultimatum.

"I'll never marry you until Louis comes back, and I believe he never will come back," she said.

In vain Geer tried to explain to the young woman that the trip to the Arctic was coveted with scores of persons. But his explanation only further vexed Miss Sophie, who, when she learned that Geer had actually secured from Commander Peary the berth of surgeon for her brother, became more emphatic.

SHE BRAVES FEVER TO WED

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Dec. 1.—Miss Anne Sheby Thompson, one of Cheyenne's best known and most accomplished young women, has gone to Santiago de Cuba to join her fiance, Lieutenant E. Z. Steever of the Eleventh infantry, who has been ill with fever and who recently met with a serious accident. Miss Thompson and Lieutenant Steever were to have been married here during the winter, but as the officer is in a serious condition, his sweetheart is hastening to his side, and the wedding will be performed upon her arrival in the old Spanish town.

The courtship of Lieutenant Steever and Miss Thompson has been somewhat romantic and the bravery of the young woman in making the long journey through the fever-infected South at this time of the year adds interest to the pretty story.

Miss Thompson is the daughter of General and Mrs. John Charles Thompson, and comes of one of the oldest and proudest Kentucky families. General Thompson was for years a leading figure in Wyoming legal and political circles and is now practicing in both this state and Colorado.

REFUSES TO WED UNTIL LOVER WINS ELECTION

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Dec. 1.—It took D. W. Livingston, of this city, three years and three trials in running for office to become the husband of Miss Emma Shafers.

Livingston is a graduate of the State university, and there met Miss Shafers. After their college days were over, the friendship was kept up, and it ripened into love. During the first year that they kept company Livingston ran for the legislature, but was beaten by a few votes.

When he asked Miss Shafers to marry him, she jokingly replied that she would, but not until he obtained office at the hands of the people. Livingston accepted the condition. Last year he tried for election again, this time as candidate for a county office. Livingston is a Democrat, and the county is usually Republican; but he entered the campaign with vigor. He ran ahead of his ticket, but did not obtain enough votes to win.

Last spring he was named city attorney, but Miss Shafers insisted that an appointive office did not fulfill the requirements. Livingston said he would run for county attorney. He obtained the nomination last August, and ever since has been busily campaigning.

His friends spread the story of his wooing, and the truth of the old proverb, that "all the world loves a lover," was demonstrated when the votes were counted Tuesday, and Livingston was found to have more than 400 majority.

Wednesday morning, with the proof in his hand, Livingston called upon Miss Shafers and reminded her of her promise. She said she was ready to keep it when he liked. Livingston said they would be married that evening. She demurred, but finally consented. The ceremony was performed and the pair have gone east on a wedding tour. Both are leaders in local society.

STUDENT IS A SPECIAL ESCORT TO LONE WOMEN

His Job Is to Accompany "Solitaires" to Their Homes in Safety.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—A freshman at the Northwestern University has a job which is considered by the students to be the softest snap in America. His name is O. C. Wise; he is a big, handsome athletic fellow, and part of his work at Evanston is performing the duties of a special policeman.

Because of the negro and white thugs who are in the habit of accosting unaccompanied women at the Evanston railroad station, Wise has been appointed a special escort. His duties are to meet the trains and offer his broad shoulders as a buffet against the leers and sardonic smiles of the toughs.

The first appearance of Escort Wise, who has no uniform, was a depressing failure. From the 10:39 o'clock train Monday evening, a charming young woman, unattended and somewhat frightened of the dark, stepped forth to the platform. Officer Wise approached her, hat in hand.

"Are you alone?" the special policeman inquired. "If so, may I—"

"Sir!" the surprised young woman ejaculated, as she attempted to pass him. "How dare you! I'll call a policeman!"

"I—I'm a policeman," Officer Wise explained, somewhat crestfallen by the first taste of his new duty. "I'm here especially to escort ladies home who are alone, so that nothing can possibly happen to them."

"O—oh, I see," the young woman said, all smiles. "Yes, I am alone, and if you will put me on a street car I will be very thankful."

During the week Wise has accompanied seven women home, and day by day likes his job better.

MME. GOULD GOT HER JUST DUES

Miss Emily Crawford Says Boni's Wife Had All She Bargained For.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—"The countess has been spoken of as the prey of an adventurer," remarks Miss Emily Crawford, famous Paris correspondent, referring to the former Countess Boni de Castellane, now known since the divorce by her maiden name of Gould, with the motherly prefix of "madam."

"She had all she bargained for. Does any American heiress bargain for honest, quiet, connubial happiness? No. She wants a splendid stage on which to shine, in costly belongings and a grand title and in illustrious society on footing of equality.

"Did not Count de Castellane give all that to Jay Gould's daughter? She had the pick of European society at her entertainments. Millions were spent—but why? To provide her with the stage for which her ambition craved.

"There is much exaggeration in what has been said against Boni. He had endless enemies in the politcal world, and was greatly enview. He had good qualities, but the good qualities of a Frenchman born and bred in a monde where serious views of life and pure, Puritan virtues do not prevail. The countess expected American virtues as well.

"Yet it is said the marriage of the countess cost her at least 40,000,000 francs ($8,000,000). That may be well."

LOVE OF THIS WOMAN IS FATAL

Two Commit Suicide and Her Husband Is Stabbed Because of Her Spell.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 1.—A student named Ostrovski shot himself dead a few days ago while walking in Preobrajenskaia street with Mme. Bielskaia, a daughter of General Starinkevitch, the recent victim of a bomb outrage. Ostrovski's death was attributed to political reasons, but a strange light has now been thrown on the tragedy.

Among her acquaintances Mme. Bielskaia, says the St. Petersburg Gazette, is known by the sobriquet of the "fatal woman." A former lover of hers, M. Golovatcheff, also committed suicide, and her husband has fled to the Caucasus with a dagger wound in his breast.

A Russian officer writes to the Gazette with reference to the tragedies: "I knew both the dead men, and I know also that Golovatcheff fought a duel for the woman's sake with a third lover. The combat was bloodless, but Golovatcheff's opponent attempted suicide and wounded himself, while Golovatcheff shot himself within a fortnight of the fight.

"I was myself, under Mme. Bielskaia's spell for a year and a half. I do not know what constituted it. Her careless gaiety, her beauty, her sudden fits of passion were equally compelling. After all, she was an artist in coquetry, and exercised a kind of magnetic attraction."

GREEN IS THE FAVORITE TINT

Green is one of the favorite colors of the moment. It has been the predominating tint at several smart weddings lately, and one bride—an earl's daughter—had her white bridal gown embroidered round thte hem and her net veil bordered with green myrtle leaves.

The veil itself was of a deep cream, almost, indeed, a coffee color. This is a novel departure in veils, though several brides have had touches of delicate green introduced on their wedding robes.

White ostrich boas are likely to come prominently into favor shortly, and the demand for them from drapers who look so far ahead as next spring, has recently been very great. Big ostrich feathers, too, promise to be the feature of next spring's hats, just as they have been "the thing" this summer. Already there are prophecies that the prices for them will be "something awful."

SHOULD OAKLAND GIRLS WEAR SHORT SKIRTS?

They Wear Them in France and Expose Neat and Dainty High Laced Boots on the Streets.

Why not? If they have the sense to do it. Is there anything neater and trimmer than a well-cut kilted skirt clearing the ground by two inches or more, and showing a pair of high-laced boots? It is the last thing in smartness for rainy weather, and never was there a fashion more hygienic than that of the "trottoir" skirt, says an English authority.

In France, where they know how to dress, and where economy has been elevated to an art, no self-respecting woman would appear outside her own house, if there was a speck of mud in the street, in a dress that touched the ground. In Germany, where one is a housewife first and a woman afterwards, it would be a heart-breaking spectacle to the neighbors if one sauntered out casually in the morning in a dress that did not betoken the stern business of catering for one's household by being held high from the street by a steel arrangement that fastened round the waist.

In Spain and Italy, those women who do not drive in carriages all wear skirts to their ankles, and you never see the American lady tourist clutching a bunch of skirt in one hand while with the other she grasps fieldgear, handbag and umbrella. Is England, then, the only nation that would doom its women to sloppy untidiness of costume because the modesty of the men must not be shocked by the sight of a well-turned ankle and a pretty foot? The days have gone by when we were asked to be merely graceful ornaments of society. Let us at least dress as we please.

Today, when he marries, man seeks a companion for the hard tramp over the hills and dales of life, then let him cease from admiring the damsel who is a vision of beauty in cheap lace, and turn his attention instead to the girl who shows that she has learnt the habits of economy and neatness, the girl who has probably paid for her gown with her own hard-earned money, the girl with the short skirt.

LOSES AN ARM BUT WINS BRIDE

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Dec. 1.—An accident which deprived him of his arm brought Armour George, formerly a well-known young engineer on the Frisco railroad, a pretty young wife. George was married yesterday at Benton to Miss Bertha Carson of Commerce. About a year ago George was piloting the one passenger train on the Gulf branch of the Frisco, a line which runs through Commerce. Passing through the town one day he got out on the step to look down at a wheel which he thought had gone flat. A building projecting too near the rails knocked him from the engine and one arm was cut off. It is said that Miss Carson saw the accident from her home, a short distance away, and that she sped to the scene and tenderly lifted the unconscious engineer from his perilous position. He was placed in the train and brought to this city, where he slowly gained strength. Miss Carson's deed was related to him, and he lost no time in making a visit to Commerce to thank her. The first meeting led to others, which ripened their admiration into love. George recently obtained a judgment of $10,000 against the railroad.

LONDON FAVORS RIDING ASTRIDE

English Capital Welcomes Advent of Once Outlawed Fashion for Women.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—"In a few years, if the present movement continues, we shall probably see all the women in the row riding astride." This is the conclusion of an old employee in the Royal park, a careful observer who has seen the question "Should women ride astride?" raised more than once. The matter was discussed in the newspapers some years ago, and the practice was condemned, but much has happened since then, and now there is every prospect that women who care to sit astride may do so without remark. The change is no more remarkable than that affected by the woman's bicycle.

Among the distinguished women who ride astride at present are Lady Castlereagh, the duchess of Westminster, the Hon. Mrs. Fayrburn and Lady Constance Stewart-Richardson. Lady Castlereagh is for the moment the most prominent exponent of this method in London, owing to her husband being a member of parliament.

ALAMEDA RESTAURANT

In Alameda, the other day, as a man was coming out of a restaurant, in which he had just eaten, the door, swung by the heavy wind, knocked him down, and he fell in such a way that he broke his arm. The dailies devoted space to the occurrence, but neglected to mention the greater calamity—that the man had been forced to eat in an Alameda restaurant. I have tried all of them, and I must say that they are all bad. There is no use trying to determine which is the worst of them, for all are so bad that none could be worse than the best of them. This may sound nonsensical and paradoxical, but you just try them yourselves. They remind me of the cheap restaurant into which a man went and ordered a porterhouse steak smothered in mushrooms. The waiter stared at him with his mouth wide open. "Gawd!" he said, "if there was anything like that in this place the boss would eat it himself!"—News Letter.

WOMAN FINDS WIRE TROUBLE.

The pretty Palo Alto telephone operator who quit the switchboard to cut in on a matrimonial trunk line found "wire trouble" when a woman who alleged she was wife No. 1 short-circuited the lead at the Oakland jail. But it developed later that No. 1 had climbed the wrong pole with her wire-tapping stunt. A long-distance message from papa Minaker at Maynell cleared the cables, and the batteries of love once more commenced bubbling up. No. 1 grounded her current and hasn't been heard from since.—News Letter.

MAYOR MOTT CHANGES TEXT.

"I contribute to 'The Woman's Say Much and Do Little Club Herald,' 'The Domestic Pacifier,' and 'The Ladies' Gad-About Recorder,' and several other publications," said the Oakland literary woman to her neighbor at the banquet table. "For what do you write?" "Money," snapped Samolit Noswal, of Boston, who knew more about stocks and bonds than he did about literature, despite the fact that he scribbled for one of the leading magazines on his reputation as a financier.

Changing the text sufficiently to meet the occasion, Mayor Frank K. Mott of Oakland now reads the Scriptural passage, "And a child may lead them." At least, so one might be caused to believe. A few more months and the people of what was once the City of Oaks will again choose their chief executive. Believing that he has been, and still continues to be, the man of the hour, that in his hands he holds the destiny of a great municipality, His Honor, the Mayor, naturally desires to succeed himself.

Evidently he believes in the power of suggestion, for knowing full well that it would be undignified for one so high up in the affairs of this city to directly begin his campaign at such an early date, he shows his sapience by grasping an opportunity which is afforded him. And so it happens that the Mayor, who has suddenly became aware of the fact that citizenship is not given enough attention in educational circles, may be seen not infrequently hurrying from school to school in their fair city across the bay to deliver brief talks with a view to awakening in the minds of the school boys a desire to know more of civic affairs, that they may (and each boy must have this hope), like the Mayor—once a messenger boy, now a prominent business man, aspire to positions of trust and honor in the community in which they live. "But the boys cannot vote," you may protest. Quite true; but there are papas who can. So much for suggestion.

But sugestion is not the only thing in which Mayor Mott believes—that is, not if he may be judged by what some of his adherents think. He also has faith in progression. Being a business man, he knows a few things about figures, and so it is not strange that he should add two and two, thereby getting the result of four, or perhaps, still better, using the combination of four and four to total eight. When it is understood that these figures qualify years, and that the friends of the Mayor (and he has many) say that he is destined to be California's Governor, it may not be amiss for him to teach civic enthusiasm in the schools. Many a boy is a man in eight years, and men vote. Yes, it is evident that the Mayor believes in progression.—News Letter.

SCANDAL IN THE JURIES.

The rottenness of the jury in the McNulty case has impressed even the sluggish minds of the ordinary Oaklander. As a matter of fact, Oakland juries have been a scandal for years. Within the last year, several criminals have ostentatiously slipped through the meshes of the law. The Pembroke case was one of the most notorious of these. In that case, a young man who had some money managed to escape conviction while his companions were sentenced to imprisonment for life. There may have been no connection betwenn the money and the verdict, but such a conclusion is different from that at which most unbiased people have arrived.—News Letter.

LADIES ARE DOING A "KICK."

As was to be naturally expected, the hoodlumism of the university is finding its mirror in the high school. The ladies of the Town and Gown Club of Berkeley kindly gave their premises to the Cotillion Club of the High School, an organization intended to teach the young good manners. They showed their appreciation by kicking the furniture to pieces and demolishing the chinaware. That they need to be taught good manners is obvious, but the process seems to be expensive.—News Letter.

FRANKLIN SARGENT AND A DINNER.

Franklin Sargent, United States Commissioner of Immigration, is wondering what he ever did to the Athenian Club of Oakland; the members of that exclusive organization are not so much in doubt about what they did to him.

When the news flashed over the wire that President Roosevelt had ordered Sargent on a pilgrimage to the Hawaiian Islands to investigate the status of the incoming embryonic American citizens, a few of the choice spirits of the club made preparations to meet the commissioner in a manner befitting the reputation of California for hospitality. A banquet was ordered, and a special reception committee appointed. A telegram was sent to Sargent at Reno, en route, telling him about the interests the residents of Oakland were taking in his trip, and asking him to be ready for a royal good time, the royal good time to begin at the depot, where a reception committee would be in waiting.

Immediately on receipt of the news, the commissioner began to prepare for a strenuous pjeriod of enjoyment. His anxiety did not escape the eye of one of the lady passengers, who wormed the truth out of Lew Martin, who is a Southern Pacific conductor, between his periods of being sergeant-at-arms of the State Senate. Lew had handled the dispatch and was informed of its contents by the overjoyed commissioner. Martin told the inquisitive female passenger, under a pledge of secrecy, which accounts for the rapidity with which the information spread through the train.

The passengers took up the matter of the reception as if it were meant for them individually. They got together and discussed the niceties of receiving a reception. They practiced a special yell, designed by a reformed yell leader of one of the eastern colleges. Perhaps it was this that unnerved the engineer and caused the train to be late. It was due at 9 o'colck in the morning, and the reception committee was on hand. Noon was the next hour set for its arrival, and again the reception committee was on hand. Then the agent confessed that once a train lost its right of way, even if an overland, it could be sidetracked for any old thing, even a freight that kept within the limits of its schedule. This was encouraging for the committee, which went away with the understanding that the train would surely be in at 6 o'clock. At that hour the members of the committee appeared again, and held a purely academic discussion on the ravages of penumonia caused by the north wind, which was blowing around the depot at a sixty mile an hour clip. They stamped up and down, and down and up, but still their feet were cold, and they grew colder, when the station agent announced that it would be midnight before the train would arrive. That settled it. The members of the committee would not disappoint the other guests invited to the feast. And besides, they wanted something warm. No, they afterwards confessed, they wanted something hot. And they got it. The Athenian club was treated to the spectacle of a banquet with the guest of honor hundreds of miles away. At least the Athenians understood that he was hundreds of miles away, and there is a possibility that they would still be of that opinion but for the thoughtfulness of the station agent, who called the club up over the 'phone and announced that he had made a mistake about the arrival of the Overland. He said that it had pulled in at 9:30, instead of 12 o'clock, as he had expected.

It was a new and enlarged committee that rushed from the club building to the depot. Feverish enquiry elicited the information that the passengers on the Overland had gathered around Sargent when the train pulled into the station, ready to give the yell on the appearance of the reception committee, accompanied by the band. The college graduate was to give the signal. They waited; so did the commissioner. The wind blew, then the whistle blew. Even Lew Martin lost confidence and reluctantly substituted his yell of "all aboard," for the one that had been practiced on the way down from the snow-shed. There were murmurs of fake, false alarm, and snide, and even harder terms. The commissioner answered nothing at all, and the last they saw of him, he was trying to hide himself and his belongings in the farthest corner of a street car. The committee traced him up town, then a division of the committee's forces, by this time greatly augmented, became necessary, and a systematic search was instituted. From the motorman of the car that brought Sargent up town, it was learned that the conductor had informed a stout, angry-looking passenger that the Athenian club was in West Oakland, as he had read of a "boxing tournament" that had taken place there. With this bit of information as a clue, one section of the committee started down towards Seventh street to take the local. On the way they encountered a man loaded down with two grips and a thoroughly disgusted air. He looked as if he impression that the delicate fever name.

He answered: "My name was Sargent when I left Washington, but I am somewhat in doubt about it now." Then they fell on his neck, and he went home to the club and fell on the remains of the banquet.—News Letter.

BIG CELEBRATION FOR NEW LIGHTS.

Everybody in Oakland is praying that it may not rain December 12th. On that date, the merchants of the city will celebrate the establishment of electroliers to light up the down-town section. These new lights were put in by the merchants at their own expense. The celebration of this transformation from comparative darkness to light will also be at the expense of the merchants. There will be a parade with illuminated floats, providing it does not rain. There will also be a band of music at every corner, providing it does not rain. The electric stream will flow through the wires that connect the electroliers, and the joy of the inhabitants who venture out in the night airs will be unconfined, providing it does not rain. Everybody is praying that it may not rain in Oakland on December 12th.—News Letter.

MULLALLY'S RUMORED ENGAGEMENT.

It does not require much of a pretext these days to start the rumor of an engagement in society. It seems to be the general impression that he delicate fever which inspired the songs of Sappho is epidemic and that unless Cupid be watched he will cast his spells without the slightest warning. So whenever two that are qualified to mate happen to meet there is speculation on the possibility of the kindling of the sentimental passion, and from conjecture springs rumor upon the heels of which follows gossip that assumes the tone of assurance. Such may have been the genesis of the report that has come to my ears of the engagement of Thornwell Mullally and a very charming and popular society girl of the most exclusive sets. This engagement aroused the interest not only of society but of political circles, for among the politicians it was regarded as fraught with significance. Here is Mllally, sauid they, in so many words, the man behind the trolley franchise deal, about to wed a relative by marriage of one of the very top-notch principals of the graft prosecution. Is it likely that Heney will be permitted to go ahead, in the event of this marriage despite the fact that he may cause embarrassment in a certain family? Then the politicians laughed. It was a great joke—this interference of Dan Cupid with the plans of the city's redeemers. And it certainly would be a great joke if things were going as they seemed. Thinking so I called Mullally up on the phone and asked him about it. The lady's name was not mentioned. It wasn't necessary. "Not a word of truth in it," said the railroad magnate. "Do you know to who I refer?" I asked. "Oh, yes," said Mullally. "I've heard all about it, but there's nothing in it—not a word of truth in it, and there's no chance of anybody getting ahead of you for there's not the remotest likelihood of my marriage to any woman on earth." So there! Ye gossips and matchmakers may look elsewhere for food for gossip.—Town Talk.

WORKING WAY AROUND THE WORLD.

Two young university students, Samuel Hellman and Edwin Loeb, are about to carry out one of those novel compacts so popular several years ago: They are to meet in London next spring; one is to travel east, the other west from Berkeley; each is to start with only enough money to carry him one hundred miles. The rest of the traveling and living expenses must be earned on the trip. Hellman is related to the banker of that name in this city: Loeb is the son of wealthy parents living in Los Angeles. He is also a cousin of the Sigmund Stearns here. Social position, college standing and youth therefore lend added interest to their adventure. Young Hellman plans to do newspaper work in the cities he enters in order to pay his way across the continent and reach London. Loeb is already working his way to the Orient as cabin boy on Spreckels' Pacific liner, Sierra. He was given rousing, big send-offs by his family and friends. At first his family entertained strong objections to the venture until he pointed out that he would be as readily at the end of a telegraph line as if he were taking a world tour with a ten thousand dollar letter of credit in his pocket. They consented at last with the stipulations that he should keep the wires busy announcing his whereabouts and never at any time to conceal his identity so that he could always be traced in case of lost or belated wires.—Town Talk.

MR. SHAW'S LATEST SUGGESTION.

The irrepressible George Bernard Shaw has seized his lance, mounted his charger and is out again exhiliratingly tilting at the wind mills. This time it is the ten commandments and he aims to upset the whole ten. Especially is he anxious to demolish the sixth. His war cry is that we don't kill enough people and don't kill the right kind. Valiantly he has jumped over the Osler fence and thinks he has discovered large classes of people in the community who ought to be killed. He doesn't propose witch doctors or lottery schemes to pick them out, nor is he himself to be the sole arbiter. "Every citizen," he says, "ought every few years to be brought before a public board and asked if he could justify his existence. If he could not make it clear that he had done as much for the community as the community did for him he ought to be sent to the lethal chamber." In the ripe fullness of this conviction Mr. Shaw fails to offer himself as the first candidate to test the requirements of the chamber. Probably he thinks he has given the community far more than it will be able to repay him during his lifetime, and that he is forever exempt from the proposed lethal draught. Certainly his wit is active enough to save him from the ordinary roving pound master, but alas for the rest of us under such a test we would be very much in the class of the octogenarians with the terrifying Osler and his age test bogey in pursuit. The best thing for Mr. Shaw, when suffering from some of these lime-light suggestions offered for the betterment of the world, is to seek the retirement of a good sanitarium and wait till the thoughtlet runs its course. The ten commandmenuts are not so much in need of improvement as the men who thoughtlessly break them. And the dyspeptics who, like Mr. Shaw, analyse the world and its actions through darkened glasses are apt to see nothing but the sharp angles of life. Gifted with talents they organize cults, as would Mr. Shaw, only to have them waste away through utter impracticability. Sit in solitary grandeur and grumple, Mr. Shaw. As long as you do it in your own witty and original fashion you are sure to be entertaining. That is enough glory for the playwright. But don't drop in lethal chambers and other horrors, most of us reach them too soon, as it is.—Town Talk.

MAD PRANKS OF SOCIETY GIRLS

Several seasons ago the fashionables endeavored to prove the Darwinian theory by enlivening their dinner parties with food throwing contests. The men did not take as much delight in the messy business as the women. The champion local bread-ball thrower was the tall, dashing young matron who is the eldest of three stunning young society matrons. Finally this uplifting diversion fell into disrepute and now a new pastime has been evolved in the decadent brain of a well-known clubman. The other night at a dinner given at Burlingame he tried to elicit a bit of information from the young woman sitting next to him and when she laughingly refused to satisfy his curiosity he suddenly lifted his champagne glass and emptied its contents down her back. The table was in an uproar of merriment. The young woman was furious until assured that the champagne would not stain the back of her decollette gown. Then she ignored the indignity of the offense and joined in the general glee. When the finger bowls were passed she scored revenge by dousing him with the perfumed water which reduced his dress shirt to a soggy, wilted rag. This damp sort of wit is of a piece with the free-for-all siphon squirting contests that used to enliven the hilarious Sunday picnickers at Steve Sanguinetti's.—Town Talk.

THE TRIUMPH OF DELMAS.

Henry C. McPike, formerly of San Francisco and now of New York, came out on a flying trip last week to wind up his affairs in this city and arrange for the transportation of his family and all his lares and penates to his new home. It was McPike who consummated the deal by which D. M. Delmas was engaged to take charge of the defense of Harry Thaw. The stories that have been told of the manner in which the eloquent Californian lawyer obtained the confidence of the Thaw family and the contract for a big fee are wide of the truth. It was not Tom McCaleb that persuaded the Thaws to hire Delmas; nor was it altogether through the influence of Justice McKenna of the United States Supreme Court that the defense of White's murderer was intrusted to the sagacity and learning of the brilliant advocate, but the true story is not ripe for the telling. Suffice it that McPike went east for no other purpose than that of making the deal before the name of Delmas had been mentioned by anybody connected with the case, and that a little later he wired his associate to start at once for New York. It is not generally known that there was a great scramble for the fee which Delmas is to obtain. It is not customary for attorneys to solicit business, but when a case of national interest bobs up, one upon which may be thrown a white light that will make vivid to the country every conspicuous figure that stalks through it, then it is hard to find a practitioner so dignified and so deferential to the properties as to scorn to lift a hand by which he might invite inspection of his talents and surpassing endowments. From McPike I learned that among the distinguished lawyers that sought to break into the Thaw case were four United States Senators, and that there was scarcely a large city in the Union out of which there did not come at least one Napoleon of the bar to offer his peerless services.

Before the decision was reached by which Delmas was engaged there were many conferences among the members of the Thaw family and their advisers. Several lawyers, among them, Hartridge of New York, the man who was engaged by Thaw himself and by whom was defeated the proposition to have the murderer adjudged insane and sent to an asylum, conferred with Mrs. Thaw and Andrew Carnegie, and after they had made a thorough investigation of Delmas' record and read some of his most notable addresses to courts and juries they agreed that he was the greatest gun available for the battle. But though they were strongly impressed before meeting him, with the quality of his genius, he completely won them in his first conference, and the readiness with which he solved some of the intricate problems which they had been resolving for weeks was a phenomenon that commanded their highest admiration. Without more ado they agreed to give him full charge of the case and to let him assume entire responsibility. It has been said in the dispatches that there was some friction between Delmas and Hartridge, but McPike says this is absolutely untrue. Hartridge and Delmas are of the Yale law college alumni and the former was very much gratified over the engagement of the Californian. Hartridge is not a criminal lawyer and was not eager to assume the responsibility of handling the case. I also learned from McPike that the whole Californian colony in New York was filled with enthusiasm over Delmas' good fortune and that every Californian in the metropolis is now "pulling" for the defense. Delmas has become a lion in the clubs, he is a frequent guest at the homes of the millionaires of the metropolis and so much business has already come to the firm of Delmas & McPike in New York that the partner would have no reason to be apprehensive of their prospect even though the Thaw fee were not on their books. As to the result of the big trial Delmas has no misgivings. The insanity plea will be interposed and it will open the door to all the evidence that the defense cares to introduce respecting the aggravating conduct of the amorous architect.—Town Talk.

SAVES WOMEN IN RUNAWAY

The presence of mind of L. F Wilson averted what would have been a serious accident, when a runaway team of the National Ice Company dashed into Alameda car 165 at the corner of Broadway and Second streets yesterday afternoon about 3 o clock

The team was at a watering trough at Third and Clay streets, drinking, when a dog poked his head up to take a drink This frightened the horses and they bolted down Third thence onto Broadway, again turning at Second street In their sudden start they threw the driver from his seat.

L F Wilson saw the team coming and ran to warn the street car The motorman did not stop at the first signal, but kept on going To prevent a fatal accident, Mr Wilson sprang to the front platform and saved the three lady passengers, who were in the path of the team The motorman lost no time in stopping his car at the turn and sprang over the seat and to the street on the other side of the car

The pole of the wagon struck the car and broke the woodwork in front besides tearing off one of the posts. The off horse received a gash

Thought Old Saw About Lightning Was All Right Until He Tried It Out.

ALAMEDA Dec 1—Charles Ruppel whose home is at 2263 Pacific avenue until last night was a firm believer in the old saw that lightning never strikes twice in the same place It was his belief in the saying that gave him courage to jump from a Santa Clara avenue car while it was in motion but when the jump terminated in the gutter with Ruppel badly cut and bruised he decided that the truth in the adage was a little far fetched

Ruppel came to the conclusion after remembering that on Sunday night he fell from the car and broke his finger lacerated his face and was badly bruised Friday he duplicated his jumping feat at the corner of Oak street in the same spot as the former occasion and received injuries that will keep him in bed for a week Ruppel no longer has any faith in the savings handed down from his grand fathers

FRENCH PAPERS ARE ALARMED

Great Interest Manifested by Parisians in Japanese School Question

PARIS Dec 1—Great interest is manifested here in the subject growing out of the exclusion of Japanese children from the public schools of San Francisco Some of the French newspapers take an alarming view of the affair owing to sensational statements cabled reporting recent arrivals from the Far East as saying that a clash between Japanese and the United States is inevitable The Japanese Legation today issued a reassuring note declaring that the paroxysm of anger reported as raging in Japan was greatly exaggerated and saying

Naturally it is a matter of national pride that our countrymen be permitted to enjoy the rights guaranteed in treaty but we appreciate the local conditions and have the fullest confidence in the policy of the Washington government to [illegible] California for a recognition of our rights There is no thought of war

The best proof that the situation is not regarded in Japan as being grave is the fact that the legation here has not received any cable messages on the subject Had Tokio been preparing to be making a demonstration or to do anything of international importance the legation would have received warning instructions

How Good Food may Turn to Poison.

DECAY is not digestion, you know, even when it takes place in the stomach

Food decayed in the body after being eaten is as dangerous to health as food decayed before being eaten.

Food nourishes or poisons, just according to how long it remains in the Bowels undigested.

They are lined with a set of little mouths, that squeeze Digestive Juices into the Food eaten

The Instestines are also lined with millions of little suction pumps, that draw the Nutriment from Food, as it passes them in going through.

But when the Bowel-Muscles are weak, the Food moves too slowly to stimulate the little Gastric Mouths and there is no flow or too little flow of Digestive Juice, to change the food into nourishment.

Then, the food decays in the Bowels, and the little suction pumps draw Poison from the decayed Food, into the blood, instead of the Nutrition they should have drawn

Now Cascarets contain the only combination of drugs that Stimulates these Muscles of the Bowels and Intestines just as a Cold Bath or open-air Exercise, stimulates a Lazy Man

Cascarets therefore act like Exercise

They produce the same Sort of Natural result that a Six Mile walk in the country would produce without any injurious Chemical effect

NEW RECORD FOR ARRESTS

During the month of November the local police made 1111 arrests, many of which were for drunkenness and gambling. A good many have been taken into custody, however, for petty thievery, vagrancy and felony. This month's arrests exceed in number those of any previous month in the history of the police department of this city.

OLD FAVORITES TO SHOW HERE

Oakland's favorite popular-priced attraction, Elleford's big company, will open at the Macdonough theater for the week beginning December 3, with Saturday and Sunday matinees. This is the company that made the season of stock at this theater this summer the most successful engagement ever played in the bay city. Most of the old favorites are retained.

The Osborn children will introduce a new vaudeville turn and appear in two clever juvenile roles. The dramatic offering is the big comedy drama success, "The American Girl," a pretty story with an absorbing plot, with just the right proportion of comedy and sentiment. The story deals with an American girl who marries a titled lord. They become separated through poverty and the scheming of an elder brother, who is fighting for the estates and love of his brother's wife. The true American wins in the end.

The cast is strong, and especial attention is given to the scenic and electrical settings and the costumes.

YE LIBERTY PLAYHOUSE.

Judging from the crowded houses that have been filling Ye Liberty every night this week "The Eternal City" could easily be continued another week, but Manager Bishop has decided not to change his policy of giving a new play every week. Few productions have been seen in Oakland that could excel, or even equal in magnificence, Ye Liberty's production of this play, which is one of the best ever given there. Sunday night will be the last time "The Eternal City" will be presented, there being the usual matinee Sunday at 2:15 o'clock.

Next week "The Charity Ball" will be the offering. It is the joint work of David Belasco and H. C. De Mille. Besides this, such interesting plays as "Lord Chumley," "The Wife" and "Men and Women" will be presented.

"The Charity Ball" is a modern comedy drama of home life—one of the prettiest ever given to the stage. The leading roles will be in the hands of Landers Stevens, Franklyn Underwood and Isabelle Fletcher. Miss Francis Slosson, well known to Oakland theatergoers, will make her reappearance with the Bishop players, after an absence of over four months.

EDESON AS STRONGHEART.

"Strongheart," at the Macdonough will be presented tonight and tomorrow night, when the engagement will close. Edeson, in the title role, continues to please crowded houses by his perfect portrayal of a red man.

"Strongheart" has been played for several years and is regarded as the best college drama on the boards.

HIGH WINDS SWAY TOWER

City Building Braced up and the Clock Has Stopped in Its Tolling of the Hours.

The heavy winds of the past few days have necessitated the bracing of the tower on the city hall, as it has been severely strained by the constant swaying to and fro. Many have wondered why the clock has stopped running during the past few days. It is because the tower shakes so badly that the works of the giant timepiece are put out of place.

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 1.—Invitations to the semi-annual meeting of the counties committee of the California Promotion committee, which is to be held at Hotel Del Coronado December 15 are being sent out to all chambers of commerce, boards of trade and promotion committees throughout the State. The commitee of the local chamber, which is making the arrangements for the meeting, is leaving no stone unturned to make the attendance the largest that has ever been present at a meeting of the committee before.

HIBERNIANS TO HOLD NEW YEAR'S EVE BALL

At a meeting of representatives yesterday it was decided that the combined divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Alameda county will celebrate the coming New Year by giving a grand ball and reception at Foresters' Hall, Oakland, December 31. The different lodges propose to give a series of entertainments this winter to raise funds to defray the expense of entertaining ninety delegates to the coming convention of the order.

STOLEN WATCH WAS HIDDEN IN A SACK

A pickpocket stole a gold watch and $6 in coin from A. L. Watson of the Forum Cafe, on Friday. The police were notified and Acting Detective McSorley was detailed to investigate the theft. In searching about among some old sacks in the restaurant, McSorley found the missing timepiece, which had evidently been hidden by the thief. The money was gone, however.

CHINAMEN TO STAND TRIAL

Sixteen Gamblers Have Decided Not to Forfeit Their Cash Bonds.

Contrary to custom, the sixteen Chinamen who were arrested Friday night during a raid on a gambling den at 363 Eighth street, did not forfeit their bail in department one of the police court yesterday. A continuance was asked for, however, and Police Judge Smith continued the case until Monday morning, at which time a plea will be entered.

HELD ON CHARGE OF GRAND LARCENY

LEADING SPECIALIST FOR WOMEN.

Ladies, if you are suffering from any ailment peculiar to your sex, worried about your condition and need help, consult this widely known specialist for the following plausible reasons:

1—He is a competent, well-trained physician and surgeon, and truly the only regularly graduated specialist for women advertising.

2—With qualifications recognized by the highest medical authority, and well-known as a consulting gynaecologist and obstetrician with his painless and harmless methods known to no physician but himself. He is able to give relief at once, without disappointment, needless drugs, operations or detention from your occupation.

3—His broad experience in the exclusive treatment of women; his 19 years of unlimited success with the most obscure and obstinate cases where all others have failed, his entire new specially constructed building, equipped with the latest inventions and modern appliances essential for the proper investigation and intelligent treatment of his patients, makes him the safest and surest man to consult when you need help.

Throw aside prejudice. The best is always the cheapest. Why suffer pain and anxiety by consulting quacks, self-styled specialists and those of small experience, when you may have the advice of a man rich in experience and eminent in the profession, absolutely free of charge.

His fees are moderate and you may safely intrust your case in his care, and be assured of prompt and happy results.

HOLIDAY BOOK TALK

Adelaide Sell Baker.

"Set in Authority" by Sara Jeannette Cole (Doubleday, Page & Co.) pictures life in India among the English. The story first appeared in the weekly edition of the London Times. To subjects of King Edward the book will probably be regarded as absorbingly interesting, in that it deals with a political situation. To Americans it will never carry deep appeal. If the authoress be invested with the power of analysis, her work does not show it in any marked degree.

While "Set in Authority" is, primarily, a tale of action, dealing with men of affairs, the recital can best be described by the word "slow." The book has decided merit, but there is a mass of unnecessary verbiage which does not add to its attractiveness. Much attention has been paid to detail, and the story has atmosphere, though lacking spirited movement. There is not even a desperately violent flirtation to mar the placidity of its telling.

But there is one bad man, named Morgan—a private soldier with an ill-smelling record—who dies in a prison cell by his own hand after having been condemned to death for a murder of which he is guiltless. Leading to the supposed crime was the prior offense of clandestine visits to one of the native women. Making love under the rose appears to be a habit quickly acquired by British soldiers, and one easily condoned by the English colony in the tropical land of India. However, in this instance, the woman was encumbered with a husband of the same nativity as herself. He, suspecting his wife's infidelity happened upon the pair during one of the nocturnal visits. Then followed the shooting and supposed killing of the husband by the paramour, Morgan. Later in the course of events, this husband turns up in another section of the country very much alive, the body of another man, previously murdered by some one else, having been substituted in his place, after having been dressed to represent the injured husband.

The soldier Morgan finally is proved to be Herbert Fring, connected with nobility in England, where he has a mother and sister. Furthermore, he was also a cousin to the newly appointed Viceroy of India—Anthony Thame.

The Viceroy is obessed with ideas tending to revolutionize the established order of English rule in India. Instead of keeping the natives under his heel, this ruler claims that they should be a factor in establishing law and order. It is never clearly established whether it is better policy to elevate or to crush the dark-skinned millions, but it is perfectly apparent that any quantity of mischief is stirred up by the Viceroy. For instance, in the case of Morgan, which is illustrative, the natives had become aroused against English rule, and intrigued to have the man put to death. On the other hand, the "Honor of England" according to the Viceroy, who was innocent of this duplicity on the part of his dark-skinned subjects, depended upon Morgan's punishment being made to fit the crime. In deciding upon any other than a trifling punishment he appears to have disregarded precedent, and for this decision is variously designated as a "prig" and a meddler, both of which, in a sense, he is, for zealots rarely see clear.

Quoting the author:

In reaching public sympathy Morgan had the advantage of being something like an original instance. The first Englishman in forty years to suffer death for the murder of a native of India, was a vastly more attractive figure to the popular imagination than the sixth or even the second would have been. Henry Morgan became a sacrifice to the well-known god of that which we are not in the habit of doing, and a thousand voices cried "Stop," "Wait!"

"His case as a common soldier touched the common people. They whole ten days. It was suggested to them that Morgan would never have been sentenced to be hanged if he had been an officer and a gentleman. He was to suffer in the cause of a new ideal because he was "only a Tommy," whereas officers and gentlemen in India, it was hinted, had been guilty of worse things."

"As the viceroy's attitude became more clearly understood, his action suffered every distortion. He emerged a despot, who had torn Morgan from the courts to make an example of at his own pleasure. His name was bracketed with those of Roman emperors, and he was warned that modern civilization had no place for even a just tyrant. * * * * This is ever the path of the reformer, and "set in authority" fails to show that the Viceroy accomplished anything more than what politicians aptly, though perhaps vulgarly term a bad-smelling mess.

Elliot Arden is really the best character in the story. He obtains one promotion after another, until finally he is honored by he gift of the lieutenant-governorship of Bengal, as well as knight-commandership of the star of India.

Arden, like many another public official, has an interesting wife, who is too good for him. She fails to respond to the depths of his nature. They have several children, and, motherlike, when they are sent away to be educated. Mrs. Arden accompanies them. During her absence Arden has a severely virtuous love affair with Dr. Ruth Pierce. Nothing ever came of this romance, though, and Mrs. Arden, thrice blessed, passed to the beyond in blissful ignorance of her husband's strayed affections.

Dr. Pearce, in spite of her literary flirtation with Arden, is a noble woman. It is to her that Ingram confessed his true name and family connections, and in her hands consigned a letter to his sister, Victoria Tring, telling her of his freckled career. After learning how matters were in London, Dr. Rush burned the letter and decided that in this case, at least, silence was golden.

The Viceroy, after many trials and tribulations, finally marries Victoria Tring.

In the publishers' note to The Cynic's Word Book, is an announcement to the effect that Mrs. Ambrose Bierce "has been writing this dictionary for many years. It is delightfully funny, full of flashes of wit and an abiding background of humor—and real philosophy too—yet it never degenerates into cheapness."

Readers of the San Francisco Wasp will remember these characteristic definitions, coming under the unique heading of "The Devil's Calendar." This was begun in the early eighties, and continued, in a desultory way down to the time of issue in book form. The stopping place of the volume, according to the author, was determined by considerations of bulk. But, in event of the book's popularity among those to whom it is addressed—"Enlightened souls who prefer dry wines to sweet, sense to sentiment, good English to slang, and wit to humor—there may possibly be another, if the author be spared for compiling."

A "cynic" is thus defined: "A blackguard whose faulty vision sees things as they are not they ought to be. Hence the custom among the Scythians of plucking out a cynic's eyes to improve his vision."

It is prophesied that the book will be cherished by the few, for mankind generally does not like to take its medicine thus disguised.

"The Heart That Knows," Charles G. D. Roberts, L. C. Page & Co., publishers.

The average reader of the present day reads his book as he eats his breakfast prior to catching the train—devouring without digesting it; and the modern novelist, recognizing this tendency of his readers—this mysterious, nervous impatience with unnecessary paragraphs, hastes to attack the main subject, leaving descriptive work to a very few more conservative writers.

However, Charles G. D. Roberts in his novel, "The Heart That Knows," testifies in the following fanciful bit, that he is thoroughly capable of giving us beautiful description:

"The scene was all space—all high, light color, wind-washed brightness, and loveliness. Toward the southeast, where the girl was looking, and in a vast sweep around the southward horizon, spread the tawny, tumbled waters of Fundy, eternally vexed by their terrific tides. Beyond the ship—leagues beyond, and across the yellow water—rose the blue hills of Minudie. To eastward, outspread the interminable light green levels of the Tantamar marshes; with the dark green spire of Fort Beausejour thrust out to fence them off the marshes of the Misagnash. Further around to the left the grassy solitudes [illegible] threaded by the many-winding channels of that most mutable of rivers, the Tantramar, just now at full tide, and pouring its pale copper colored flood into the bay almost before the girl's feet. The windings of the river—which twisted hither and thither as if it had forgotten its way—made bright, reddish-yellow slashes and patches over the wide green of the marsh."

. . The marshes at this season of early summer were covered with a three-foot growth of timothy and other fine hay grasses. Here and there, for acres at a time, the grass could wave and bow and turn blue evenly before the wind, because it was stiff with blooms and tangled leafage of the great red clover. Here and there, too, instead of the rosy stain of the clover, vast patches of blossoming vetch, entwined with the grass stems, spread a wash of undulating purple over the pale green. . . . And over all this shining world of green earth and yellow sea hung a low-vaulted sky of light pure blue, the blue of thinned cobalt."

The plot is not new. Deceived by means of forged letter into thinking that his sweetheart is untrue to him, Jim Calder leaves on the very eve of his wedding for a three-years' cruise in foreign waters. The girl, Luella Warden, left in a most unfortunate predicament, and ignorant of the cause of her lover's departure, after a hard struggle, straightens back her shoulders, and faces the world bravely. The years pass slowly, during which Luella brings up her noble young son, Seth, to manhood. Still Jim has not returned—till Seth, learning of the treatment his mother has suffered, stars out to find and punish the delinquent and heartless father. His search is rewarded; he discovers the truth of the matter, and takes Jim back to the patient woman whom he has never ceased to love.

"Born to the Blue," by Florence Kimball Russell (L. C. Page & Co.), is a story of army life which will be eagerly read by young Americans. The hero, "Jack," is the son of an officer stationed at a Western frontier post. His friends and comrades are soldiers, while he has few companions among boys of his own age. The discipline of the army reflects itself in all Jack's sayings and doings. Once he had a most thrilling adventure—that was when, a lad of 14, he rode away on his pony "Apache," and took a longer canter than he had anticipated doing. In this ride he encountered a band of renegade Indians who fired upon him. True to his military training, Jack returned the fusilade, killing a big brave. The Indians, owing to their number, were just about to get the better of him, when Donnelly, his soldier friend and chum, appears on the scene and rescues the boy from certain death. The two have a famous ride for life while escaping from the redskins, and Donnelly is seriously wounded. Jack supports the unconscious man while guiding the reins of the big brown horse on which they are mounted, and, just when he is nearly overcome, a detachment of soldiers from the fort comes to the rescue.

An interesting story for boys who are fond of adventure is "The Rival Campers Afloat" by Ruel Perley Smith (L. C. Page & Co.) Two yachts, the "Surprise" and the "Viking" are manned by young men who are friendly rivals. They meet occasionally during the summer, and once, at a critical period, when the "Viking" had been stolen, it was the crew from the "Surprise" who recovered her. However, the story has chiefly to do with the "Viking," manned by her young owners, Jack Harvey and Henry Burns. There is a mystery about the yacht, which had been stolen from its original owners by two men of evil character, one of whom set fire to a hotel, was caught and sentenced to imprisonment for the deed. His accomplice escaped, afterward to reappear as a Mr. Carleton, who manages to inveigle himself into the boy's confidence; this with a view toward recovering some bank notes which had been secreted in the boat's cabin. Various complications tend to make the story interesting, and the boys win out after having the "Viking" stolen from them by the crafty Carleton. There is an atmosphere of daring about this book which will find warm admirers among those who like stories of action.

THE CHURCH AND THE ACTOR.

An Alliance Between Them Established Throughout the World.

Actors and actresses who happen to need a friend in Cape Town, South Africa, or in Johannesburg, can be sure of finding him in the person of the Actors' Church Alliance chaplain. Even at the antipodes, in faraway Australia, a member of the profession which is habitually getting stranded may find a comforter in the members of the Alliance, which, as the Rev. Walter E. Bentley told the New York chapter at its first reception of the season recently, has become "world-wide among English-speaking people."

"I never go anywhere that I don't hear of the Actors' Church Alliance," said Mr. Bentley, who has recently returned from a campaign tour in Great Britain in the interest of the organization. "Nobody knew I was coming, and when I reached Londonderry last August I was met by a reporter, who asked, 'Are you the Actors' Church Alliance man?'

"'Do I look like it?' I parried. 'Yes, you do,' said he, 'and besides, we all remember when you were here five years ago.'

"Now the Irish like to fight," continued the speaker. "That's why I like them. When you reach the heart that beats in the best class of cultivated Irish, although they've been raised in the spirit of Calvinism which has always been inimical to the theater, you find that they will turn out and help the theater handsomely.

"The work of the Actors' Church union (as they call it over there) has grown steadily. It has about seventy-three cities now where an actor can be sure of finding a friend in the person of its chaplain. In Scotland the work has been a little difficult, on account of the strong Calvinistic influence, but even Scotland is coming around to us." —New York Tribune.

MAN HAS MARVEL IN POULTRY

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 1.—Unable to wait for an expiration of the year, E. W. Starnell, of Alexandria, Va., has written to the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Department of Agriculture announcing that he has a marvel in the poultry line.

He informs the Bureau that since October 5, 1905, the hen has laid 291 eggs. When her year is up he calculates she will have laid over three hundred eggs. Exclusive of the molting season this is at the rate of one egg every twenty-seven hours.

It is now admitted by most authorities that alcohol is no food at all; that it is wholly unnecessary, if not injurious, to healthy persons, and that is useful in some forms of medical treatment.

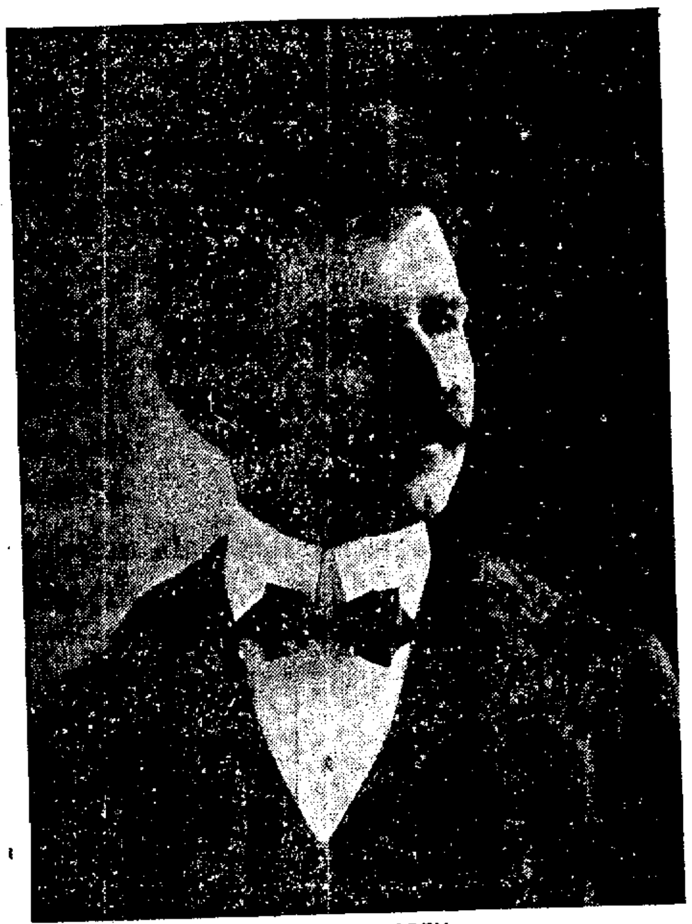
Richness of Mines Attracts Eyes of Investors.



F. D. TORPEY.

The buoyancy of the Manhattan stock market, the increasing favor of Manhattan mining securities with eastern and Pacific Coast investors, the doubling of activities in mining operations in the Manhattan district—these are topics of comment in Southern Nevada. The marked revival in the Pine Tree Camp has aroused the most conservative in Tonopah, and incessant appeal of good things in mining has awakened a nod of recognition from the operators at Goldfield, that maelstrom of business and money-getting.

The splendid showing in Manhattan mines, the increased activity in all parts of the camp, and the upward movement of stocks, has brought a flood of business to Manhattan brokers who are now moving at a Goldfield gait. There is unanimity among brokers here, and all classes of mining men, that the outlook for steady business with a safe market and great profit to investors, was never so bright in Manhattan as at the present.

A representative of THE TRIBUNE sought an interview with F. T. Torpey, of the firm of McElvaney & Torpey, for the purpose of seeing Manhattan from the point of view of one of the camp's most unvarying champions and a successful operator.

BANKED LAST DOLLAR.

Mr. Torpey, with his partner, came to Manhattan in the earliest days of the camp's feverish notoriety. He and McElvaney looked the camp over and decided to bank their last dollar on its being a winner. Persistent and painstaking work has put them at the head of the procession of successful promoters of mining properties. They have combined unerring judgment in the selection and purchase of properties, with consummate business skill in handling their flotations and in managing their numerous propositions.

The secret of their success is perhaps to be found here at home, where the residents of the camp have been ready in every instance to back the firm's judgment by taking their first offerings. An inspection of the records shows that through this confidence in legitimate promoters living within their own gates, the people of Manhattan have profited all the way from 50 to 500 per cent. They have mined honestly, never offering anything to an outsider until they have expended their own money upon properties purchased to prove merit. Thus they find themselves, at the beginning of this prosperous chapter in Manhattan, the possessors, not only of several properties of proven value, but they have the confidence and the following that enables them to give the name of every resident of Manhattan as a reference.

Mr. Torpey was found bubbling over with unquenchable optimism upon the outlook for business and the extension of interest in Manhattan to every part of the country. He had a good word for every portion of the camp, and is a convincing talker.

GREATEST OF PRODUCERS.

"Recent developments in all parts of this district have proved what we always claimed, to-wit: that Manhattan will prove to be the greatest producer in Southern Nevada. Goldfield and Tonopah are great. Their greatness is dazzling, but they are mature and Manhattan is an infant. You must give us a little more time, but we know enough about ourselves to say that we are in the race to finish in the lead.

"Five miles west of this office," continued Mr. Torpey, "in the west central neighborhood, there is a group of mines in which development has been carried far enough to convince either layman or expert th[illegible] several great dividend payers wi[illegible] made. In this group are the Independence Consolidated, the Oriental, Paymaster, Hooligan, Nemo, Original Manhattan, Nevada Southern, Rob Roy and the Nevada Mines property. These constitute Manhattan's sheet anchor in the direction of Smoky Valley. They are all in the hands of men of the best character and are being operated under the direction of engineers of standing. The best informed on that part of the district are of the opinion that the best things are yet to be found.

"Nearer Manhattan is another notable group, including the Wolftone, with its 100 tons of sacked shipping ore and an enormous high-grade ledge exposed; with the Wolftone Extension, now being incorporated, on whose ground dry washers can make good incomes with little or no capital; with the Indian Camp stock over a dollar, Little Grey stock worth a dollar, Dexter worth more than a dollar; Jumping Jack, Gold Wedge, Stray Dog and Crescent, all properties to tie to.

ANOTHER BIG GROUP.

"Going eastward again, we come to another constellation that has shed much light upon the possibilities of Manhattan. The premier of these is the Manhattan Consolidated, with a fourth of a million dollars' worth of ore in sight. Around this are grouped the Seyler-Humphrey, the estate on which the first specimen high-grade gold ore was found in this district in April of 1905; the Pine Nut, the Granny, and Consolidated Extension. There is mineral wealth enough in this group alone to make Manhattan famous.

"Further east we come to Manhattan's sheet anchor toward the Ralston desert. It is eleven miles between the Ralston and the Smoky Valleys and the Toquima range where it is cut by the Manhattan pass seems one vast pile of hills, highly impregnated, through well-defined zones, with all the precious metals. In this eastward group is found a copper trinity: The Toquima Copper Company, the Manhattan Bonanza Copper Company and the Ralston Valley Copper Company. These companies own what has been proved to be mountains of high-grade copper ore. Development has reached the sulphides and everything points to great results. These properties were developed during the dullest season in Manhattan. While the outside public would not look at this camp, local residents were putting their money into these flotations. Toquima Copper is now selling at more than six times the price paid for it by the local loyalists. The original buyers of these copper stocks will almost to a unit hold their stock for the dollar price that is coming.

Specifications are now being prepared for a concentrating plant to take care of the product of the three companies. It has been demonstrated that the ores yield to the simplest treatment, which is an important item in the direction of early dividends.

Prominent also among east-end mines are the Buffalo, with deep workings, great ledges and a mill already ordered; the Mammoth, with a 425-foot tunnel, tapping a great hill traversed by big gold-bearing ledges; the Gibraltar and the Manhattan Blue Chip.

"Yes, indeed, the development done in all these properties has awakened interest in Manhattan on the outside. The investing public is coming Manhattanward. We are flooded with inquiries and buying orders that indicate that the purchasing public has kept close tab on what this camp is doing. The market is steadily advancing on the merits of the properties here. We do not call this a boom. It is good, healthy business that has home to stay.

"Well, as to the future, I discount my own candid belief when I say that before thirty days, despite the holiday lull, Manhattan stocks will be from 20 to 100 per cent higher than they are today. Our securities deserve to be at that level at any rate."

AN UP-TO-DATE FIRM.

The firm of McElvaney & Torpey is acting in accord with the statements set forth by Mr. Torpey. They have an office force that would do credit to a metropolitan business. F. P. Jayne is office manager and advertising man. Mr. Jayne was for twelve years in the advertising department of the Union Pacific, stationed at Salt Lake. He quit the railroad business for the more attractive business of mining in Manhattan. Chief accountant in this hustling brokerage house in this Jayne, for ten years chief clerk to the Secretary of State of Utah.

In the field the business of the firm is in charge of W. O. Pray, a mining engineer of distinction and perhaps better acquainted with the Manhattan district from end to end than any other man living. Mr. Pray is not outclassed in this country. He picked the Independence Consolidated stock, in which San Francisco capitalists are falling over each other to get in large blocks. He also passed on and put his stamp of approval upon the Toquima copper group, which is a new figure in the center of the Manhattan stage this week. Mr. Pray has for an assistant in his work for McElvaney & Torpey, George W. Hartley, who came to Manhattan from Idaho, and whose knowledge of copper propositions is second to none in the business.

With such pilots aboard this firm has taken on the following promotions: The Toquima Copper Company, the Manhattan Bonanza Copper Company, the Ralston Valley Copper Company, the Manhattan Mammoth Mining Company, the Round Mountain Mutual Mining Company, the Wolftone Extension Mining Company, the Manhattan Cash Rock Mining Company, and the baby of them all, the Manhatan Blue Chip.

Come Let Us Reason Together

Let us have a good, square, straight-from-the-shoulder talk. You know the old saying, "Gold is where you find it." Now, I ask you, does it not stand to reason that when you get right into the middle of the spot where gold is all around you, that you have a better chance than if you put your money into an undeveloped district?

The greatest gold producer in the world today is the MOHAWK, of Goldfield, Nevada. Official records show that this mine produced $5,000,000 in 106 days.

It is the opinion of every mining expert that Silver Pick will be the next Mohawk. Every shaft that is being sunk on Silver Pick has gone into ground identically the same as that of the Mohawk, and Silver Pick is right alongside of the Mohawk; so, does it not stand to reason that Silver Pick will be the next Mohawk?

The leasors made Mohawk what it is, and the leasors will make Silver Pick the next Mohawk.

I ask you in all fairness, wouldn't you rather have your money in a lease on Silver Pick than in some district as yet undeveloped?

has just been incorporated. They have a lease on Silver Pick for one year. A shaft was started on this lease Nov. 20th, and is working day and night. The shaft is in a direct line between the Von Polenz (only 75 ft. distant, and the Mohawk Fraction shaft (only 100 ft. distant), and both in good ore. The charter of the Silver Pick Consolidated M. & L. Co. runs for 25 years, and the company may take up leases on other property, buy mines or stock in mines.

By vote of the Board of Directors, one-half of the net receipts from sale of treasury stock is set aside for future investment. The work on the Silver Pick lease will be rushed, and if we don't get the ore, one-half of your money will be held as a reserve fund. Now, isn't that reasonable? Isn't it fair, and isn't it an honest run for your money?

The Silver Pick Consolidated M. & L. Co. has no salaried officers. There are no figureheads as directors—people who take a bunch of stock for the use of their name and never know a thing about the affairs of the company. Every officer of the Silver Pick Consolidated M. & L. Co. has put money into the company and looks to the investment for his returns. I ask you in all reason, isn't that honest and fair?

Developments to date assure the success of the Silver Pick Consolidated M. & L. Co. and the reserve fund will provide a big fund for the operating of other leases and mines and guarantees a permanency of value and profit. Everybody who has been getting my market letter since July 1st knows that I strongly advised the purchase of Silver Pick at 25 cents (since sold at $2.30); Mohawk at $1.40 (since sold at $19.50) and a lot of others that have showed big profit. One customer of mine made $16,000 in three weeks.

I am just as confident that SILVER PICK CONSOLIDATED M. & L. CO. will make you money.

Send for My Market Letter

You have probably noticed that some of the Nevada Stocks have gone up and others have gone down. There is a reason for this condition of the market, which I am going to talk about in my next market letter.

Some of the Nevada Stocks are a good sale, some others are a good buy. I have good reason for saying this and I will explain fully. If you want to know what I have to say, your name will have to be on the mailing list. If you have not already sent in your name, do so at once and then you will get my letter each week. I have an office in Goldfield and have correspondence in all the Nevada Camps and am therefore in close touch with all that happens. My opinion of the market is always expressed in my weekly market letter. If you want it, send for it. It is mailed free to you.

With a Light Inside
He'd never seen a thing like this
So Bright & Fiery-Eyed
He Yelled, "Wow! Wow! White Man on Fire
Me save Him quickly, too"
Then drew His Tomahawk and Knife
And Loudly Yelled "Skidoo"
He made a Dash and cut the Cord
From which the Pumpkin hung
It Fell and smashed Poor Scalper Man
Who Hollered loudly "Stung."
